PREFACE

The texts contained in this volume are reprinted from the authentic texts of the Conventions and Recommendations adopted by the International Labour Conference in the course of the thirty-two sessions which have been held from 1919 to 1949. During this period 98 Conventions and 87 Recommendations have been adopted by the Conference. On 30 September 1949, 56 Conventions had received the number of ratifications necessary to bring them into force and a total of 1,039 ratifications had been registered.

In the case of the Conventions adopted at the first twenty-eight sessions of the Conference (1919 to June 1946), the texts here reprinted are the texts as modified by the Final Articles Revision Convention, 1946¹, which was adopted for the purpose of making provision for the future discharge of certain chancery functions entrusted by the said Conventions to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations and introducing therein certain further amendments consequential upon the dissolution of the League of Nations and the amendment of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation. This Convention came into force on 28 May 1947. In accordance with Article 6 of the Final Articles Revision Convention, original copies of the texts of these Conventions as modified by the provisions of the Final Articles Revision Convention, duly authenticated by the signature of the Director-General of the International Labour Office, have been deposited in the archives of the International Labour Office and communicated to the Secretary-General of the United Nations, and certified copies thereof have been communicated to each of the Members of the International Labour Organisation. The texts contained in this volume are reprinted from the original copies.

In the case of the Recommendations adopted by the first twenty-eight sessions of the Conference, the texts here reprinted are the texts as modified for the same purpose in accordance with the Second Report of the Committee on Constitutional Questions adopted by the 29th Session of the International Labour Conference on 8 October 1946 and authenticated and circulated in the same manner as the modified texts of the Conventions in accordance with the terms of that report. These texts are reprinted from the original copies of the Recommendations as modified.

In the case of the Conventions and Recommendations adopted at the 29th and subsequent sessions of the International Labour Conference, the texts are reprinted from the original copies authenticated by the signatures of the President of the Conference and of the Director-General of the International Labour Office in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 4 of Article 19 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation.

The order in which the Conventions and Recommendations¹ are printed in this volume is the order in which they were adopted at the successive sessions of the Conference. The table of contents has been divided to show separately the Conventions and Recommendations, and an index in which the Conventions and Recommendations are classified according to their subject matter is added at the end of the volume.

The International Labour Office also publishes, under the title of The International Labour Code, an annotated edition of a systematic arrangement of the Conventions and Recommendations adopted by the International Labour Conference, with appendices embodying other standards of social policy framed by the International Labour Organisation. The annotations in this edition contain detailed information concerning the preparatory work of the Conventions and Recommendations, the extent to which the Conventions have been ratified and interpretations of their provisions given by international and national tribunals and by the International Labour Office, references to the reports giving particulars of the legislation by means of which the provisions of the Conventions and Recommendations are applied, and full bibliographical notes. The first edition of this publication, covering the period 1919 to 1939, appeared in English only in 1941 and has been out of print for some years. A second edition, covering the period 1919 to 1949, which will appear in English, French and Spanish, is now in the press.

The obligations of Members of the International Labour Organisation in respect of Conventions and Recommendations adopted by the Conference are defined in the following terms in Articles 19, 22 and 23 of the Constitution of the Organisation :

Article 19

1. When the Conference has decided on the adoption of proposals with regard to an item in the agenda, it will rest with the Conference to determine whether these proposals should take the form : (a) of an international Convention, or (b) of a Recommendation to meet circumstances where the subject, or aspect of it, dealt with is not considered suitable or appropriate at that time for a Convention.

2. In either case a majority of two-thirds of the votes cast by the delegates present shall be necessary on the final vote for the adoption of the Convention or Recommendation, as the case may be, by the Conference.

3. In framing any Convention or Recommendation of general application the Conference shall have due regard to those countries in which climatic conditions, the imperfect development of industrial organisation, or other special circumstances make the industrial conditions substantially different and shall suggest the modifications, if any, which it considers may be required to meet the case of such countries.

4. Two copies of the Convention or Recommendation shall be authenticated by the signatures of the President of the Conference and of the Director-General. Of these copies one shall be deposited in the archives of the International Labour Office and the other with the Secretary-General of the United Nations. The Director-General will communicate a certified copy of the Convention or Recommendation to each of the Members.

5. In the case of a Convention—

- (a) the Convention will be communicated to all Members for ratification ;
- (b) each of the Members undertakes that it will, within the period of one year at most from the closing of the session of the Conference, or if it is impossible owing to exceptional circumstances to do so within the period of one year, then at the earliest practicable moment and in no case later than eighteen months from the closing of the session of the Conference, bring the Convention before the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, for the enactment of legislation or other action ;
- (c) Members shall inform the Director-General of the International Labour Office of the measures taken in accordance with this Article to bring the Convention before the said competent authority or authorities, with particulars of the authority or authorities regarded as competent, and of the action taken by them ;

- (d) if the Member obtains the consent of the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, it will communicate the formal ratification of the Convention to the Director-General and will take such action as may be necessary to make effective the provisions of such Convention ;
- (e) if the Member does not obtain the consent of the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, no further obligation shall rest upon the Member except that it shall report to the Director-General of the International Labour Office, at appropriate intervals as requested by the Governing Body, the position of its law and practice in regard to the matters dealt with in the Convention, showing the extent to which effect has been given, or is proposed to be given, to any of the provisions of the Convention by legislation, administrative action, collective agreement or otherwise and stating the difficulties which prevent or delay the ratification of such Convention.

6. In the case of a Recommendation—

- (a) the Recommendation will be communicated to all Members for their consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise ;
- (b) each of the Members undertakes that it will, within a period of one year at most from the closing of the session of the Conference, or if it is impossible owing to exceptional circumstances to do so within the period of one year, then at the earliest practicable moment and in no case later than eighteen months after the closing of the Conference, bring the Recommendation before the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies for the enactment of legislation or other action ;
- (c) the Members shall inform the Director-General of the International Labour Office of the measures taken in accordance with this Article to bring the Recommendation before the said competent authority or authorities with particulars of the authority or authorities regarded as competent, and of the action taken by them ;
- (d) apart from bringing the Recommendation before the said competent authority or authorities, no further obligation shall rest upon the Members, except that they shall report to the Director-General of the International Labour Office, at appropriate intervals as requested by the Governing Body, the position of the law and practice in their country in regard to the matters dealt with in the Recommendation, showing the extent to which effect has been given, or is proposed to be given, to the provisions of the Recommendation and such modifications of these provisions as it has been found or may be found necessary to make in adopting or applying them.

7. In the case of a federal State, the following provisions shall apply :

- (a) in respect of Conventions and Recommendations which the federal Government regards as appropriate under its constitutional system for federal action, the obligations of the federal State shall be the same as those of Members which are not federal States ;
- (b) in respect of Conventions and Recommendations which the federal Government regards as appropriate under its constitutional system, in whole or in part, for action by the constituent States, provinces, or cantons rather than for federal action, the federal Government shall—
 - (i) make, in accordance with its Constitution and the Constitutions of the States, provinces or cantons concerned, effective arrangements for the reference of such Conventions and Recommendations not later than eighteen months from the closing of the session of the Conference to the appropriate federal, State, provincial or cantonal authorities for the enactment of legislation or other action ;
 - (ii) arrange, subject to the concurrence of the State, provincial or cantonal Governments concerned, for periodical consultations between the federal and the State, provincial or cantonal authorities with a view to promoting within the federal State co-ordinated action to give effect to the provisions of such Conventions and Recommendations ;
 - (iii) inform the Director-General of the International Labour Office of the measures taken in accordance with this Article to bring such Conventions and Recommendations before the appropriate federal, State, provincial or cantonal authorities with particulars of the authorities regarded as appropriate and of the action taken by them ;
 - (iv) in respect of each such Convention which it has not ratified, report to the Director-General of the International Labour Office, at appropriate intervals as requested by the Governing Body, the position of the law and practice of the federation and its constituent States, provinces or cantons in regard to the Convention, showing the extent to which effect has been given, or is proposed to be given, to any of the provisions of the Convention by legislation, administrative action, collective agreement, or otherwise ;
 - (v) in respect of each such Recommendation, report to the Director-General of the International Labour Office, at appropriate intervals as requested by the Governing Body, the position of the law and practice of the federation and its constituent States, provinces or cantons in regard to the Recommendation, showing the extent to which effect has been given, or is proposed to be given, to the provisions of the Recommendation and such modifications of these provisions as have been found or may be found necessary in adopting or applying them.

8. In no case shall the adoption of any Convention or Recommendation by the Conference, or the ratification of any Convention by any Member, be deemed to affect any law, award, custom or agreement which ensures more favourable conditions to the workers concerned than those provided for in the Convention or Recommendation.

Article 22

Each of the Members agrees to make an annual report to the International Labour Office on the measures which it has taken to give effect to the provisions of Conventions to which it is a party. These reports shall be made in such form and shall contain such particulars as the Governing Body may request.

Article 23

1. The Director-General shall lay before the next meeting of the Conference a summary of the information and reports communicated to him by Members in pursuance of Articles 19 and 22.

2. Each Member shall communicate to the representative organisations recognised for the purpose of Article 3 copies of the information and reports communicated to the Director-General in pursuance of Articles 19 and 22.¹

The report of the Conference Delegation on Constitutional Questions which afforded the basis for the 1946 revision of the Constitution contained the following comments upon Article 19 of the Constitution of the Organisation, with special reference to the sense in which the term "competent authority" is used in that Article :

43. One of the salient characteristics of the International Labour Organisation is that the discussion of social policy in the world forum of the Conference, the work of the authoritative expert committees of the Organisation and the informational, advisory and research work of the Office, all make essential contributions to the formation of international standards by the International Labour Conference. These standards are formulated in Conventions and Recommendations which Members of the Organisation are under a constitutional obligation to refer to the national competent authorities with a view to effective implementation. These Conventions and Recommendations have during two decades been one of the main formative influences upon the development of social legislation in many countries. It follows that while the International Labour Conference has no legislative powers, it has certain quasi-legislative or pre-legislative functions which are of a unique character and of outstanding importance. Conventions and Recommendations adopted by the International Labour Conference are not binding upon Members of the Organisation merely in virtue of their adoption by the Conference, just as international treaties concluded by the traditional diplomatic procedure are not formally binding without ratification merely in virtue of their signature by plenipotentiaries, but the adoption of Conventions and Recommendations by the Conference does place all Members of the Organisation under a definite legal obligation to take certain action the object of which is to maximise the probability of the ratification of Conventions and the effective application of Recommendations. The Constitution of the Organisation requires every Member of the Organisation to submit all Conventions and Recommendations adopted by the Conference for consideration "to the authority or authorities within whose competence the matter lies, for the enactment of legislation or other action". In the case of a Convention the Member is, if it obtains the consent of the competent authority, further required by the Constitution of the Organisation to communicate the formal ratification of the Convention and take such action as may be necessary to make its provisions effective. These obligations apply in the same manner to all Members, irrespective of the attitude towards the Convention or Recommendation taken by their delegates at the Conference at the time when the Convention or Recommendation was adopted. The intention of the authors of the Constitution was that the competent authority should normally be the legislature.¹ Their purpose was to ensure that the authority competent to legislate for the purpose of giving effect to Conventions and Recommendations should always have an opportunity of discussing them. Regular, automatic and public discussion of the proposals of the Conference by the authorities competent to take the necessary national implementary action would, they hoped, contribute powerfully to the general ratification of Conventions and the effective implementation of both Conventions and Recommendations. That difficulties should have arisen from time to time in connection with the performance of the obligation to submit Conventions and Recommendations to competent authorities was inevitable in a period during which parliamentary institutions were in decline in many countries, but it has been the general practice of democratic Members of the Organisation to submit them to legislative bodies in accordance with the requirements of the Constitution of the Organisation and this practice has certainly contributed to the effective implementation of the decisions of the Conference.

48. . . . The whole question was discussed at length at the Paris Session of the Conference by the Committee on the Application of Conventions, which unanimously adopted a resolution pointing out that the experience of the Committee over the years "has demonstrated that certain obligations of States Members in respect of Conventions and Recommendations as well as certain aspects of the constitutional practice of the Organisation in this regard must be clarified or amplified in order to ensure the working of the Organisation with increased efficiency". In this resolution the

Committee submitted for further consideration the following suggestions—most of which had been put forward during the discussions of the Committee on Constitutional Questions of the Governing Body, and brought before the Paris Session of the Conference :

- (1) The obligation imposed upon Members by Article 19 (5) of the Constitution should be so clarified as to leave no doubt that the "authority or authorities" to which Conventions and Recommendations must be submitted shall be the national Parliament or other competent legislative authority in each country ;

(2)-(8)

49. The Delegation does not consider it necessary to clarify the obligation imposed by Article 19 (5) of the Constitution in order to leave no doubt that the "authority or authorities" to which Conventions and Recommendations must be submitted shall be the national Parliament or other competent legislative authority in each country. It does not consider that any doubt in regard to the matter exists and it would see serious disadvantages in modifying the language of so fundamental a provision of the Constitution of the Organisation which has given rise to the development of a large body of national constitutional practice and which, as members of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations have pointed out in the course of the deliberations of the Council, represents a great advance upon the practice of other international organisations.

A footnote to the text of each Convention¹ indicates whether the Convention was in force on 1 January 1949 and, if so, the date of its entry into force. For more recent information and for particulars of the parties to each Convention on any particular date, reference should be made to the current publications of the International Labour Office.

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Washington by the Government of the United States of America on the 29th day of October 1919, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the "application of the principle of the 8-hours day or of the 48-hours week", which is the first item in the agenda for the Washington meeting of the Conference, and adopts the following Convention, which may be cited as the Hours of Work (Industry) Convention, 1919, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention,

Article 1

1. For the purpose of this Convention, the term "industrial undertaking" includes particularly—

- (a) mines, quarries, and other works for the extraction of minerals from the earth ;
- (b) industries in which articles are manufactured, altered, cleaned, repaired, ornamented, finished, adapted for sale, broken up or demolished, or in which materials are transformed ; including shipbuilding and the generation, transformation, and transmission of electricity or motive power of any kind ;
- (c) construction, reconstruction, maintenance, repair, alteration, or demolition of any building, railway, tramway, harbour, dock, pier, canal, inland waterway, road, tunnel, bridge, viaduct, sewer, drain, well, telegraphic or telephonic installation, electrical undertaking, gas work, waterwork or other work of construction, as well as the preparation for or laying the foundations of any such work or structure;

(d) transport of passengers or goods by road, rail, sea or inland waterway, including the handling of goods at docks, quays, wharves or warehouses, but excluding transport by hand.

2. The provisions relative to transport by sea and on inland waterways shall be determined by a special conference dealing with employment at sea and on inland waterways.

3. The competent authority in each country shall define the line of division which separates industry from commerce and agriculture.

Article 2

The working hours of persons employed in any public or private industrial undertaking or in any branch thereof, other than an undertaking in which only members of the same family are employed, shall not exceed eight in the day and forty-eight in the week, with the exceptions hereinafter provided for :

- (a) the provisions of this Convention shall not apply to persons holding positions of supervision or management, nor to persons employed in a confidential capacity ;
- (b) where by law, custom, or agreement between employers' and workers' organisations, or, where no such organisations exist, between employers' and workers' representatives, the hours of work on one or more days of the week are less than eight, the limit of eight hours may be exceeded on the remaining days of the week by the sanction of the competent public authority, or by agreement between such organisations or representatives ; provided, however, that in no case under the provisions of this paragraph shall the daily limit of eight hours be exceeded by more than one hour ;
- (c) where persons are employed in shifts it shall be permissible to employ persons in excess of eight hours in any one day and forty-eight hours in any one week, if the average number of hours over a period of three weeks or less does not exceed eight per day and forty-eight per week.

Article 3

The limit of hours of work prescribed in Article 2 may be exceeded in case of accident, actual or threatened, or in case of urgent work to be done to machinery or plant, or in case of "force majeure", but only so far as may be necessary to avoid serious interference with the ordinary working of the undertaking.

Article 4

The limit of hours of work prescribed in Article 2 may also be exceeded in those processes which are required by reason of the nature of the process to be carried on continuously by a succession of shifts, subject to the condition that the working hours shall not exceed fifty-six in the week on the average. Such regulation of the hours of work shall in no case affect any rest days which may be secured by the national law to the workers in such processes in compensation for the weekly rest day.

Article 5

1. In exceptional cases where it is recognised that the provisions of Article 2 cannot be applied, but only in such cases, agreements between workers' and employers' organisations concerning the daily limit of work over a longer period of time may be given the force of regulations, if the Government, to which these agreements shall be submitted, so decides.

2. The average number of hours worked per week, over the number of weeks covered by any such agreement, shall not exceed forty-eight.

Article 6

1. Regulations made by public authority shall determine for industrial undertakings—

- (a) the permanent exceptions that may be allowed in preparatory or complementary work which must necessarily be carried on outside the limits laid down for the general working of an establishment, or for certain classes of workers whose work is essentially intermittent ;
- (b) the temporary exceptions that may be allowed, so that establishments may deal with exceptional cases of pressure of work.

2. These regulations shall be made only after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned, if any such organisations exist. These regulations shall fix the maximum of additional hours in each instance, and the rate of pay for overtime shall not be less than one and one-quarter times the regular rate.

Article 7

- (a) a list of the processes which are classed as being necessarily continuous in character under Article 4 ;
- (b) full information as to working of the agreements mentioned in Article 5 ; and
- (c) full information concerning the regulations made under Article 6 and their application.

2. The International Labour Office shall make an annual report thereon to the General Conference of the International Labour Organisation.

Article 8

1. In order to facilitate the enforcement of the provisions of this Convention, every employer shall be required—

- (a) to notify by means of the posting of notices in conspicuous places in the works or other suitable place, or by such other method as may be approved by the Government, the hours at which work begins and ends, and where work is carried on by shifts, the hours at which each shift begins and ends ; these hours shall be so fixed that the duration of the work shall not exceed the limits prescribed by this Convention, and when so notified they shall not be changed except with such notice and in such manner as may be approved by the Government ;
- (b) to notify in the same way such rest intervals accorded during the period of work as are not reckoned as part of the working hours ;
- (c) to keep a record in the form prescribed by law or regulation in each country of all additional hours worked in pursuance of Articles 3 and 6 of this Convention.

FIFTH SESSION(Geneva, 22-29 October 1923)*Recommendation 20*Recommendation concerning the General Principles for the Organisation of Systems of Inspection to Secure the Enforcement of the Laws and Regulations for the Protection of the Workers

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Fifth Session on 22 October 1923, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the general principles for the organisation of factory inspection, the question forming the agenda of the Session, and

adopts this twenty-ninth day of October of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Labour Inspection Recommendation, 1923, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Whereas the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation includes among the methods and principles of special and urgent importance for the physical, moral and intellectual welfare of the workers the principle that each State should make provision for a system of inspection in which women should take part, in order to ensure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the workers ;

Whereas the Resolutions adopted at the First Session of the International Labour Conference concerning certain countries where special conditions prevail involve the creation by these countries of an inspection system if they do not already possess such a system ;

Whereas the necessity of organising a system of inspection becomes specially urgent when Conventions adopted at sessions of the Conference are being ratified by Members of the Organisation and put into force ;

Whereas while the institution of an inspection system is undoubtedly to be recommended as one of the most effective means of ensuring the enforcement of Conventions and other engagements for the regulation of labour conditions, each Member is solely responsible for the execution of Conventions to which it is a party in the territory under its sovereignty or its authority and must accordingly itself determine in accordance with local conditions what measures of supervision may enable it to assume such a responsibility ;

Whereas, in order to put the experience already gained at the disposal of the Members with a view to assisting them in the institution or reorganisation of their inspection system, it is desirable to indicate the general principles which practice shows to be the best calculated to ensure uniform, thorough and effective enforcement of Conventions and more generally of all measures for the protection of the workers ; and

Having decided to leave to each country the determination of how far these general principles should be applied to certain spheres of activity ;

And taking as a guide the long experience already acquired in factory inspection ;

The General Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I. SPHERE OF INSPECTION

1. That it should be the principal function of the system of inspection which should be instituted by each Member in accordance with the ninth principle of Article 41 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation to secure the enforcement of the laws and regulations relating to the conditions of work and the protection of the workers while engaged in their work (hours of work and rest ; night work ; prohibition of the employment of certain persons on dangerous, unhealthy or physically unsuitable work ; health and safety, etc.).

2. That, in so far as it may be considered possible and desirable, either for reasons of convenience in the matter of supervision or by reason of the experience which they gain in carrying out their principal duties, to assign to inspectors additional duties which may vary according to the conceptions, traditions and customs prevailing in the different countries, such duties may be assigned, provided :

- (a) that they do not in any way interfere with the inspectors' principal duties ;
- (b) that in themselves they are closely related to the primary object of ensuring the protection of the health and safety of the workers ;
- (c) that they shall not prejudice in any way the authority and impartiality which are necessary to inspectors in their relations with employers and workers.

II. NATURE OF THE FUNCTIONS AND POWERS OF INSPECTORS

A. General

3. That inspectors provided with credentials should be empowered by law :

- (a) to visit and inspect, at any hour of the day or night, places where they may have reasonable cause to believe that persons under the protection of the law are employed, and to enter by day any place which they may have reasonable cause to believe to be an establishment, or part thereof, subject to their supervision ; provided that, before leaving, inspectors should, if possible, notify the employer or some representative of the employer of their visit ;
- (b) to question, without witnesses, the staff belonging to the establishment, and, for the purpose of carrying out their duties, to apply for information to any other persons whose evidence they may consider necessary, and to require to be shown any registers or documents which the laws regulating conditions of work require to be kept.

4. That inspectors should be bound by oath, or by any method which conforms with the administrative practice or customs in each country, not to disclose, on pain of legal penalties or suitable disciplinary measures, manufacturing secrets, and working processes in general, which may come to their knowledge in the course of their duties.

5. That, regard being had to the administrative and judicial systems of each country, and subject to such reference to superior authority as may be considered necessary, inspectors should be empowered to bring breaches of the laws, which they ascertain, directly before the competent judicial authorities ;

That in countries where it is not incompatible with their system and principles of law, the reports drawn up by the inspectors shall be considered to establish the facts stated therein in default of proof to the contrary.

6. That the inspectors should be empowered, in cases where immediate action is necessary to bring installation or plant into conformity with laws and regulations, to make an order (or, if that procedure should not be in accordance with the administrative or judicial systems of the country, to apply to the competent authorities for an order) requiring such alterations to the installation or plant to be carried out within a fixed time as may be necessary for securing full and exact observance of the laws and regulations relating to the health and safety of the workers ;

That in countries where the inspector's order has executive force of itself, its execution should be suspended only by appeal to a higher administrative or judicial authority, but in no circumstances should provisions intended to protect employers against arbitrary action prejudice the taking of measures with a view to the prevention of imminent danger which has been duly shown to exist.

B. Safety

7. Having regard to the fact that, while it is essential that the inspectorate should be invested with all the legal powers necessary for the performance of its duties, it is equally important, in order that inspection may progressively become more effective, that, in accordance with the tendency manifested in the oldest and most experienced countries, inspection should be increasingly directed towards securing the adoption of the most suitable safety methods for preventing accidents and diseases with a view to rendering work less dangerous, more healthy, and even less exhausting, by the intelligent understanding, education, and co-operation of all concerned, it would appear that the following methods are calculated to promote this development in all countries :

- (a) that all accidents should be notified to the competent authorities, and that one of the essential duties of the inspectors should be to investigate accidents, and more especially those of a serious or recurring character, with a view to ascertaining by what measures they can be prevented ;
- (b) that inspectors should inform and advise employers respecting the best standards of health and safety ;
- (c) that inspectors should encourage the collaboration of employers, managing staff and workers for the promotion of personal caution, safety methods, and the perfecting of safety equipment ;
- (d) that inspectors should endeavour to promote the improvement and perfecting of measures of health and safety, by the systematic study of technical methods for the internal equipment of undertakings, by special investigations into problems of health and safety, and by any other means ;
- (e) that in countries where it is considered preferable to have a special organisation for accident insurance and prevention completely independent of the inspectorate, the special officers of such organisations should be guided by the foregoing principles.

III. ORGANISATION OF INSPECTION

A. Organisation of the Staff

8. That, in order that the inspectors may be as closely as possible in touch with the establishments which they inspect and with the employers and workers, and in order that as much as possible of the inspectors' time may be devoted to the actual visiting of establishments, they should be localised, when the circumstances of the country permit, in the industrial districts.

9. That, in countries, which for the purposes of inspection are divided into districts, in order to secure uniformity in the application of the law as between district and district and to promote a high standard of efficiency of inspection, the inspectors in the districts should be placed under the general supervision of an inspector of high qualifications and experience. Where the importance of the industries of the country is such as to require the appointment of more than one supervising inspector, the supervising inspectors should meet from time to time to confer on questions arising in the divisions under their control in connection with the application of the law and the improvement of industrial conditions.

10. That the inspectorate should be placed under the direct and exclusive control of a central State authority and should not be under the control of or in any way responsible to any local authority in connection with the execution of any of their duties.

11. That, in view of the difficult scientific and technical questions which arise under the conditions of modern industry in connection with processes involving the use of dangerous materials, the removal of injurious dust and gases, the use of electrical plant and other matters, it is essential that experts having competent medical, engineering, electrical or other scientific training and experience should be employed by the State for dealing with such problems.

12. That, in conformity with the principle contained in Article 41 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation, the inspectorate should include women as well as men inspectors ; that, while it is evident that with regard to certain matters and certain classes of work, inspection can be more suitably carried out by men, as in the case of other matters and other classes of work inspection can be more suitably carried out by women, the women inspectors should in general have the same powers and duties and exercise the same authority as the men inspectors, subject to their having had the necessary training and experience, and should have equal opportunity of promotion to the higher ranks.

B. Qualifications and Training of Inspectors

13. That, in view of the complexity of modern industrial processes and machinery, of the character of the executive and administrative functions entrusted to the inspectors in connection with the application of the law and of the importance of their relations to employers and workers and employers' and workers' organisations and to the judicial and local authorities, it is essential that the inspectors should in general possess a high standard of technical training and experience, should be persons of good general education, and by their character and abilities be capable of acquiring the confidence of all parties.

14. That the inspectorate should be on a permanent basis and should be independent of changes of Government ; that the inspectors should be given such a status and standard of remuneration as to secure their freedom from any improper external influences and that they should be prohibited from having any interest in any establishment which is placed under their inspection.

15. That inspectors on appointment should undergo a period of probation for the purpose of testing their qualifications and training them in their duties, and that their appointment should only be confirmed at the end of that period if they have shown themselves fully qualified for the duties of an inspector.

16. That, where countries are divided for the purposes of inspection into districts, and especially where the industries of the country are of a varied character, it is desirable that inspectors, more particularly during the early years of their service, should be transferred from district to district at appropriate intervals in order to obtain a full experience of the work of inspection.

C. Standards and Methods of Inspection

17. That, as under a system of State inspection the visits of the inspectors to any individual establishment must necessarily be more or less infrequent, it is essential :

(1) (a) That the principle should be laid down and maintained that the employer and the officials of the establishment are responsible for the observance of the law, and are liable to be proceeded against in the event of deliberate violation of or serious negligence in observing the law, without previous warning from the inspector ; it is understood that the foregoing principle does not apply in special cases where the law provides that notice shall be given in the first instance to the employer to carry out certain measures.

(b) That, as a general rule, the visits of the inspectors should be made without any previous notice to the employer.

(2) It is desirable that adequate measures should be taken by the State to ensure that employers, officials and workers are acquainted with the provisions of the law and the measures to be taken for the protection of the health and safety of the workers, as, for example, by requiring the employer to post in his establishment an abstract of the requirements of the law.

18. That, while it is recognised that very wide differences exist between the size and importance of one establishment and another, and that there may be special difficulties in countries or areas of a rural character where factories are widely scattered, it is desirable that, as far as possible, every establishment should be visited by an inspector for the purposes of general inspection not less frequently than once a year, in addition to any special visits that may be made for the purpose of investigating a particular complaint or for other purposes ; and that large establishments and establishments of which the management is unsatisfactory from the point of view of the protection of the health and safety of the workers, and establishments in which dangerous or unhealthy processes are carried on, should be visited much more frequently. It is desirable that, when any serious irregularity has been discovered in an establishment, it should be revisited by the inspector at an early date with a view to ascertaining whether the irregularity has been remedied.

D. Co-operation of Employers and Workers

19. That it is essential that the workers and their representatives should be afforded every facility for communicating freely with the inspectors as to any defect or breach of the law in the establishment in which they are employed ; that every such complaint should as far as possible be investigated promptly by the inspector ; that the complaint should be treated as absolutely confidential by the inspector and that no intimation even should be given to the employer or his officials that the visit made for the purpose of investigation is being made in consequence of the receipt of a complaint.

20. That, with a view to securing full co-operation of the employers and workers and their respective organisations in promoting a high standard in regard to the conditions affecting the health and safety of the workers, it is desirable that the inspectorate should confer from time to time with the representatives of the employers' and workers' organisations as to the best measures to be taken for this purpose.

IV. INSPECTORS' REPORTS

21. That inspectors should regularly submit to their central authority reports framed on uniform lines dealing with their work and its results, and that the said authority should publish an annual report as soon as possible and in any case within one year after the end of the year to which it relates, containing a general survey of the information furnished by the inspectors ; that the calendar year should be uniformly adopted for these reports.

22. That the annual general report should contain a list of the laws and regulations relating to conditions of work made during the year which it covers.

23. That this annual report should also give the statistical tables necessary in order to provide all information on the organisation and work of the inspectorate and on the results obtained. The information supplied should as far as possible state :

(a) the strength and organisation of the staff of the inspectorate ;

- (b) the number of establishments covered by the laws and regulations, classified by industries and indicating the number of workers employed (men, women, young persons, children) ;
- (c) the number of visits of inspection made for each class of establishment with an indication of the number of workers employed in the establishments inspected (the number of workers being taken to be the number employed at the time of the first visit of the year), and the number of establishments inspected more than once during the year ;
- (d) the number of and nature of breaches of the laws and regulations brought before the competent authorities and the number and nature of the convictions by the competent authority ;
- (e) the number, nature and the cause of accidents and occupational diseases notified, tabulated according to class of establishment.

SIXTH SESSION
(Geneva, 16 June-5 July 1924)

Recommendation 21

Recommendation concerning the Development of Facilities for the Utilisation of Workers' Spare Time

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Sixth Session on 16 June 1924, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the development of facilities for the utilisation of workers' leisure, the first item in the agenda of the Session, and adopts this fifth day of July of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Utilisation of Spare Time Recommendation, 1924, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Whereas in adopting at its First Session, held at Washington, a Convention on hours of work, the General Conference of the International Labour Organisation had as one of its principal aims to secure for workers, beyond the necessary hours for sleep, an adequate period during which such workers could do as they please, or, in other words, an adequate period of spare time ; and

Whereas during such spare time workers have the opportunity of developing freely, according to their individual tastes, their physical, intellectual and moral powers, and such development is of great value from the point of view of the progress of civilisation ; and

Whereas a well-directed use of this spare time, by affording to the worker the means for pursuing more varied interests, and by securing relaxation from the strain placed upon him by his ordinary work, may even increase the productive capacity of the worker and increase his output, and may thus help to obtain a maximum of efficiency from the eight-hour day ; and

Whereas while giving full weight to the customs prevalent in the different countries and to local circumstances, it may nevertheless be useful to lay down the principles and methods which at the present time seem generally best adapted to secure the best use of periods of spare time, and it may also be instructive to make known for the benefit of all countries what has been done in this direction ; and

Whereas the value of this information is particularly great at the moment when the ratification of the Convention on hours of work is being considered by the Members of the International Labour Organisation ;

The General Conference makes the recommendations hereinafter appearing :

I. Preservation of Spare Time

Whereas it is agreed that in countries where limitations have been placed on hours of work by law, by collective agreement or otherwise, if all the benefits which may be expected from such measures are to be secured both for the wage earners and for the community, steps must be taken to ensure that the workers shall have the undiminished enjoyment of the hours of spare time so secured to them as aforesaid ; and

Whereas it is important that, on the one hand, the workers should fully appreciate the value of the periods of spare time which have been secured to them and should do their utmost, in all circumstances, to prevent this spare time from being encroached upon, and, on the other hand, that employers should always aim at establishing wages corresponding sufficiently with the needs of the workers to make it unnecessary for them to have recourse during their periods of spare time to additional hours of paid work ; and

Whereas prohibitions against the continuance of paid work in their own occupation, for the same or another employer, in excess of the legal working day, are recognised as being difficult to enforce, and may even, at times, seem to infringe the workers' right of using their periods of spare time as they choose, the Conference nevertheless considers that attention should be drawn to the steps which have been taken in this direction in a number of countries ;

The Conference recommends that Governments should encourage and facilitate the conclusion of collective agreements which will ensure a normal standard of living to workers in exchange for the legal hours of work, and which will determine, by voluntary agreement between employers and workers, the measures to be taken to prevent workers from having recourse to additional paid work.

And whereas it is agreed that every facility should be given to the workers to enable them to make the best use of their periods of spare time so secured to them as aforesaid, the Conference recommends :

(a) that each Member, whilst having due regard to the requirements of different industries, local customs, and the varying capacities and habits of the different kinds of workers, should consider the means of so arranging the working day as to make the periods of spare time as continuous as possible ;

- (b) that by means of a well-conceived transport system and by affording special facilities in regard to fares and timetables, workers should be enabled to reduce to the minimum the time spent in travelling between their homes and their work, and that employers' and workers' organisations should be extensively consulted by public transport authorities or private transport undertakings as to the best means of securing such a system.

II. Spare Time and Social Hygiene

Whereas the utilisation of the workers' periods of spare time cannot be separated from the general measures adopted by the community for promoting the health and welfare of all classes of society, the Conference, without attempting to examine in detail each of the great welfare problems, the solution of which would contribute to improving the workers' status, recommends to the Members :

- (a) the encouragement of individual hygiene by the provision of public baths, swimming pools, etc. ;
- (b) legislative or private action against the misuse of alcohol, against tuberculosis, venereal disease and gambling.

III. Housing Policy

Whereas it is of advantage to the workers and to the whole community to encourage everything tending to the harmonious development of the workers' family life ; and

Whereas the most effective means of protecting the workers from the aforesaid dangers is to place within their reach a proper home ;

The Conference recommends the increase in number, if necessary in co-operation with the national or local authorities concerned, of healthy dwellings at low rentals in garden cities or urban communities, under proper conditions of health and comfort.

IV. Institutions for the Utilisation of Spare Time

1. Without attempting to differentiate between the innumerable institutions which afford to the workers opportunities for the free exercise of their personal tastes, the development of which is dependent on the manners and customs of each country or district, the Conference nevertheless draws the attention of the Members to the necessity of avoiding misplaced activities resulting from the establishment of institutions not called for by some well-defined need. The Conference desires to emphasise the importance of taking into account in the establishment and development of these institutions, the desires, the tastes and the special requirements of the workers for whose use they are designed.

2. At the same time, among the institutions which may both assist full and harmonious development of the individual and of the family and contribute to the general progress of the community, the Conference recommends those schemes which have for their object :

- (a) the improvement of the workers' domestic economy and family life (gardens, allotments, poultry keeping, etc.) which combine the benefits of recreation with the feeling that some addition, however slight, is being made to the family resources ;
- (b) the development of the physical health and strength of the workers by means of games and sports which enable young workers who are working under the highly specialised conditions prevalent in modern industry to give free play to their energies in a manner which encourages initiative and the spirit of emulation ;
- (c) the extension of technical, domestic and general education (libraries, reading-rooms, lectures, technical and general courses, etc.) which meets one of the workers' most keenly felt needs and affords the best means of progress to industrial communities.

3. The Conference further recommends that Members should encourage these forms of activity by the grant of subventions to organisations concerned with the moral, intellectual and physical development of the workers.

V. Free Use of Institutions and Co-ordination of Local Action

Whereas for many years past the workers in the great industrial countries have always sought to ensure that they may live their lives outside the factory or workshop in complete freedom and independence, and they particularly resent any outside interference in their private affairs, and this feeling is so strong as to provoke opposition to any attempts to deal, either nationally or internationally, with the question of the use of spare time for fear that it may possibly restrain their liberty ; and

Whereas the Conference, while expressing appreciation of the motives which have led to the creation of institutions for the encouragement of the wise use of the spare time of the workers, suggests that Members should draw the attention of the promoters of such institutions to the necessity of safeguarding the individual freedom of the workers against any system or scheme which has any tendency towards compelling the workers directly or indirectly to use any particular institution ; and themselves, the Conference, while recognising that in many cases where public authorities or employers lend financial or other assistance for the encouragement of allotments, games or educational institutions, and consequently have a legitimate claim to take part in their management, recommends that every care should be taken to avoid any encroachment on the liberty of those for whose use such institutions are intended.

While not contemplating any systematic organisation of spare time occupations, but having in mind a number of successful efforts made to assist them, the Conference further recommends that each Member should consider the possibility of promoting the formation of district or local committees, composed of representatives of the public authorities, of employers' and workers' organisations, and of co-operative associations, for co-ordinating and harmonising the activities of the various institutions providing means of recreation.

The Conference further recommends to the Members that an active and effective propaganda should be undertaken in each country for the purpose of educating opinion in favour of the proper use of the spare time of the workers.

Recommendation 22Recommendation concerning the Minimum Scale of Workmen's Compensation

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Seventh Session on 19 May 1925, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the minimum scale of workmen's compensation, which is included in the first item of the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation, adopts this tenth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Workmen's Compensation (Minimum Scale) Recommendation, 1925, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

The General Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I

Where incapacity for work results from the injury, the national laws or regulations should provide for the payment of compensation at rates not lower than those hereinafter indicated :

(1) In the case of permanent total incapacity, a periodical payment equivalent to two-thirds of the workman's annual earnings ;

(2) In case of permanent partial incapacity, a proportion of the periodical payment due in the event of permanent total incapacity calculated in reference to the reduction of earning power caused by the injury ;

(3) In case of temporary total incapacity, a daily or weekly payment equivalent to two-thirds of the workman's basic earnings as calculated for purposes of compensation ;

(4) In case of temporary partial incapacity, a proportion of the daily or weekly payment payable in the case of temporary total incapacity calculated in reference to the reduction of earning power caused by the injury.

Where compensation is paid in a lump sum, the sum should not be less than the capitalised value of the periodical payment which would be payable under the foregoing paragraphs.

II

Where the injury is such that the workman requires the constant help of another person, additional compensation should be paid to the workman, which should not be less than half the amount payable in the case of permanent total incapacity.

III

Where death results from the injury, those entitled to be regarded as dependants for purposes of compensation should include at least the following :

- (1) deceased's husband or wife ;
- (2) deceased's children under eighteen years of age, or above that age if, by reason of physical or mental infirmity, they are incapable of earning ;
- (3) deceased's ascendants (parents or grandparents), provided that they are without means of subsistence and were dependent on the deceased, or the deceased was under an obligation to contribute towards their maintenance ;
- (4) deceased's grandchildren and brothers and sisters, if below eighteen years of age, or above that age if, by reason of physical or mental infirmity, they are incapable of earning, and if they are orphans, or if their parents, though still living, are incapable of providing for them.

Where compensation is paid by means of periodical payments, the maximum total of the yearly sum payable to all the dependants should not be less than two-thirds of the deceased's annual earnings.

Where compensation is paid in a lump sum, the maximum sum payable to all the dependants should not be less than the capitalised value of periodical payments equivalent to two-thirds of the deceased's annual earnings.

IV

The vocational re-education of injured workmen should be provided by such means as the national laws or regulations deem most suitable.

Governments should encourage institutions which undertake such re-education.

Recommendation 23

Recommendation concerning Jurisdiction in Disputes on Workmen's Compensation

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Seventh Session on 19 May 1925, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to jurisdiction in disputes on workmen's compensation, which is included in the first item of the agenda of the Session, and

adopts this tenth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Workmen's Compensation (Jurisdiction) Recommendation, 1925, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Whereas disputes on workmen's compensation turn not only on the interpretation of laws and regulations, but also on questions of an occupational character requiring a thorough knowledge of working conditions, for example, questions as to the nature of the undertaking, the kind of risk inherent in it, the relation between the workman's employment and the accident, the method of computing earnings, the degree of incapacity for work, the possibility of the workman's adapting himself to some other occupation,

And whereas workmen and employers have the necessary knowledge and experience on these questions, and disputes on compensation matters might be more equitably settled if they were members of or associated with the courts which have to decide such disputes,

And whereas it is possible in many countries to secure the association of employers and workmen with such courts, as members or otherwise, without departing radically from the existing judicial system,

The General Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I

That every dispute relating to workmen's compensation should preferably be dealt with by a special court or board of arbitration comprising, with or without the addition of regular judges, an equal number of employers' and workmen's representatives appointed to act as adjudicators by their respective organisations or on the nomination of such organisations or comprising employers' and workmen's representatives drawn from other social institutions or elected by separate electoral bodies of employers and workmen.

II

That, where disputes relating to workmen's compensation are dealt with by the ordinary courts of law, such courts shall be required, on the request of either of the parties concerned, to hear employers' and workmen's representatives as experts in any case where the dispute involves a question of an occupational character, and in particular the question of the degree of incapacity for work.

Recommendation 24

Recommendation concerning Workmen's Compensation for Occupational Diseases

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Seventh Session on 19 May 1925, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to workmen's compensation for occupational diseases, which is included in the first item of the agenda of the Session, and

Recommendation 27

Recommendation concerning the Repatriation of Masters and Apprentices

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation.

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Ninth Session on 7 June 1926, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the repatriation of masters and apprentices, which is included in the first item of the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Repatriation (Ship Masters and Apprentices) Recommendation, 1926, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

The Conference recommends that the national Governments shall take steps to provide for the repatriation of masters and duly indentured apprentices, who are not covered by the terms of the Convention on the repatriation of seamen adopted by the General Conference at its Ninth Session.

Recommendation 28

Recommendation concerning the General Principles for the Inspection of the Conditions of Work of Seamen

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Ninth Session on 7 June 1926, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the general principles for the inspection of the conditions of work of seamen, the question forming the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

adopts this twenty-second day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Labour Inspection (Seamen) Recommendation, 1926, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Whereas among the methods and principles of special and urgent importance for the physical, moral and intellectual welfare of the workers, the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation makes it a duty of the International Labour Organisation to devote special attention to the inspection of conditions of work in order to ensure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the workers ;

Whereas the International Labour Conference at its Fifth Session (October 1923) adopted a " Recommendation concerning the general principles for the organisation of systems of inspection to secure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the workers " ;

Whereas that Recommendation is based essentially on the experience gained in the inspection of industrial establishments and it would be particularly difficult to apply or even to adapt it to the work of seamen, the nature and conditions of which are essentially different from those of work in a factory ;

Whereas the inspection of the conditions under which seamen work will increase in importance in proportion as legislation for the protection of seamen is developed in the different countries and as further conventions concerning the working conditions of seamen are adopted by the Conference ;

Whereas for the foregoing reasons it is desirable, in order to place the experience already gained at the disposal of the Members with a view to assisting them in the institution or reorganisation of their systems of inspection of the conditions under which seamen work, to indicate the general principles which practice shows to be best calculated to ensure the enforcement of measures for the protection of seamen ;

The General Conference therefore recommends that each Member of the Organisation should take the following principles into consideration :

I. SCOPE OF INSPECTION

1. That the principal duty of the authority or authorities responsible in each country for the inspection of the conditions under which seamen work should be to secure the enforcement of all laws and regulations dealing with such conditions and the protection of seamen in the exercise of their profession ;

2. That, in so far as it may be considered desirable and possible, by reason of the experience they gain in carrying out their principal duties, to entrust the inspecting authorities with other secondary duties of a social nature which may vary according to the conceptions, customs, or traditions prevailing in the different countries, such duties may be assigned to them in addition to their principal duties on condition that—

- (a) they do not in any way interfere with the performance of the inspectors' principal duties ;
- (b) they do not in any way prejudice the authority and impartiality which are necessary to inspectors in their relations with shipowners and seamen.

II. ORGANISATION OF INSPECTION

The Conference recommends :

3. That, wherever it is compatible with administrative practice and in order to secure the greatest possible uniformity in the enforcement of the laws and regulations relating to the conditions under which seamen work, the different services or bodies responsible for supervising the enforcement of such laws and regulations should be centralised under a single authority ;

4. That, if existing administrative practice will not admit of such centralisation of supervision, the different services or authorities whose functions are wholly or partly concerned with the protection of seamen should be enabled to benefit by one another's experience and to regulate their methods of work according to such common principles as may be considered the most effective ;

5. That for this purpose close liaison and constant collaboration should be established between these different services or authorities, so far as is compatible with administrative practice and by the means considered the most suitable in each country (exchange of reports and information, periodical conferences, etc.) ; and

6. That the different services or authorities responsible for supervising the conditions under which seamen work should keep in touch with the authorities responsible for factory inspection, in matters of mutual concern.

III. REPORTS OF THE INSPECTION AUTHORITIES

The Conference recommends :

7. That an annual general report on the supervision of the conditions under which seamen work should be published by the central authority or by the collaboration of the different authorities responsible for carrying out such supervision ;

8. That this annual report should contain a list of the national laws and regulations affecting the conditions under which seamen work and their supervision, together with any amendments thereto, which have come into operation during the year ;

9. That it should also contain statistical tables with the necessary comments on the organisation and work of inspection and giving information, as far as may be possible and compatible with national administrative practice, on the following points :

- (a) the number of vessels in commission subject to the various forms of inspection, the vessels being classified according to type (mechanically propelled vessels and sailing vessels) and each category being subdivided according to the purpose for which these vessels are used ;
- (b) the number of seamen actually engaged on board the vessels of each class ;
- (c) the number of vessels visited by the inspectors with an indication of the strength of the crews ;
- (d) the number and nature of breaches of the law or regulations ascertained by the inspectors and of the penalties imposed ;
- (e) the number, nature, and causes of accidents occurring to seamen during their work ;
- (f) the means adopted for the enforcement of the provisions of international labour Conventions which relate to the conditions under which seamen work, and the extent of the compliance with such provisions, either in the form of the annual report transmitted to the International Labour Office under Article 22 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation or in some other appropriate form.

IV. RIGHTS, POWERS AND DUTIES OF INSPECTORS

(a) Rights of inspection.

The Conference recommends :

10. That the inspection authorities, on proof of their identity, should be empowered by national law :

- (a) to visit without previous notice any vessel flying the national flag by day or by night, in national or foreign territorial waters, and, in exceptional cases fixed by national law and by authorisation of the maritime authority, at sea, provided, however, that the time and manner of such visits should in practice be fixed so as to avoid as far as possible any serious inconvenience to the working of the vessel ;
- (b) to question without witnesses the crew and any other persons whose evidence may be considered desirable, to make any enquiries which may be judged necessary, and to require production of any of the ship's papers or documents which the laws or regulations require to be kept in so far as such papers or documents relate to the matters subject to inspection ;

11. That national law should provide that the inspectors should be bound by oath, or by any other method which conforms with the administrative practice or customs in each country, not to disclose commercial secrets which may come to their knowledge in the course of their duties, under pain of criminal penalties or appropriate disciplinary measures.

(b) Compulsory powers.

The Conference recommends :

12. That the inspection authorities should be empowered, in serious cases where the health or safety of the crew is endangered, to prohibit by proper authorisation of the maritime authority a vessel from leaving port until the necessary measures have been taken on board to comply with the law, subject to appeal to higher administrative authority or to the court of competent jurisdiction, according to the law in the different countries ;

13. That prohibiting a vessel from leaving port should be considered a measure of exceptional gravity, which should only be employed as a last resort when the other legal means at the disposal of the inspection authority to ensure respect for the law have been used without effect ;

14. That the inspection authorities should be empowered in special cases to issue orders for securing observance of the laws and regulations governing the conditions under which seamen work, subject to appeal to higher administrative authority or to the court of competent jurisdiction, according to the law in each country ;

15. That the central authority should be empowered in special cases to grant exemption from any specified requirement of any law or regulation governing the conditions under which seamen work, if such authority is satisfied that that requirement has been substantially complied with, or that compliance with the requirement is unnecessary in the circumstances of the case, and that the action taken, or provision made, as regards the subject matter of the requirement is as effective as, or more effective than, actual compliance with the requirement.

(c) Right to call for an inspection.

The Conference recommends :

16. That national law should provide that the master of a vessel should be entitled to call for an inspection in all cases where he considers it necessary ;

17. That national law should provide that the members of the crew of a vessel should also be entitled, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, to call for an inspection on any matters relating to health, the safety of the vessel, or the rules affecting the conditions under which seamen work.

(d) Co-operation of shipowners and seamen with the inspection authorities.

The Conference recommends :

18. That, so far as is compatible with administrative practice in each country, and by such methods as may be considered most appropriate, shipowners and seamen should be called upon to co-operate in the supervision of the enforcement of the laws and regulations relating to the conditions under which seamen work.

In particular, the Conference draws the attention of the different countries to the following methods of co-operation :

- (a) it is essential that every facility should be afforded to seamen freely to bring to the notice of the inspection authorities either directly or through their duly authorised representatives any infringement of the law on board the vessel on which such seamen are employed, that the inspection authority should as far as possible promptly make an enquiry into the subject matter of any such complaint, that such complaints should be treated by the inspection authority as absolutely confidential ;
- (b) with a view to ensuring complete co-operation by ship-owners and seamen and their respective organisations with the inspection authorities, and in order to improve conditions affecting the health and safety of seamen, it is desirable that the inspection authorities should from time to time consult the representatives of shipowners' and seamen's organisations as to the best means of attaining these ends. It is also desirable that joint committees of shipowners and seamen should be set up, and that they should be enabled to co-operate with the different services responsible for supervising the enforcement of the laws and regulations governing the conditions under which seamen work.

The Conference recommends :

19. That only such persons should be appointed inspectors as command the full confidence both of the shipowners and of the seamen, and that such persons should therefore be required to possess :

- (a) the qualities necessary to ensure absolute impartiality in the performance of their duties ;
- (b) the technical qualifications necessary for the performance of their duties ;

It is desirable that the inspection service should include men who have served at sea whose appointment whether in a permanent or temporary capacity should be at the discretion of the administrative authority ;

20. That, when necessary, inspectors should be assisted in their duties by competent experts who command the full confidence of the shipowners and seamen ;

21. That inspectors should be public servants whose status renders them independent of changes of Government ;

22. That they should be prohibited from having any financial interest whatsoever in the undertakings subject to their inspection.

(f) Other duties.

The Conference recommends :

23. That as, by reason of the nature of their duties, inspectors have special opportunities of observing the practical results of the operation of the laws and regulations governing the conditions under which seamen work, they should be called upon, so far as it is compatible with the administrative methods in each country, to assist in improving legislation for the protection of seamen and to give the most effectual help possible in promoting the prevention of accidents ;

24. That, so far as is compatible with administrative practice in each country, they should be called upon to take part in enquiries into shipwrecks and accidents on board ship, and that they should be empowered, where necessary, to submit reports on the results of such enquiries ;

25. That, so far as is compatible with the administrative methods in each country, they should be called upon to collaborate in supplying information preparatory to the drafting of laws and regulations for the protection of seamen.

Article 2

1. The compulsory sickness insurance system shall apply to manual and non-manual workers, including apprentices, employed by industrial undertakings and commercial undertakings, out-workers and domestic servants.

2. It shall, nevertheless, be open to any Member to make such exceptions in its national laws or regulations as it deems necessary in respect of—

4. This Convention shall not apply to seamen and sea fishermen for whose insurance against sickness provision may be made by a decision of a later Session of the Conference.

Article 3

1. An insured person who is rendered incapable of work by reason of the abnormal state of his bodily or mental health shall be entitled to a cash benefit for at least the first twenty-six weeks of incapacity from and including the first day for which benefit is payable.

2. The payment of this benefit may be made conditional on the insured person having first complied with a qualifying period and, on the expiry of the same, with a waiting period of not more than three days.

3. Cash benefit may be withheld in the following cases :

- (a) where in respect of the same illness the insured person receives compensation from another source to which he is entitled by law ; benefit shall only be wholly or partially withheld in so far as such compensation is equal to or less than the amount of the benefit provided by the present Article ;
- (b) as long as the insured person does not by the fact of his incapacity suffer any loss of the normal product of his labour, or is maintained at the expense of the insurance funds or from public funds ; nevertheless, cash benefits shall only partially be withheld when the insured person, although thus personally maintained, has family responsibilities ;
- (c) as long as the insured person while ill refuses, without valid reason, to comply with the doctor's orders, or the instructions relating to the conduct of insured persons while ill, or voluntarily and without authorisation removes himself from the supervision of the insurance institutions.

Institutions founded by private initiative must be specially approved by the competent public authority.

2. It is open to national laws or regulations to decide as to a financial contribution by the competent public authority.

Article 9

A right of appeal shall be granted to the insured person in case of dispute concerning his right to benefit.

Article 10

1. It shall be open to States which comprise large and very thinly populated areas not to apply the Convention in districts where, by reason of the small density and wide dispersion of the population and the inadequacy of the means of communication, the organisation of sickness insurance, in accordance with this Convention, is impossible.

2. The States which intend to avail themselves of the exception provided by this Article shall give notice of their intention when communicating their formal ratification to the Director-General of the International Labour Office. They shall inform the International Labour Office as to what districts they apply the exception and indicate their reasons therefor.

3. In Europe it shall be open only to Finland to avail itself of the exception contained in this Article.

Article 13

Recommendation 29

Recommendation concerning the General Principles of Sickness Insurance

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Tenth Session on 25 May 1927, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the principles of sickness insurance, the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this fifteenth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Sickness Insurance Recommendation, 1927, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

Whereas the maintenance of a healthy and vigorous labour supply is of capital importance not only for the workers themselves, but also for communities which desire to develop their productive capacity ; and

Whereas this development is only attainable by constantly and systematically applying provident measures to obviate or make good any loss of the workers' productive efficiency ; and

Whereas the best provident measure for these purposes is to establish a system of social insurance which confers clearly defined rights on the persons to whom it applies ;

Therefore the General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having adopted Conventions concerning, of the one part, sickness insurance for workers in industry and commerce and domestic servants, and, of the other part, sickness insurance for agricultural workers, which lay down minimum conditions which must be complied with from the beginning by every system of sickness insurance, and

Considering that, in order to put the experience already gained at the disposal of the Members with a view to assisting them in the institution or completion of their sickness insurance services, it is desirable to indicate a number of the general principles which practice shows to be the best calculated to promote a just, effective and appropriate organisation of sickness insurance,

Recommends that each Member should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I. SCOPE OF APPLICATION

1. Sickness insurance should include within its scope, without discrimination as to age or sex, every person who performs work by way of his occupation and under a contract of service or apprenticeship.

2. If, however, it is considered desirable to fix age-limits by reason of the fact that workers above or below such limits are already protected by law or otherwise, such limits should not apply to young persons who cannot normally be considered as dependent upon their family or to workers who have not reached the old-age pension age ; and if exceptions are made in respect of workers whose earnings or income exceed a specified amount, such exceptions should only apply to workers whose earnings or income are such that they may reasonably be expected to make their own provision for sickness.

II. BENEFITS

A. Cash Benefits.

3. In order to secure that an insured person who is rendered incapable of work by sickness may recover his health as early as possible, the cash benefit representing compensation for lost wages should be adequate.

For this purpose the statutory scale of benefit should ordinarily be fixed in relation to the normal wage which is taken into account for the purposes of compulsory insurance, and should be a substantial proportion of such wage, regard being had to family responsibilities ; but in countries where the workers have adequate facilities, of which they are accustomed to take advantage to procure for themselves additional benefit by other means, a uniform scale of benefit may be appropriate.

4. The statutory benefit should be paid for at least the first twenty-six weeks of incapacity as from and including the first day for which benefit is payable ; nevertheless, the period for which benefit is payable should be increased to one year in cases of serious and chronic illness and for insured persons who will not receive any invalidity benefit on the expiry of their right to sickness benefit.

5. An insurance institution which can show that it is in a sound financial position should be authorised—

- (a) to increase the statutory scale of benefit up to specified amounts either for all insured persons or for certain groups of the same, in particular insured persons with family responsibilities ;
- (b) to prolong the statutory period during which benefit is payable.

6. In countries where burial expenses are not, customarily or by law, covered by some other insurance, sickness insurance institutions should, on the death of an insured person, pay a benefit in respect of the cost of decent burial ; they should also be empowered to pay such a benefit in respect of the burial expenses of the insured person's dependants.

B. Benefits in Kind.

7. Treatment by a fully qualified doctor and the supply of proper and sufficient medicines and appliances should be granted to an insured person from the beginning of his illness and for so long as the state of his health requires it ; the insured person should be entitled to these benefits free of charge from the beginning of his illness and at least until the expiry of the period prescribed for the grant of sickness benefit.

8. In addition to treatment by a fully qualified doctor and the supply of proper and sufficient medicines and appliances, there should be available for the insured person, as and when local and financial conditions admit, facilities for specialist services, as well as dental treatment, and for treatment in hospital, where his family circumstances necessitate it or his illness requires a mode of treatment which can only be given in hospital.

9. While an insured person is maintained in hospital, the insurance institution should pay to his dependants the whole or a part of the sickness benefit which would have been payable to him had he not been so maintained.

10. With a view to ensuring good conditions for the maintenance in health of the insured person and his family, members of the insured person's family living in his home and dependent upon him should be furnished with medical benefit, as and when it may be possible and practicable to do so.

11. Insurance institutions should be empowered to avail themselves, on equitable conditions, of the services of such doctors as they need.

In urban centres, and within specified geographical limits, an insured person should be entitled to choose a doctor from among those at the disposal of the insurance institution, unless this would involve considerable extra expense to the institution.

C. Sickness Prevention.

12. As most diseases can be prevented, an alert policy of prevention is calculated to avert loss of productive efficiency, to render available for other purposes the financial resources which are absorbed by avoidable illness, and to promote the material, intellectual and moral well-being of the community.

Sickness insurance should assist in inculcating the practice of the rules of hygiene among the workers. It should give preventive treatment and grant the same to as large a number of individuals as possible as soon as the premonitory symptoms of disease appear. It should be capable of contributing towards the prevention of the spread of disease and the improvement of the national health, in pursuance of a general policy co-ordinating all the various activities towards these ends.

III. ORGANISATION OF INSURANCE

13. Insurance institutions should be administered, under the supervision of the competent public authority in accordance with the principles of self-government, and shall not be carried on for profit. The insured persons being those who are the most directly interested in the working of the insurance scheme should, through elected representatives, have an important part in the management of the insurance system.

14. A good organisation of medical benefit and, in particular, the efficient provision and utilisation of medical equipment embodying the results of scientific progress can be most easily secured—except in certain special circumstances—by concentrating action on a territorial basis.

IV. FINANCIAL RESOURCES

15. The financial resources for the insurance scheme should be provided by contributions from the insured persons and contributions from employers. The provision thus jointly made can be supplemented to advantage by contributions from public funds, especially for the purpose of improving the health of the people.

With a view to securing the stability of the insurance system, reserve funds, appropriate to the peculiar circumstances of the system, should be constituted.

V. SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

16. With a view to their being settled rapidly and inexpensively, disputes as to benefits between insured persons and insurance institutions should be referred to special tribunals, the members of which include judges or assessors who are specially cognisant of the purposes of insurance and the needs of insured persons.

VI. EXCEPTION FOR SPARSELY POPULATED TERRITORIES

17. States which, by reason of the small density of their population or of the inadequacy of the means of communication, cannot organise sickness insurance in certain parts of their territory should—

- (a) establish in such parts of their territory a sanitary service adequate to the local conditions ;
- (b) examine periodically whether the conditions required for the introduction of compulsory sickness insurance in the parts of their territory previously excepted from the compulsory scheme are fulfilled.

VII. SEAMEN AND SEA FISHERMEN

18. This Recommendation shall not apply to seamen and sea fishermen.

ELEVENTH SESSION
(Geneva, 30 May-16 June 1928)

Convention 26

Convention concerning the Creation of Minimum Wage-Fixing Machinery ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Eleventh Session on 30 May 1928, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to minimum wage-fixing machinery, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention, adopts this sixteenth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight the following Convention, which may be cited as the Minimum Wage-Fixing Machinery Convention, 1928, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Article 1

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation which ratifies this Convention undertakes to create or maintain machinery whereby minimum rates of wages can be fixed for workers employed in certain of the trades or parts of trades (and in particular in home working trades) in which no arrangements exist for the effective regulation of wages by collective agreement or otherwise and wages are exceptionally low.

2. For the purpose of this Convention the term "trades" includes manufacture and commerce.

Article 2

Each Member which ratifies this Convention shall be free to decide, after consultation with the organisations, if any, of workers and employers in the trade or part of trade concerned, in which trades or parts of trades, and in particular in which home working trades or parts of such trades, the minimum wage-fixing machinery referred to in Article 1 shall be applied.

¹ Date of coming into force : 14 June 1930.

Article 3

1. Each Member which ratifies this Convention shall be free to decide the nature and form of the minimum wage-fixing machinery, and the methods to be followed in its operation :

2. Provided that—

- (1) before the machinery is applied in a trade or part of trade, representatives of the employers and workers concerned, including representatives of their respective organisations, if any, shall be consulted as well as any other persons, being specially qualified for the purpose by their trade or functions, whom the competent authority deems it expedient to consult ;
- (2) the employers and workers concerned shall be associated in the operation of the machinery, in such manner and to such extent, but in any case in equal numbers and on equal terms, as may be determined by national laws or regulations ;
- (3) minimum rates of wages which have been fixed shall be binding on the employers and workers concerned so as not to be subject to abatement by them by individual agreement, nor, except with general or particular authorisation of the competent authority, by collective agreement.

Article 4

1. Each Member which ratifies this Convention shall take the necessary measures, by way of a system of supervision and sanctions, to ensure that the employers and workers concerned are informed of the minimum rates of wages in force and that wages are not paid at less than these rates in cases where they are applicable.

2. A worker to whom the minimum rates are applicable and who has been paid wages at less than these rates shall be entitled to recover, by judicial or other legalised proceedings, the amount by which he has been underpaid, subject to such limitation of time as may be determined by national laws or regulations.

Article 5

Each Member which ratifies this Convention shall communicate annually to the International Labour Office a general statement giving a list of the trades or parts of trades in which the minimum wage-fixing machinery has been applied, indicating the methods as well as the results of the application of the machinery and, in summary form, the approximate numbers of workers covered, the minimum rates of wages fixed, and the more important of the other conditions, if any, established relevant to the minimum rates.

Article 6

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 7

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 8

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 9

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of five years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 10

At least once in ten years, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision or modification.

Article 11

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

Recommendation 30

Recommendation concerning the Application of Minimum Wage-Fixing Machinery

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Eleventh Session on 30 May 1928, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to minimum wage-fixing machinery, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this sixteenth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Minimum Wage-Fixing Machinery Recommendation, 1928, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

A

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having adopted a Convention concerning the creation of minimum wage-fixing machinery, and Desiring to supplement this Convention by putting on record for the guidance of the Members certain general principles which, as present practice and experience show, produce the most satisfactory results,

Recommends that each Member should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I

(1) In order to ensure that each Member ratifying the Convention is in possession of the information necessary for a decision upon the application of minimum wage-fixing machinery, the wages actually paid and the arrangements, if any, for the regulation of wages should be ascertained in respect of any trade or part of trade to which employers or workers therein request the application of the machinery and furnish information which shows prima facie that no arrangements exist for the effective regulation of wages and that wages are exceptionally low.

(2) Without prejudice to the discretion left to the Members by the Convention to decide in which trades or parts of trades in their respective countries it is expedient to apply minimum wage-fixing machinery, special regard might usefully be had to trades or parts of trades in which women are ordinarily employed.

II

(1) The minimum wage-fixing machinery, whatever form it may take (for instance, trade boards for individual trades, general boards for groups of trades, compulsory arbitration tribunals), should operate by way of investigation into the relevant conditions in the trade or part of trade concerned and consultation with the interests primarily and principally affected, that is to say, the employers and workers in the trade or part of trade, whose views on all matters relating to the fixing of the minimum rates of wages should in any case be solicited and be given full and equal consideration.

(2) (a) To secure greater authority for the rates that may be fixed, it should be the general policy that the employers and workers concerned, through representatives equal in number or having equal voting strength, should jointly take a direct part in the deliberations and decisions of the wage-fixing body ; in any case, where representation is accorded to one side, the other side should be represented on the same footing. The wage-fixing body should also include one or more independent persons whose votes can ensure effective decisions being reached in the event of the votes of the employers' and workers' representatives being equally divided. Such independent persons should, as far as possible, be selected in agreement with or after consultation with the employers' and workers' representatives on the wage-fixing body.

(b) In order to ensure that the employers' and workers' representatives shall be persons having the confidence of those whose interests they respectively represent, the employers and workers concerned should be given a voice as far as is practicable in the circumstances in the selection of their representatives, and if any organisations of the employers and workers exist these should in any case be invited to submit names of persons recommended by them for appointment on the wage-fixing body.

(c) The independent person or persons mentioned in paragraph (a) should be selected from among men or women recognised as possessing the necessary qualifications for their duties and as being dissociated from any interest in the trade or part of trade concerned which might be calculated to put their impartiality in question.

(d) Wherever a considerable proportion of women are employed, provision should be made as far as possible for the inclusion of women among the workers' representatives and of one or more women among the independent persons mentioned in paragraph (a).

III

For the purpose of determining the minimum rates of wages to be fixed, the wage-fixing body should in any case take account of the necessity of enabling the workers concerned to maintain a suitable standard of living. For this purpose regard should primarily be had to the rates of wages being paid for similar work in trades where the workers are adequately organised and have concluded effective collective agreements, or, if no such standard of reference is available in the circumstances, to the general level of wages prevailing in the country or in the particular locality.

Provision should be made for the review of the minimum rates of wages fixed by the wage-fixing bodies when this is desired by the workers or employers who are members of such bodies.

IV

For effectively protecting the wages of the workers concerned and safeguarding the employers affected against the possibility of unfair competition, the measures to be taken to ensure that wages are not paid at less than the minimum rates which have been fixed should include :

- (a) arrangements for informing the employers and workers of the rates in force ;
- (b) official supervision of the rates actually being paid; and
- (c) penalties for infringements of the rates in force and measures for preventing such infringements.

(1) In order that the workers, who are less likely than the employers to have their own means of acquainting themselves with the wage-fixing body's decisions, may be kept informed of the minimum rates at which they are to be paid, employers might be required to display full statements of the rates in force in readily accessible positions on the premises where the workers are employed, or in the case of home workers on the premises where the work is given out or returned on completion or wages paid.

(2) A sufficient staff of inspectors should be employed, with powers analogous to those proposed for factory inspectors in the Recommendation concerning the general principles for the organisation of systems of inspection adopted by the General Conference in 1923, to make investigations among the employers and workers concerned with a view to ascertaining whether the minimum rates in force are in fact being paid and taking such steps as may be authorised to deal with infringements of the rates.

As a means of enabling the inspectors adequately to carry out these duties, employers might be required to keep complete and authentic records of the wages paid by them, or in the case of home workers to keep a list of the workers with their addresses and provide them with wage books or other similar record containing such particulars as are necessary to ascertain if the wages actually paid correspond to the rates in force.

(3) In cases where the workers are not in general in a position individually to enforce, by judicial or other legalised proceedings, their rights to recover wages due at the minimum rates in force, such other measures should be provided as may be considered effective for preventing infringements of the rates.

B

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation thinks it right to call the attention of Governments to the principle affirmed by Article 41 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

TWELFTH SESSION
(Geneva, 30 May-21 June 1929)

Recommendation 31

Recommendation concerning the Prevention of Industrial Accidents

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twelfth Session on 30 May 1929, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the prevention of industrial accidents, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Prevention of Industrial Accidents Recommendation, 1929, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Whereas the protection of workers against injury arising out of their employment is instanced by the Preamble to the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation as one of the improvements in industrial conditions which are urgently required ;

Whereas industrial accidents not only cause suffering and distress among workers and their families, but also represent an important material loss to society in general ;

Whereas the International Labour Conference in 1923 adopted a Recommendation concerning the general principles for the organisation of systems of inspection, in which it is laid down inter alia that inspection, in order to become progressively more effective, "should be increasingly directed towards securing the adoption of the most suitable safety methods for preventing accidents and diseases with a view to rendering work less dangerous, more healthy, and even less exhausting, by the intelligent understanding, education and co-operation of all concerned " ;

Whereas it is desirable that these measures and methods which experience in the various countries has shown to be most effective in enabling the number of accidents to be reduced and their gravity mitigated should be put on record for the mutual advantage of the Members ;

Whereas a Resolution was adopted at the 1928 Session of the International Labour Conference in which the Conference declared its opinion that the time had come to attempt to reach a higher standard of safety by the development of new methods and that the greatest advance could be made on the lines of the Safety First Movement, although it could not supersede the action of the State in prescribing and enforcing regulations for the prevention of accidents ;

Considering that it is of the highest importance that all persons or bodies, including employers, workers, employers' and workers' organisations, Governments and the general public, should use their best endeavours and every means in their power to help to prevent industrial accidents ;

The General Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration for the prevention of accidents in industrial undertakings. The following in particular are considered as such :

- (a) mines, quarries, and other works for the extraction of minerals from the earth ;
- (b) industries in which articles are manufactured, altered, cleaned, repaired, ornamented, finished, adapted for sale, broken up or demolished, or in which materials are transformed ; including shipbuilding and the generation, transformation, and transmission of electricity or motive power of any kind ;
- (c) construction, reconstruction, maintenance, repair, alteration or demolition of any building, railway, tramway, harbour, dock, pier, canal, inland waterway, road, tunnel, bridge, viaduct, sewer, drain, well, telegraphic or telephonic installation, electrical undertaking, gas work, waterwork or other work of construction, as well as the preparation for or laying the foundations of any such work or structure ;
- (d) transport of passengers or goods by road, rail, sea or inland waterway, including the handling of goods at docks, quays, wharves or warehouses, but excluding transport by hand.

The Conference, considering further that the prevention of accidents is as necessary in agriculture as in industrial establishments, recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should apply the Recommendation to agriculture, taking into account the special conditions of agricultural work.

I

1. Whereas the foundations of the study of accident prevention are—

- (a) enquiry into the causes and circumstances of accidents,
- (b) the study, by means of statistics of accidents in each industry as a whole, of the special dangers which exist in the several industries, the "laws" determining the incidence of accidents and, by comparison over a series of years, the effect of measures taken to avoid them,

The Conference recommends that each Member should take the necessary steps, by means of legislative or administrative action, effectively to ensure the collection and utilisation of the above information.

The Conference also recommends that methodical investigation should be carried out in each country by public services assisted, where it appears desirable, by institutions or committees set up by individual branches of industry.

The public services should have recourse to the collaboration of the industrial organisations of employers and workers and of the services responsible for the supervision of accident prevention, as well as, where desirable, of technical associations and accident insurance institutions or companies.

It is also desirable that industrial associations of employers and workers should collaborate in the institutions for accident prevention in the individual branches of industry.

2. As experience and research have shown that the incidence and gravity of accidents do not depend merely upon the dangers inherent in the work or in the kind of equipment or the various appliances in use, but also on physical, physiological and psychological factors, the Conference recommends that in addition to the investigations mentioned in paragraph 1 in connection with material factors, these other factors should also be investigated.

3. Since the suitability of the worker for his work and the interest which he takes in his work are factors of primary importance for the promotion of safety, it is important that the Members should encourage scientific research into the best methods of vocational guidance and selection and their practical application.

4. Since it is important for the furtherance of accident prevention that the results of the investigations referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 should be made known as widely as possible, and since it is also desirable that the International Labour Office should be in possession of the information necessary to enable its work in connection with accident prevention to be extended, the Conference recommended that the more important results of the investigations should be communicated to the International Labour Office for use in its work and publications.

It is also desirable that there should be international consultation and exchange of results between the research institutions or organisations in the several industrial countries.

5. The Members should establish central departments to collect and collate statistics relating to industrial accidents and should communicate to the International Labour Office all available statistics on industrial accidents in their respective countries. They should also, with a view to the subsequent preparation of a Convention, keep in touch with the International Labour Office in framing and developing their industrial accident statistics, with a view to arriving at uniform bases which would as far as possible allow of a comparative study of the statistics of the different countries.

II

6. In view of the satisfactory results which experience in different countries has shown to follow from co-operation between all parties interested in the prevention of industrial accidents, particularly between employers and workers, it is important that the Members should do all in their power to develop and encourage such co-operation, as recommended in the Recommendation on systems of inspection adopted in 1923.

7. It is recommended that in every industry or branch of industry, so far as circumstances require, periodical conferences should be held between the State inspection service, or other competent bodies, and the representative organisations of employers and workers concerned : (a) to consider and review the position in the industry as regards the incidence and gravity of accidents, the working and effectiveness of the measures laid down by law, or agreed upon between the State or other competent bodies and representatives of the industry, or tried by individual employers, and (b) to discuss proposals for further improvement.

8. It is further recommended that the Members should actively and continuously encourage the adoption of measures for the promotion of safety, in particular (a) the establishment in the works of a safety organisation which should include arrangements for a works investigation of every accident occurring in the works, and the consideration of the methods to be adopted for preventing a recurrence ; the systematic supervision of the works, machinery and plant for the purpose of ensuring safety, and in particular of seeing that all safeguards and other safety appliances are maintained in proper order and position ; the explanation to new, and especially young, workers of the possible dangers of the work of the machinery or plant connected with their work ; the organisation of first aid and transport for injured workers ; and the encouragement of suggestions from the persons employed for rendering work safer ; (b) co-operation in the promotion of safety between the management and the workers in individual works, and of employers' and workers' organisations in the industry with each other and with the State and with other appropriate bodies by such methods and arrangements as may appear best adapted to the national conditions and aptitudes. The following methods are suggested as examples for consideration by those concerned : appointment of a safety supervisor for the works, establishment of works safety committees.

9. It is recommended that the Members should do all in their power to awaken and maintain the interest of the workers in the prevention of accidents and ensure their co-operation by means of lectures, publications, cinematograph films, visits to industrial establishments, and by such other means as they may find most appropriate.

10. It is recommended that the State should establish or promote the establishment of permanent safety exhibitions where the best appliances, arrangements and methods for preventing accidents and promoting safety can be seen (and in the case of machinery, seen in action) and advice and information given to employers, works officials, workers, students in the engineering and technical schools, and others.

11. In view of the fact that the workers, by their conduct in the factory, can and should contribute to a large extent to the success of protective measures, the State should use its influence to secure (a) that employers should do all in their power to improve the education of their workers in regard to the prevention of accidents, and (b) that the workers' organisations should by using their influence with their members co-operate in this work.

12. The Conference recommends that, in addition to measures taken in pursuance of the preceding paragraphs, the State should arrange for monographs on accident causation and prevention in particular industries or branches of industry or particular processes, to be prepared by the State inspection service or other competent authorities, embodying the experience obtained as to the best measures for preventing accidents in the industry or process, and to be published by the State for the information of employers, works officials and workers in the industry and of employers' and workers' organisations.

13. In view of the importance of the work of education referred to in the preceding paragraph, and as a foundation for such education, the Conference recommends that the Members should arrange for the inclusion in the curricula of the elementary schools of lessons designed to inculcate habits of carefulness, and in the curricula of continuation schools lessons in accident prevention and first aid. Instruction in the prevention of industrial accidents should be given in vocational schools of all grades, where the importance of the subject both from the economic and moral standpoints should be impressed upon the pupils.

14. In view of the great value of immediate first-aid treatment in lessening the gravity of the consequences of accidents, measures should be taken to ensure that the necessary material for first aid should be kept ready for use in all undertakings and that first aid by properly trained persons should be given. It is also desirable that arrangements should be made to ensure that in case of serious accidents the services of a doctor are available as soon as possible. Arrangements should also be made for providing ambulance services for the rapid transport of injured persons to hospital or to their homes.

Special attention should also be paid to the theoretical and practical training of doctors in the treatment of injuries due to accidents.

III

15. As any effective system of accident prevention should rest on a basis of statutory requirements the Conference recommends that each Member should prescribe by law the measures required to ensure an adequate standard of safety.

16. It should be provided by law that it is the duty of the employer to equip and manage his undertaking in such a way that the workers are adequately protected, regard being had to the nature of the undertaking and the state of technical progress, as well as to see that the workers in his employment are instructed as to the dangers, if any, of their occupation and in the measures to be observed by them in order to avoid accidents.

17. It is in general desirable that plans for the construction or substantial alteration of industrial establishments should be submitted in due time to the competent authority, in order that it may be ascertained whether the plans are such as to satisfy the statutory requirements referred to above. The plans should be examined as rapidly as possible in order not to delay the execution of the work.

18. So far as the administrative and legal systems of each country allow, officials of the inspection service or other body responsible for supervising the enforcement of the statutory requirements for the protection of workers against accidents should be empowered to give orders in particular cases to the employer as to the steps to be taken by him to fulfil his obligations, subject to a right of appeal to a higher administrative authority or to arbitration.

In case of imminent danger the supervising authority should be empowered to require immediate compliance with the orders, notwithstanding the right of appeal.

19. In view of the importance of the conduct of the worker in connection with accident prevention, the law should provide that it is the duty of the worker to comply with the statutory requirements on accident prevention and particularly to refrain from removing safety devices without permission and to use them properly.

20. It is recommended that before administrative orders or regulations for the prevention of accidents in any industry are finally issued by the competent authority, opportunity should be given to the representative organisations of employers and workers concerned to submit their views for the consideration of the competent authority.

21. Statutory or administrative provision should be made enabling the workers to collaborate in securing the observance of the safety regulations by the methods best suited to each country : for example, the appointment of qualified workers to positions in the official inspection service ; regulations authorising the workers to call for a visit from an official of the inspection service or other competent body when they consider such a course desirable, or requiring the employer to give workers or their representatives an opportunity of seeing the inspector when he is visiting the undertaking ; inclusion of workers' representatives in safety committees for securing the enforcement of the regulations and establishing the causes of accidents.

IV

22. The Conference recommends that the State should endeavour to secure that accident insurance institutions or companies take into account, in assessing the premium for an undertaking, the measures taken therein for the protection of the workers, in order to encourage the development of safety measures by employers.

23. The State should use its influence with accident insurance institutions and companies to co-operate in the work of accident prevention by such means as the following : communication of information on causes and consequences of accidents to the inspection service or other supervising authorities concerned ; co-operation in the institutions and committees referred to in paragraph 1 and in the Safety First Movement in general ; advances to employers for the adoption or improvement of safety appliances ; the award of prizes to workmen, engineers and others who, by their inventions or ideas, contribute substantially to the avoidance of accidents ; propaganda among employers and the public ; advice on safety measures, contributions to safety museums and institutions for instruction in accident prevention.

Convention 27

Convention concerning the Marking of the Weight on Heavy Packages Transported by Vessels¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twelfth Session on 30 May 1929, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the marking of the weight on heavy packages transported by vessels, which is included in the first item of the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention,

adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine the following Convention, which may be cited as the Marking of Weight (Packages Transported by Vessels) Convention, 1929, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Article 1

1. Any package or object of one thousand kilograms (one metric ton) or more gross weight consigned within the territory of any Member which ratifies this Convention for transport by sea or inland waterway shall have had its gross weight plainly and durably marked upon it on the outside before it is loaded on a ship or vessel.

2. In exceptional cases where it is difficult to determine the exact weight, national laws or regulations may allow an approximate weight to be marked.

3. The obligation to see that this requirement is observed shall rest solely upon the Government of the country from which the package or object is consigned and not on the Government of a country through which it passes on the way to its destination.

4. It shall be left to national laws or regulations to determine whether the obligation for having the weight marked as aforsaid shall fall on the consignor or on some other person or body.

Article 2

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 3

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 4

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 5

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an Act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of ten years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of ten years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 6

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 7

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve denunciation of this Convention without any requirement of delay, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 5 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force.

2. As from the date of the coming into force of the new revising Convention, the present Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

3. Nevertheless, this Convention shall remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 8

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

Recommendation 32

Recommendation concerning Responsibility for the Protection of Power-driven Machinery

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twelfth Session on 30 May 1929, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to responsibility for the protection of power-driven machinery, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Power-driven Machinery Recommendation, 1929, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

I

In order more effectively to ensure, in the interest of the safety of the workers, that the requirements prescribed by national laws or regulations for the protection of power-driven machinery used in the country concerned are properly complied with, and without prejudice to the responsibility which should in any case rest and remain on the employer for seeing that any machinery used in his undertaking is protected in accordance with national laws or regulations,

The Conference recommends that each Member adopt and apply to as great an extent as possible the principle that it should be prohibited by law to supply or install any machine intended to be driven by mechanical power and to be used within its territory, unless it is furnished with the safety appliances required by law for the operation of machines of that type.

The previous paragraph applies to any electrical equipment forming part of such a machine.

II

Each Member should keep the International Labour Office informed of the measures taken by it to apply the above-mentioned principle and of the results of its application.

Convention 28

Convention concerning the Protection against Accidents of Workers Employed in Loading or Unloading Ships¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twelfth Session on 30 May 1929, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading or unloading ships, which is the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention,

adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine the following Convention, which may be cited as the Protection against Accidents (Dockers) Convention, 1929, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

¹ Date of coming into force : 1 April 1932. The Convention was revised in 1932 by Convention 32 (see p. 198).

Article 1

For the purpose of this Convention—

(1) the term “processes” means and includes all or any part of the work performed on shore or on board ship of loading or unloading any ship whether engaged in maritime or inland navigation, excluding ships of war, in, on, or at any maritime or inland port, harbour, dock, wharf, quay or similar place at which such work is carried on ; and

(2) the term “worker” means any person employed in the processes.

Article 2

1. Any regular approach over a dock, wharf, quay or similar premises which workers have to use for going to or from a working place at which the processes are carried on and every such working place on shore shall be maintained with due regard to the safety of the workers using them.

2. In particular,

(1) every said working place on shore and any dangerous parts of any said approach thereto from the nearest highway shall be safely and efficiently lighted ;

(2) wharves and quays shall be kept sufficiently clear of goods to maintain a clear passage to the means of access referred to in Article 3 ;

(3) where any space is left along the edge of any wharf or quay, it shall be at least 3 feet (90 cm.) wide and clear of all obstructions other than fixed structures, plant and appliances in use ; and

(4) so far as is practicable having regard to the traffic and working—

(a) all dangerous parts of the said approaches and working places (e.g. dangerous breaks, corners and edges) shall be adequately fenced to a height of not less than 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.) ;

(b) dangerous footways over bridges, caissons and dock gates shall be fenced to a height of not less than 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.) on each side, and the said fencing shall be continued at both ends to a sufficient distance which shall not be required to exceed 5 yards (4 m. 50).

Article 3

(1) When a ship is lying alongside a quay or some other vessel for the purpose of the processes, there shall be safe means of access for the use of the workers at such times as they have to pass to or from the ship, unless the conditions are such that they would not be exposed to undue risk if no special appliance were provided.

(2) The said means of access shall be—

- (a) where reasonably practicable, the ship's accommodation ladder, a gangway or a similar construction ;
- (b) in other cases a ladder.

(3) The appliances specified in paragraph (2) (a) of this Article shall be at least 22 inches (55 cm.) wide, properly secured to prevent their displacement, not inclined at too steep an angle, constructed of materials of good quality and in good condition, and securely fenced throughout to a clear height of not less than 2 feet 9 inches (82 cm.) on both sides, or in the case of the ship's accommodation ladder securely fenced to the same height on one side, provided that the other side is properly protected by the ship's side.

Provided that any appliances as aforesaid in use at the date of the ratification of this Convention shall be allowed to remain in use—

- (a) until the fencing is renewed if they are fenced on both sides to a clear height of at least 2 feet 8 inches (80 cm.) ;
- (b) for one year from the date of ratification if they are fenced on both sides to a clear height of at least 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.).

(4) The ladders specified in paragraph (2) (b) of this Article shall be of adequate length and strength, and properly secured.

(5) (a) Exceptions to the provisions of this Article may be allowed by the competent authorities when they are satisfied that the appliances specified in the Article are not required for the safety of the workers.

(b) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to cargo stages or cargo gangways when exclusively used for the processes.

(6) Workers shall not use, or be required to use, any other means of access than the means specified or allowed by this Article.

Article 4

When the workers have to proceed to or from a ship by water for the processes, appropriate measures shall be prescribed to ensure their safe transport, including the conditions to be complied with by the vessels used for this purpose.

Article 5

(1) When the workers have to carry on the processes in a hold the depth of which from the level of the deck to the bottom of the hold exceeds 5 feet (1 m. 50), there shall be safe means of access from the deck to the hold for their use.

(2) The said means of access shall ordinarily be by ladder, which shall not be deemed to be safe unless it complies with the following conditions :

- (a) leaves sufficient free space behind the rungs, which in the case of ladders on bulkheads and in trunk hatchways shall not be less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches ($11\frac{1}{2}$ cm.), or has throughout rungs of proper width for firm foothold and handhold ;
- (b) is not recessed under the deck more than is reasonably necessary to keep it clear of the hatchway ;
- (c) is continued by and is in line with arrangements for secure handhold and foothold on the coamings (e.g. cleats or cups) ;
- (d) the said arrangements on the coamings stand out not less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches ($11\frac{1}{2}$ cm.) for a width of 10 inches (25 cm.); and
- (e) if separate ladders are provided between the lower decks, the said ladders are as far as practicable in line with the ladder from the top deck.

Where, however, owing to the construction of the ship, the provision of a ladder would not be reasonably practicable, it shall be open to the competent authorities to allow other means of access, provided that they comply with the conditions laid down in this Article for ladders so far as they are applicable.

(3) Sufficient free passage to the means of access shall be left at the coamings.

(4) Shaft tunnels shall be equipped with adequate handhold and foothold on both sides.

(5) When a ladder is to be used in the hold of a vessel which is not decked it shall be the duty of the contractor undertaking the processes to provide such ladder. It shall be equipped at the top with hooks for fastening it on to the coamings or with other means for firmly securing it.

(6) The workers shall not use, or be required to use, other means of access than the means specified or allowed by this Article.

(7) Ships existing at the date of ratification of this Convention shall be exempt from compliance with the measurements in paragraph 2 (a) and (d) and from the provisions of paragraph 4 of this Article for a period not exceeding four years from the date of ratification of this Convention.

Article 6

While the workers are on a ship for the purpose of the processes, no hatchway of a cargo hold which exceeds 5 feet (1 m. 50) in depth from the level of the deck to the bottom of the hold and which is accessible to the workers shall be left open and unprotected, but every such hatchway which is not protected to a clear height of 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.) by the coamings shall either be securely fenced to a height of 3 feet (90 cm.) if the processes at that hatchway are not impeded thereby or be securely covered.

Similar measures shall be taken when necessary to protect any other openings in a deck which might be dangerous to the workers.

Provided that the requirements of this Article shall not apply when a proper and sufficient watch is being kept.

Article 7

1. When the processes have to be carried on on a ship, the means of access thereto and all places on board at which the workers are employed or to which they may be required to proceed in the course of their employment shall be efficiently lighted.

2. The means of lighting shall be such as not to endanger the safety of the workers nor to interfere with the navigation of other vessels.

Article 8

In order to ensure the safety of the workers when engaged in removing or replacing hatch coverings and beams used for hatch coverings—

(1) hatch coverings and beams used for hatch coverings shall be maintained in good condition ;

(2) hatch coverings shall be fitted with adequate hand grips, having regard to their size and weight ;

(3) beams used for hatch coverings shall have suitable gear for removing and replacing them of such a character as to render it unnecessary for workers to go upon them for the purpose of adjusting such gear ;

(4) all hatch coverings and fore and aft and thwart-ship beams shall, in so far as they are not interchangeable, be kept plainly marked to indicate the deck and hatch to which they belong and their position therein ;

(5) hatch coverings shall not be used in the construction of cargo stages or for any other purpose which may expose them to damage.

Article 9

Appropriate measures shall be prescribed to ensure that no hoisting machine, or gear, whether fixed or loose, used in connection therewith, is employed in the processes on shore or on board ship unless it is in a safe working condition.

In particular,

(1) before being taken into use, the said machines, fixed gear on board ship accessory thereto as defined by national laws or regulations, and chains and wire ropes used in connection therewith, shall be adequately examined and tested, and the safe working load thereof certified, in the manner prescribed and by a competent person ;

(2) after being taken into use, every hoisting machine, whether used on shore or on board ship, and all fixed gear on board ship accessory thereto as defined by national laws or regulations shall be thoroughly examined or inspected as follows :

- (a) to be thoroughly examined every four years and inspected every twelve months : derricks, goose necks, mast bands, derrick bands, eyebolts, spans and any other fixed gear the dismantling of which is specially difficult ;
- (b) to be thoroughly examined every twelve months : all hoisting machines (e.g. cranes, winches), blocks, shackles and all other accessory gear not included in (a).

All loose gear (e.g. chains, wire ropes, rings, hooks) shall be inspected on each occasion before use unless they have been inspected within the previous three months.

Chains shall not be shortened by tying knots in them and precautions shall be taken to prevent injury to them from sharp edges.

A thimble or loop splice made in any wire rope shall have at least three tucks with a whole strand of rope and two tucks with one half of the wires cut out of each strand ; provided that this requirement shall not operate to prevent the use of another form of splice which can be shown to be as efficient as the form hereby prescribed.

(3) Chains and such similar gear as is specified by national laws or regulations (e.g. hooks, rings, shackles, swivels) shall, unless they have been subjected to such other sufficient treatment as may be prescribed by national laws or regulations, be annealed under the supervision of a competent person as follows :

- (a) In the case of chains and the said gear carried on board ship—
 - (i) half inch (12 $\frac{1}{2}$ mm.) and smaller chains or gear in general use once at least in every six months ;
 - (ii) all other chains or gear (including span chains but excluding bridle chains attached to derricks or masts) in general use once at least in every twelve months :

Provided that in the case of such gear used solely on cranes and other hoisting appliances worked by hand, twelve months shall be substituted for six months in sub-paragraph (i) and two years for twelve months in sub-paragraph (ii) ;

Provided also that, if the competent authority is of opinion that owing to the size, design, material or infrequency of use of any of the said gear other than chains the requirements of this paragraph as to annealing are not necessary for the protection of the workers, it may, by certificate in writing (which it may at its discretion revoke) exempt such gear from the said requirements subject to such conditions as may be specified in the said certificate.

(b) In the case of chains and the said gear not carried on board ship :

Measures shall be prescribed to secure the annealing of the said chains and gear.

(c) In the case of the said chains and gear whether carried on board ship or not, which have been lengthened, altered or repaired by welding, they shall thereupon be tested and re-examined.

(4) Such duly authenticated records as will provide sufficient prima facie evidence of the safe condition of the machines and gear concerned shall be kept, on shore or on the ship as the case may be, specifying the safe working load and the dates and results of the tests and examinations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this Article and of the annealings or other treatment referred to in paragraph (3).

Such records shall, on the application of any person authorised for the purpose, be produced by the person in charge thereof.

(5) The safe working load shall be kept plainly marked on all cranes, derricks and chain slings and on any similar hoisting gear used on board ship as specified by national laws or regulations. The safe working load marked on chain slings shall either be in plain figures or letters upon the chains or upon a tablet or ring of durable material attached securely thereto.

(6) All motors, cogwheels, chain and friction gearing, shafting, live electric conductors and steam pipes shall (unless it can be shown that by their position and construction they are equally safe to every worker employed as they would be if securely fenced) be securely fenced so far as is practicable without impeding the safe working of the ship.

(7) Cranes and winches shall be provided with effective appliances to prevent the accidental descent of a load while in process of being lifted or lowered.

(8) Appropriate measures shall be taken to prevent exhaust steam from and, so far as practicable, live steam to any crane or winch obscuring any part of the working place at which a worker is employed.

Article 10

Only sufficiently competent and reliable persons shall be employed to operate lifting or transporting machinery whether driven by mechanical power or otherwise, or to give signals to a driver of such machinery, or to attend to cargo falls on winch ends or winch drums.

Article 11

(1) No load shall be left suspended from any hoisting machine unless there is a competent person actually in charge of the machine while the load is so left.

(2) Appropriate measures shall be prescribed to provide for the employment of a signaller where this is necessary for the safety of the workers.

(3) Appropriate measures shall be prescribed with the object of preventing dangerous methods of working in the stacking, unstacking, stowing and unstowing of cargo, or handling in connection therewith.

(4) Before work is begun at a hatch the beams thereof shall be removed, unless the hatch is of sufficient size to preclude danger to the workers from a load striking against the beams ; provided that when the beams are not removed they shall be securely fastened to prevent their displacement.

(5) Precautions shall be taken to facilitate the escape of the workers when employed in a hold or on 'tween decks in dealing with coal or other bulk cargo.

(6) No stage shall be used in the processes unless it is substantially and firmly constructed, adequately supported and where necessary securely fastened.

No truck shall be used for carrying cargo between ship and shore on a stage so steep as to be unsafe.

Stages shall where necessary be treated with suitable material to prevent the workers slipping.

(7) When the working space in a hold is confined to the square of the hatch, hooks shall not be made fast in the bands or fastenings of bales of cotton, wool, cork, gunny bags or other similar goods (nor can-hooks on barrels), except for the purpose of breaking out or making up slings.

(8) No gear of any description shall be loaded beyond the safe working load, except on special occasions expressly authorised by the owner or his responsible agent of which a record shall be kept.

(9) In the case of shore cranes with varying capacity (e.g. raising and lowering jib with load capacity varying according to the angle) an automatic indicator or a table showing the safe working loads at the corresponding inclinations of the jib shall be provided on the crane.

Article 12

National laws or regulations shall prescribe such precautions as may be deemed necessary to ensure the proper protection of the workers, having regard to the circumstances of each case, when they have to deal with or work in proximity to goods which are in themselves dangerous to life or health by reason either of their inherent nature or of their condition at the time, or work where such goods have been stowed.

Article 13

1. At docks, wharves, quays and similar places which are in frequent use for the processes, such facilities as having regard to local circumstances shall be prescribed by national laws or regulations shall be available for rapidly securing the rendering of first-aid and in serious cases of accident removal to the nearest place of treatment. Sufficient supplies of first-aid equipment shall be kept permanently on the premises in such a condition and in such positions as to be fit and readily accessible for immediate use during working hours. The said supplies shall be in charge of a responsible person or persons, who shall include one or more persons competent to render first-aid, and whose services shall also be readily available during working hours.

2. At such docks, wharves, quays and similar places as aforesaid appropriate provision shall also be made for the rescue of immersed workers from drowning.

Article 14

Any fencing, gangway, gear, ladder, life-saving means or appliance, light, mark, stage or other thing whatsoever required to be provided under this Convention shall not be removed or interfered with by any person except when duly authorised or in case of necessity, and if removed shall be restored at the end of the period for which its removal was necessary.

Article 15

1. It shall be open to each Member to grant exemptions from or exceptions to the provisions of this Convention in respect of any dock, wharf, quay or similar place at which the processes are only occasionally carried on or the traffic is small and confined to small ships, or in respect of certain special ships or special classes of ships or ships below a certain small tonnage, or in cases where as a result of climatic conditions it would be impracticable to require the provisions of this Convention to be carried out.

2. The International Labour Office shall be kept informed of the provisions in virtue of which any exemptions and exceptions as aforesaid are allowed.

Article 16

Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this Convention which affect the construction or permanent equipment of the ship shall apply to ships the building of which is commenced after the date of ratification of the Convention, and to all other ships within four years after that date, provided that in the meantime the said provisions shall be applied so far as reasonable and practicable to such other ships.

Article 17

In order to ensure the due enforcement of any regulations prescribed for the protection of the workers against accidents—

(1) the regulations shall clearly define the persons or bodies who are to be responsible for compliance with the respective regulations ;

(2) provision shall be made for an efficient system of inspection and for penalties for breaches of the regulations ;

(3) copies or summaries of the regulations shall be posted up in prominent positions at docks, wharves, quays and similar places which are in frequent use for the processes.

Article 18

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 19

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 20

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 21

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of five years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 22

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 23

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve denunciation of this Convention without any requirement of delay, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 21 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force.

2. As from the date of the coming into force of the new revising Convention, the present Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

3. Nevertheless, this Convention shall remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 24

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

Recommendation 33

Recommendation concerning Reciprocity as regards the Protection against Accidents of Workers Employed in Loading or Unloading Ships

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twelfth Session on 30 May 1929, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to reciprocity as regards the protection of workers employed in loading or unloading ships, which is included in the second item of the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Protection against Accidents (Dockers) Reciprocity Recommendation, 1929, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

The Conference,

Recognising that the Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading or unloading ships, while having as its main object the protection against accidents of the said workers, at the same time affords an opportunity for regulations being prepared and issued by the Members which should secure reasonable uniformity on the basis of the Convention and for extension of the principle of reciprocity in the mutual recognition of certificates of inspection and examination ; and

Recalling in this connection the principles laid down in the Copenhagen Convention of 28 January 1926 on the seaworthiness and equipment of ships as modified by the Declaration of 11 June 1928 :

Strongly recommends that, following the ratification of, and issuing of regulations as aforesaid based upon, the Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading or unloading ships, the Members which have ratified the said Convention should enter into conference for the purpose of securing agreement for reciprocity, subject to all such agreements making secure the main object of the Convention, namely the safety of the persons employed.

Recommendation 34

Recommendation concerning the Consultation of Workers' and Employers' Organisations in the Drawing up of Regulations dealing with the Safety of Workers Employed in Loading or Unloading Ships

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twelfth Session on 30 May 1929, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the consultation of workers' and employers' organisations in the drawing up of regulations dealing with the safety of workers employed in loading or unloading ships, which is included in the second item of the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

The Conference,

Having adopted a Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading or unloading ships, and Desiring to indicate for the guidance of the Members a method of bringing the Convention into operation in their respective countries,

Supplements this Convention by the following Recommendation :

That the authorities responsible for the making of regulations for the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading or unloading ships should, either directly or through any special joint machinery recognised for the purpose, consult the workers' and employers' organisations concerned, if any, in their respective countries in the drawing up of new regulations under the above-mentioned Convention.

FOURTEENTH SESSION(Geneva, 10-28 June 1930)*Convention 29*Convention concerning Forced or Compulsory Labour ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Fourteenth Session on 10 June 1930, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to forced or compulsory labour, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty the following Convention, which may be cited as the Forced Labour Convention, 1930, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention,

Article 1

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation which ratifies this Convention undertakes to suppress the use of forced or compulsory labour in all its forms within the shortest possible period.

2. With a view to this complete suppression, recourse to forced or compulsory labour may be had, during the transitional period, for public purposes only and as an exceptional measure, subject to the conditions and guarantees hereinafter provided.

3. At the expiration of a period of five years after the coming into force of this Convention, and when the Governing Body of the International Labour Office prepares the report provided for in Article 31 below, the said Governing Body shall consider the possibility of the suppression of forced or compulsory labour in all its forms without a further transitional period and the desirability of placing this question on the agenda of the Conference.

Article 2

1. For the purposes of this Convention the term "forced or compulsory labour" shall mean all work or service which is exacted from any person under the menace of any penalty and for which the said person has not offered himself voluntarily.

2. Nevertheless, for the purposes of this Convention, the term "forced or compulsory labour" shall not include—

- (a) any work or service exacted in virtue of compulsory military service laws for work of a purely military character ;
- (b) any work or service which forms part of the normal civic obligations of the citizens of a fully self-governing country ;
- (c) any work or service exacted from any person as a consequence of a conviction in a court of law, provided that the said work or service is carried out under the supervision and control of a public authority and that the said person is not hired to or placed at the disposal of private individuals, companies or associations ;
- (d) any work or service exacted in cases of emergency, that is to say, in the event of war or of a calamity or threatened calamity, such as fire, flood, famine, earthquake, violent epidemic or epizootic diseases, invasion by animal, insect or vegetable pests, and in general any circumstance that would endanger the existence or the well-being of the whole or part of the population ;
- (e) minor communal services of a kind which, being performed by the members of the community in the direct interest of the said community, can therefore be considered as normal civic obligations incumbent upon the members of the community, provided that the members of the community or their direct representatives shall have the right to be consulted in regard to the need for such services.

Article 3

For the purposes of this Convention the term "competent authority" shall mean either an authority of the metropolitan country or the highest central authority in the territory concerned.

Article 4

1. The competent authority shall not impose or permit the imposition of forced or compulsory labour for the benefit of private individuals, companies or associations.

2. Where such forced or compulsory labour for the benefit of private individuals, companies or associations exists at the date on which a Member's ratification of this Convention is registered by the Director-General of the International Labour Office, the Member shall completely suppress such forced or compulsory labour from the date on which this Convention comes into force for that Member.

Article 5

1. No concession granted to private individuals, companies or associations shall involve any form of forced or compulsory labour for the production or the collection of products which such private individuals, companies or associations utilise or in which they trade.

2. Where concessions exist containing provisions involving such forced or compulsory labour, such provisions shall be rescinded as soon as possible, in order to comply with Article 1 of this Convention.

Article 6

Officials of the administration, even when they have the duty of encouraging the populations under their charge to engage in some form of labour, shall not put constraint upon the said populations or upon any individual members thereof to work for private individuals, companies or associations.

Article 7

1. Chiefs who do not exercise administrative functions shall not have recourse to forced or compulsory labour.

2. Chiefs who exercise administrative functions may, with the express permission of the competent authority, have recourse to forced or compulsory labour, subject to the provisions of Article 10 of this Convention.

3. Chiefs who are duly recognised and who do not receive adequate remuneration in other forms may have the enjoyment of personal services, subject to due regulation and provided that all necessary measures are taken to prevent abuses.

Article 8

1. The responsibility for every decision to have recourse to forced or compulsory labour shall rest with the highest civil authority in the territory concerned.

2. Nevertheless, that authority may delegate powers to the highest local authorities to exact forced or compulsory labour which does not involve the removal of the workers from their place of habitual residence. That authority may also delegate, for such periods and subject to such conditions as may be laid down in the regulations provided for in Article 23 of this Convention, powers to the highest local authorities to exact forced or compulsory labour which involves the removal of the workers from their place of habitual residence for the purpose of facilitating the movement of officials of the administration, when on duty, and for the transport of Government stores.

Article 9

Except as otherwise provided for in Article 10 of this Convention, any authority competent to exact forced or compulsory labour shall, before deciding to have recourse to such labour, satisfy itself—

- (a) that the work to be done or the service to be rendered is of important direct interest for the community called upon to do the work or render the service ;
- (b) that the work or service is of present or imminent necessity ;
- (c) that it has been impossible to obtain voluntary labour for carrying out the work or rendering the service by the offer of rates of wages and conditions of labour not less favourable than those prevailing in the area concerned for similar work or service ; and
- (d) that the work or service will not lay too heavy a burden upon the present population, having regard to the labour available and its capacity to undertake the work.

Article 10

1. Forced or compulsory labour exacted as a tax and forced or compulsory labour to which recourse is had for the execution of public works by chiefs who exercise administrative functions shall be progressively abolished.

2. Meanwhile, where forced or compulsory labour is exacted as a tax, and where recourse is had to forced or compulsory labour for the execution of public works by chiefs who exercise administrative functions, the authority concerned shall first satisfy itself—

- (a) that the work to be done or the service to be rendered is of important direct interest for the community called upon to do the work or render the service ;
- (b) that the work or the service is of present or imminent necessity ;
- (c) that the work or service will not lay too heavy a burden upon the present population, having regard to the labour available and its capacity to undertake the work ;
- (d) that the work or service will not entail the removal of the workers from their place of habitual residence ;
- (e) that the execution of the work or the rendering of the service will be directed in accordance with the exigencies of religion, social life and agriculture.

Article 11

1. Only adult able-bodied males who are of an apparent age of not less than 18 and not more than 45 years may be called upon for forced or compulsory labour. Except in respect of the kinds of labour provided for in Article 10 of this Convention, the following limitations and conditions shall apply :

- (a) whenever possible prior determination by a medical officer appointed by the administration that the persons concerned are not suffering from any infectious or contagious disease and that they are physically fit for the work required and for the conditions under which it is to be carried out ;

- (b) exemption of school teachers and pupils and of officials of the administration in general ;
- (c) the maintenance in each community of the number of adult able-bodied men indispensable for family and social life ;
- (d) respect for conjugal and family ties.

2. For the purposes of sub-paragraph (c) of the preceding paragraph, the regulations provided for in Article 23 of this Convention shall fix the proportion of the resident adult able-bodied males who may be taken at any one time for forced or compulsory labour, provided always that this proportion shall in no case exceed 25 per cent. In fixing this proportion the competent authority shall take account of the density of the population, of its social and physical development, of the seasons, and of the work which must be done by the persons concerned on their own behalf in their locality, and, generally, shall have regard to the economic and social necessities of the normal life of the community concerned.

Article 12

1. The maximum period for which any person may be taken for forced or compulsory labour of all kinds in any one period of twelve months shall not exceed sixty days, including the time spent in going to and from the place of work.

2. Every person from whom forced or compulsory labour is exacted shall be furnished with a certificate indicating the periods of such labour which he has completed.

Article 13

1. The normal working hours of any person from whom forced or compulsory labour is exacted shall be the same as those prevailing in the case of voluntary labour, and the hours worked in excess of the normal working hours shall be remunerated at the rates prevailing in the case of overtime for voluntary labour.

2. A weekly day of rest shall be granted to all persons from whom forced or compulsory labour of any kind is exacted and this day shall coincide as far as possible with the day fixed by tradition or custom in the territories or regions concerned.

Article 14

1. With the exception of the forced or compulsory labour provided for in Article 10 of this Convention, forced or compulsory labour of all kinds shall be remunerated in cash at rates not less than those prevailing for similar kinds of work either in the district in which the labour is employed or in the district from which the labour is recruited, whichever may be the higher.

2. In the case of labour to which recourse is had by chiefs in the exercise of their administrative functions, payment of wages in accordance with the provisions of the preceding paragraph shall be introduced as soon as possible.

3. The wages shall be paid to each worker individually and not to his tribal chief or to any other authority.

4. For the purpose of payment of wages the days spent in travelling to and from the place of work shall be counted as working days.

5. Nothing in this Article shall prevent ordinary rations being given as a part of wages, such rations to be at least equivalent in value to the money payment they are taken to represent, but deductions from wages shall not be made either for the payment of taxes or for special food, clothing or accommodation supplied to a worker for the purpose of maintaining him in a fit condition to carry on his work under the special conditions of any employment, or for the supply of tools.

Article 15

1. Any laws or regulations relating to workmen's compensation for accidents or sickness arising out of the employment of the worker and any laws or regulations providing compensation for the dependants of deceased or incapacitated workers which are or shall be in force in the territory concerned shall be equally applicable to persons from whom forced or compulsory labour is exacted and to voluntary workers.

2. In any case it shall be an obligation on any authority employing any worker on forced or compulsory labour to ensure the subsistence of any such worker who, by accident or sickness arising out of his employment, is rendered wholly or partially incapable of providing for himself, and to take measures to ensure the maintenance of any persons actually dependent upon such a worker in the event of his incapacity or decease arising out of his employment.

Article 16

1. Except in cases of special necessity, persons from whom forced or compulsory labour is exacted shall not be transferred to districts where the food and climate differ so considerably from those to which they have been accustomed as to endanger their health.

2. In no case shall the transfer of such workers be permitted unless all measures relating to hygiene and accommodation which are necessary to adapt such workers to the conditions and to safeguard their health can be strictly applied.

3. When such transfer cannot be avoided, measures of gradual habituation to the new conditions of diet and of climate shall be adopted on competent medical advice.

4. In cases where such workers are required to perform regular work to which they are not accustomed, measures shall be taken to ensure their habituation to it, especially as regards progressive training, the hours of work and the provision of rest intervals, and any increase or amelioration of diet which may be necessary.

Article 17

Before permitting recourse to forced or compulsory labour for works of construction or maintenance which entail the workers remaining at the workplaces for considerable periods, the competent authority shall satisfy itself—

(1) that all necessary measures are taken to safeguard the health of the workers and to guarantee the necessary medical care, and, in particular, (a) that the workers are medically examined before commencing the work and at fixed intervals during the period of service, (b) that there is an adequate medical staff, provided with the dispensaries, infirmaries, hospitals and equipment necessary to meet all requirements, and (c) that the sanitary conditions of the workplaces, the supply of drinking water, food, fuel, and cooking utensils, and, where necessary, of housing and clothing, are satisfactory ;

(2) that definite arrangements are made to ensure the subsistence of the families of the workers, in particular by facilitating the remittance, by a safe method, of part of the wages to the family, at the request or with the consent of the workers ;

(3) that the journeys of the workers to and from the workplaces are made at the expense and under the responsibility of the administration, which shall facilitate such journeys by making the fullest use of all available means of transport ;

(4) that, in case of illness or accident causing incapacity to work of a certain duration, the worker is repatriated at the expense of the administration ;

(5) that any worker who may wish to remain as a voluntary worker at the end of his period of forced or compulsory labour is permitted to do so without, for a period of two years, losing his right to repatriation free of expense to himself.

Article 18

1. Forced or compulsory labour for the transport of persons or goods, such as the labour of porters or boatmen, shall be abolished within the shortest possible period. Meanwhile the competent authority shall promulgate regulations determining, inter alia, (a) that such labour shall only be employed for the purpose of facilitating the movement of officials of the administration, when on duty, or for the transport of Government stores, or, in cases of very urgent necessity, the transport of persons other than officials, (b) that the workers so employed shall be medically certified to be physically fit, where medical examination is possible, and that where such medical examination is not practicable the person employing such workers shall be held responsible for ensuring that they are physically fit and not suffering from any infectious or contagious disease, (c) the maximum load which these workers may carry, (d) the maximum distance from their homes to which they may be taken, (e) the maximum number of days per month or other period for which they may be taken, including the days spent in returning to their homes, and (f) the persons entitled to demand this form of forced or compulsory labour and the extent to which they are entitled to demand it.

2. In fixing the maxima referred to under (c), (d) and (e) in the foregoing paragraph, the competent authority shall have regard to all relevant factors, including the physical development of the population from which the workers are recruited, the nature of the country through which they must travel and the climatic conditions.

3. The competent authority shall further provide that the normal daily journey of such workers shall not exceed a distance corresponding to an average working day of eight hours, it being understood that account shall be taken not only of the weight to be carried and the distance to be covered, but also of the nature of the road, the season and all other relevant factors, and that, where hours of journey in excess of the normal daily journey are exacted, they shall be remunerated at rates higher than the normal rates.

Article 19

1. The competent authority shall only authorise recourse to compulsory cultivation as a method of precaution against famine or a deficiency of food supplies and always under the condition that the food or produce shall remain the property of the individuals or the community producing it.

2. Nothing in this Article shall be construed as abrogating the obligation on members of a community, where production is organised on a communal basis by virtue of law or custom and where the produce or any profit accruing from the sale thereof remain the property of the community, to perform the work demanded by the community by virtue of law or custom.

Article 20

Collective punishment laws under which a community may be punished for crimes committed by any of its members shall not contain provisions for forced or compulsory labour by the community as one of the methods of punishment.

Article 21

Forced or compulsory labour shall not be used for work underground in mines.

Article 22

The annual reports that Members which ratify this Convention agree to make to the International Labour Office, pursuant to the provisions of Article 22 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation, on the measures they have taken to give effect to the provisions of this Convention, shall contain as full information as possible, in respect of each territory concerned, regarding the extent to which recourse has been had to forced or compulsory labour in that territory, the purposes for which it has been employed, the sickness and death rates, hours of work, methods of payment of wages and rates of wages, and any other relevant information.

Article 23

1. To give effect to the provisions of this Convention the competent authority shall issue complete and precise regulations governing the use of forced or compulsory labour.

2. These regulations shall contain, inter alia, rules permitting any person from whom forced or compulsory labour is exacted to forward all complaints relative to the conditions of labour to the authorities and ensuring that such complaints will be examined and taken into consideration.

Article 24

Adequate measures shall in all cases be taken to ensure that the regulations governing the employment of forced or compulsory labour are strictly applied, either by extending the duties of any existing labour inspectorate which has been established for the inspection of voluntary labour to cover the inspection of forced or compulsory labour or in some other appropriate manner. Measures shall also be taken to ensure that the regulations are brought to the knowledge of persons from whom such labour is exacted.

Article 25

The illegal exaction of forced or compulsory labour shall be punishable as a penal offence, and it shall be an obligation on any Member ratifying this Convention to ensure that the penalties imposed by law are really adequate and are strictly enforced.

Article 26

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation which ratifies this Convention undertakes to apply it to the territories placed under its sovereignty, jurisdiction, protection, suzerainty, tutelage or authority, so far as it has the right to accept obligations affecting matters of internal jurisdiction; provided that, if such Member may desire to take advantage of the provisions of Article 35 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation, it shall append to its ratification a declaration stating—

- (1) the territories to which it intends to apply the provisions of this Convention without modification ;
- (2) the territories to which it intends to apply the provisions of this Convention with modifications, together with details of the said modifications ;
- (3) the territories in respect of which it reserves its decision.

2. The aforesaid declaration shall be deemed to be an integral part of the ratification and shall have the force of ratification. It shall be open to any Member, by a subsequent declaration, to cancel in whole or in part the reservations made, in pursuance of the provisions of subparagraphs (2) and (3) of this Article, in the original declaration.

Article 27

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 28

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which the ratification has been registered.

Article 29

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 30

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of five years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 31

At the expiration of each period of five years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 32

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve denunciation of this Convention without any requirement of delay, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 30 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force.

2. As from the date of the coming into force of the new revising Convention, the present Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

3. Nevertheless, this Convention shall remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 33

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

Recommendation 35

Recommendation concerning Indirect Compulsion to Labour

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Fourteenth Session on 10 June 1930, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to indirect compulsion to labour, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Forced Labour (Indirect Compulsion) Recommendation, 1930, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having adopted a Convention concerning forced or compulsory labour, and Desiring to supplement this Convention by a statement of the principles which appear best fitted to guide the policy of the Members in endeavouring to avoid any indirect compulsion to labour which would lay too heavy a burden upon the populations of territories to which the Convention may apply,

The Conference recommends that each Member should take the following principles into consideration :

I

The amount of labour available, the capacities for labour of the population, and the evil effects which too sudden changes in the habits of life and labour may have on the social conditions of the population, are factors which should be taken into consideration in deciding questions connected with the economic development of territories in a primitive stage of development, and, in particular, when deciding upon :

- (a) increases in the number and extent of industrial, mining and agricultural undertakings in such territories ;
- (b) the non-indigenous settlement, if any, which is to be permitted ;
- (c) the granting of forest or other concessions, with or without the character of monopolies.

II

The desirability of avoiding indirect means of artificially increasing the economic pressure upon populations to seek wage-earning employment, and particularly such means as :

- (a) imposing such taxation upon populations as would have the effect of compelling them to seek wage-earning employment with private undertakings ;
- (b) imposing such restrictions on the possession, occupation,

- or use of land as would have the effect of rendering difficult the gaining of a living by independent cultivation ;
- (c) extending abusively the generally accepted meaning of vagrancy ;
- (d) adopting such pass laws as would have the effect of placing workers in the service of others in a position of advantage as compared with that of other workers.

III

The desirability of avoiding any restrictions on the voluntary flow of labour from one form of employment to another or from one district to another which might have the indirect effect of compelling workers to take employment in particular industries or districts, except where such restrictions are considered necessary in the interest of the population or of the workers concerned.

Recommendation 36

Recommendation concerning the Regulation of Forced or Compulsory Labour

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Fourteenth Session on 10 June 1930, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the regulation of forced or compulsory labour, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Forced Labour (Regulation) Recommendation, 1930, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having adopted a Convention concerning forced or compulsory labour, and Desiring to give expression to certain principles and rules relating to forced or compulsory labour which appear to be of a nature to render the application of the said Convention more effective,

The Conference recommends that each Member should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I

Any regulations issued in application of the Convention concerning forced or compulsory labour, as well as any other legal provisions or administrative orders, existing at the time of the ratification of the said Convention or thereafter enacted, governing the employment of forced or compulsory labour, including any laws or administrative orders concerning compensation or indemnification for sickness, injury to, or death of workers taken for forced or compulsory labour, should be printed by the competent authority in such one or more native languages as will convey their import to the workers concerned and to the population from which the workers are to be drawn. Such printed texts should be widely exhibited and, if necessary, arrangements made for their oral communication to the workers and to the population concerned ; copies should also be made available to the workers concerned and to others at cost price.

II

Recourse to forced or compulsory labour should be so regulated as not to imperil the food supply of the community concerned.

III

When recourse is had to forced or compulsory labour all possible measures should be taken to ensure that the imposition of such labour in no case leads indirectly to the illegal employment of women and children on forced or compulsory labour.

IV

All possible measures should be taken to reduce the necessity for recourse to forced or compulsory labour for the transport of persons or goods. Such recourse should be prohibited when and where animal or mechanical transport is available.

V

All possible steps should be taken to see that no alcoholic temptations are placed in the way of workers engaged in forced or compulsory labour.

Convention 30Convention concerning the Regulation of Hours of Work in Commerce and Offices¹

Article 3

The hours of work of persons to whom this Convention applies shall not exceed forty-eight hours in the week and eight hours in the day, except as hereinafter otherwise provided.

Article 4

The maximum hours of work in the week laid down in Article 3 may be so arranged that hours of work in any day do not exceed ten hours.

Article 5

1. In case of a general interruption of work due to (a) local holidays, or (b) accidents or force majeure (accidents to plant, interruption of power, light, heating or water, or occurrences causing serious material damage to the establishments), hours of work in the day may be increased for the purpose of making up the hours of work which have been lost, provided that the following conditions are complied with :

- (a) certain classes of persons whose work is inherently intermittent, such as caretakers and persons employed to look after working premises and warehouses ;
- (b) classes of persons directly engaged in preparatory or complementary work which must necessarily be carried on outside the limits laid down for the hours of work of the rest of the persons employed in the establishment ;
- (c) shops and other establishments where the nature of the work, the size of the population or the number of persons employed render inapplicable the working hours fixed in Articles 3 and 4.

2. The temporary exceptions which may be granted in the following cases :

- (a) in case of accident, actual or threatened, force majeure, or urgent work to machinery or plant, but only so far as may be necessary to avoid serious interference with the ordinary working of the establishment ;
- (b) in order to prevent the loss of perishable goods or avoid endangering the technical results of the work ;
- (c) in order to allow for special work such as stocktaking and the preparation of balance sheets, settlement days, liquidations, and the balancing and closing of accounts ;
- (d) in order to enable establishments to deal with cases of abnormal pressure of work due to special circumstances, in so far as the employer cannot ordinarily be expected to resort to other measures.

3. Save as regards paragraph 2 (a), the regulations made under this Article shall determine the number of additional hours of work which may be allowed in the day and, in respect of temporary exceptions, in the year.

4. The rate of pay for the additional hours of work permitted under paragraph 2 (b), (c) and (d) of this Article shall not be less than one-and-a-quarter times the regular rate.

Article 9

The operation of the provisions of this Convention may be suspended in any country by the Government in the event of war or other emergency endangering national safety.

Article 10

1. Nothing in this Convention shall affect any custom or agreement whereby shorter hours are worked or higher rates of remuneration are paid than those provided by this Convention.

2. Any restrictions imposed by this Convention shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any other restrictions imposed by any law, order or regulation which fixes a lower maximum number of hours of employment or a higher rate of remuneration than those provided by this Convention.

Article 11

For the effective enforcement of the provisions of this Convention—

1. The necessary measures shall be taken to ensure adequate inspection ;

2. Every employer shall be required—

- (a) to notify, by the posting of notices in conspicuous positions in the establishment or other suitable place, or by such method as may be approved by the competent authority, the times at which hours of work begin and end, and, where work is carried on by shifts, the times at which each shift begins and ends ;
- (b) to notify in the same way the rest periods granted to the persons employed which, in accordance with Article 2, are not included in the hours of work ;
- (c) to keep a record in the form prescribed by the competent authority of all additional hours of work performed in pursuance of paragraph 2 of Article 7 and of the payments made in respect thereof.

3. It shall be made an offence to employ any person outside the times fixed in accordance with paragraph 2 (a) or during the periods fixed in accordance with paragraph 2 (b) of this Article.

Article 12

Each Member which ratifies this Convention shall take the necessary measures in the form of penalties to ensure that the provisions of the Convention are enforced.

Article 13

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 14

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 15

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 16

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of five years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 17

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 18

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve denunciation of this Convention without any requirement of delay, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 16 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force.

2. As from the date of the coming into force of the new revising Convention, the present Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

3. Nevertheless, this Convention shall remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 19

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

FIFTEENTH SESSION
(Geneva, 28 May-18 June 1931)

Convention 31

Convention Limiting Hours of Work in Coal Mines ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Fifteenth Session on 28 May 1931, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to hours of work in coal mines, which is the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention, adopts this eighteenth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one the following Convention, which may be cited as the Hours of Work (Coal Mines) Convention, 1931, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Article 1

1. This Convention shall apply to all coal mines, that is to say, to any mine from which only hard coal or lignite, or principally hard coal or lignite together with other minerals, is extracted.

2. For the purpose of this Convention, the term "lignite mine" shall mean any mine from which coal of a geological period subsequent to the carboniferous period is extracted.

Article 2

For the purpose of this Convention, the term "worker" shall mean—

- (a) in underground coal mines, any person occupied underground, by whatever employer and on whatever kind of work he may be employed, except persons engaged in supervision or management who do not ordinarily perform manual work ;
- (b) in open coal mines, any person employed directly or indirectly in the extraction of coal, except persons engaged in supervision or management who do not ordinarily perform manual work.

Article 3

Hours of work in underground hard coal mines shall mean the time spent in the mine, calculated as follows :

1. Time spent in an underground mine shall mean the period between the time when the worker enters the cage in order to descend and the time when he leaves the cage after re-ascending.

2. In mines where access is by an adit the time spent in the mine shall mean the period between the time when the worker passes through the entrance of the adit and the time of his return to the surface.

3. In no underground hard coal mine shall the time spent in the mine by any worker exceed seven hours and forty-five minutes in the day.

Article 4

The provisions of this Convention shall be deemed to be complied with if the period between the time when the first workers of the shift or of any group leave the surface and the time when they return to the surface is the same as that laid down in paragraph 3 of Article 3. The order of and the time required for the descent and ascent of a shift and of any group of workers shall, moreover, be approximately the same.

1. Subject to the provisions of the second paragraph of this Article, the provisions of this Convention shall be deemed to be complied with if the national laws or regulations prescribe that for calculating the time spent in the mine the descent or ascent of the workers is to be calculated according to the weighted average duration of the descent or ascent of all shifts of workers in the whole country. In this case, the period between the time when the last worker of the shift leaves the surface and the time when the first worker of the same shift returns to the surface shall not in any mine exceed seven hours and fifteen minutes ; provided that no method of regulation shall be permitted by which the hewers as a class of workers would on the average work longer hours than the other classes of underground workers in the same shift.

2. Any Member which, having applied the method laid down in this Article, subsequently applies the provisions of Articles 3 and 4 shall make the change simultaneously for the whole country and not for any part thereof.

Article 6

1. Workers shall not be employed on underground work in coal mines on Sundays and legal public holidays. National laws or regulations may, however, authorise the following exceptions for workers over eighteen years of age :

- (a) for work which, owing to its nature, must be carried on continuously ;
- (b) for work in connection with the ventilation of the mine and the prevention of damage to the ventilation apparatus, safety work, work in connection with first aid in the case of accident and sickness, and the care of animals ;
- (c) for survey work in so far as this cannot be done on other days without interrupting or disturbing the work of the undertaking ;
- (d) for urgent work in connection with machinery and other appliances which cannot be carried out during the regular working time of the mine, and in other urgent or exceptional cases which are outside the control of the employer.

2. The competent authorities shall take appropriate measures for ensuring that no work is done on Sundays and legal public holidays except as authorised by this Article.

3. Work permitted under paragraph 1 of this Article shall be paid for at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the regular rate.

4. Workers who are engaged to any considerable extent on work permitted under paragraph 1 of this Article shall be assured either a compensatory rest period or an adequate extra payment in addition to the rate specified in paragraph 3 of this Article. The detailed application of this provision shall be regulated by national laws or regulations.

Article 7

Lower maxima than those specified in Articles 3, 4 and 5 shall be laid down by regulations made by public authority for workers in workplaces which are rendered particularly unhealthy by reason of abnormal conditions of temperature, humidity or other cause.

Article 8

1. Regulations made by public authority may provide that the hours specified in Articles 3, 4, 5 and 7 may be exceeded—

- (a) in case of accident, actual or threatened, in case of force majeure, or in case of urgent work to be done to machinery, plant or equipment on the mine as a result of a breakdown of such machinery, plant or equipment, even if coal production is thereby incidentally involved, but only so far as may be necessary to avoid serious interference with the ordinary working of the mine ;
- (b) for workers employed on operations which by their nature must be carried on continuously or on technical work, in so far as their work is necessary for preparing or terminating work in the ordinary way or for a full resumption of work on the next shift, provided, however, that this shall not refer to the production or transport of coal; the additional time authorised by this paragraph shall not exceed half an hour on any day for any individual worker, and in the case of all mines in normal operation the number of workers concerned shall at no time exceed 5 per cent. of the total number of persons employed at the mine.

2. Overtime worked in accordance with the provisions of this Article shall be paid for at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the regular rate.

Article 9

1. Regulations made by public authority may, in addition to the provisions of Article 8, put not more than sixty hours' overtime in the year at the disposal of undertakings throughout the country as a whole.

2. This overtime shall be paid for at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the regular rate.

Article 10

The regulations mentioned in Articles 7, 8 and 9 shall be made by public authority after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned.

Article 11

The annual reports to be submitted under Article 22 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall contain all information as to the action taken to regulate the hours of work in accordance with the provisions of Articles 3, 4 and 5. They shall also furnish complete information concerning the regulations made under Articles 7, 8, 9, 12, 13 and 14 and concerning their enforcement.

Article 12

In order to facilitate the enforcement of the provisions of this Convention, the management of every mine shall be required—

(a) to notify by means of notices conspicuously posted at the pithead or in some other suitable place, or by such other method as may be approved by the public authority, the hours at which the workers of each shift or group shall begin to descend and shall have completed the ascent.

These hours shall be approved by the public authority and be so fixed that the time spent in the mine by each worker shall not exceed the limits prescribed by this Convention. When once notified, they shall not be changed except with the approval of the public authority and by such notice and in such manner as may be approved by the public authority.

C. 31 : Hours of Work (Coal Mines) Convention, 1931

- (b) to keep a record in the form prescribed by national laws or regulations of all additional hours worked under Articles 8 and 9.

Article 13

1. In underground lignite mines Articles 3 and 4 and Articles 6 to 12 of this Convention shall apply subject to the following provisions :

- (a) in accordance with such conditions as may be prescribed by national laws or regulations, the competent authority may permit collective breaks involving a stoppage of production not to be included in the time spent in the mine, provided that such breaks shall in no case exceed thirty minutes for each shift ; such permission shall only be given after the necessity for such a system has been established by official investigation in each individual case, and after consultation with the representatives of the workers concerned ;
- (b) the number of hours overtime provided for in Article 9 may be increased to not more than seventy-five hours a year.

2. In addition, the competent authority may approve collective agreements which provide for not more than seventy-five hours further overtime a year. Such further overtime shall likewise be paid for at the rate prescribed in Article 9, paragraph 2. It shall not be authorised generally for all underground lignite mines, but only in the case of individual districts or mines where it is required on account of special technical or geological conditions.

Article 14

In open hard coal and lignite mines Articles 3 to 13 of this Convention shall not be applicable. Nevertheless, Members which ratify this Convention undertake to apply to these mines the provisions of the Washington Convention of 1919 limiting the hours of work in industrial undertakings to eight in the day and forty-eight in the week, provided that the amount of overtime which may be worked in virtue of Article 6, paragraph (b), of the said Convention shall not exceed one hundred hours a year. Where special needs so require, and only in such cases, the competent authority may approve collective agreements which provide for an increase of the aforesaid one hundred hours by not more than a further hundred hours a year.

Article 15

Nothing in this Convention shall have the effect of altering national laws or regulations with regard to hours of work so as to lessen the guarantees thereby afforded to the workers.

Article 16

The operation of the provisions of this Convention may be suspended in any country by the Government in the event of emergency endangering the national safety.

Article 17

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 18

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members of the International Labour Organisation whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force six months after the date on which the ratifications of two of the following Members have been registered by the Director-General of the International Labour Office : Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, Netherlands and Poland.

3. Thereafter the Convention shall come into force for any Member six months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 19

As soon as the ratifications of two of the Members mentioned in the second paragraph of Article 18 have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 20

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of five years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of five years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of three years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 21

1. At the latest within three years from the coming into force of this Convention the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall place on the agenda of the Conference the question of the revision of this Convention on the following points :

- (a) the possibility of a further reduction in the hours of work provided for in paragraph 3 of Article 3 ;
- (b) the right to have recourse to the exceptional method of calculation laid down in Article 5 ;
- (c) the possibility of modifying the provisions of Article 13, paragraphs (a) and (b), in the direction of a reduction of the hours of work ;
- (d) the possibility of a reduction in the amount of overtime provided for in Article 14.

2. Moreover, at the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 22

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve denunciation of this Convention without any requirement of delay, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 20 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force.

2. As from the date of the coming into force of the new revising Convention, the present Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

3. Nevertheless, this Convention shall remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 23

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

SIXTEENTH SESSION
(Geneva, 12-30 April 1932)

Convention 32

Convention concerning the Protection against Accidents of Workers Employed in Loading or Unloading Ships
(Revised 1932)¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Sixteenth Session on 12 April 1932, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the partial revision of the Convention concerning the protection against accidents of workers employed in loading or unloading ships adopted by the Conference at its Twelfth Session, which is the fourth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Considering that these proposals must take the form of an international Convention, adopts this twenty-seventh day of April of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two the following Convention, which may be cited as the Protection against Accidents (Dockers) Convention (Revised), 1932, for ratification by the Members of the International Labour Organisation in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Article 1

For the purpose of this Convention—

(1) the term “processes” means and includes all or any part of the work performed on shore or on board ship of loading or unloading any ship whether engaged in maritime or inland navigation, excluding ships of war, in, on, or at any maritime or inland port, harbour, dock, wharf, quay or similar place at which such work is carried on ; and

(2) the term “worker” means any person employed in the processes.

Article 2

1. Any regular approach over a dock, wharf, quay or similar premises which workers have to use for going to or from a working place at which the processes are carried on and every such working place on shore shall be maintained with due regard to the safety of the workers using them.

2. In particular,

(1) every said working place on shore and any dangerous parts of any said approach thereto from the nearest highway shall be safely and efficiently lighted ;

(2) wharves and quays shall be kept sufficiently clear of goods to maintain a clear passage to the means of access referred to in Article 3 ;

(3) where any space is left along the edge of any wharf or quay, it shall be at least 3 feet (90 cm.) wide and clear of all obstructions other than fixed structures, plants and appliances in use ; and

(4) so far as is practicable having regard to the traffic and working,

(a) all dangerous parts of the said approaches and working places (e.g. dangerous breaks, corners and edges) shall be adequately fenced to a height of not less than 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.) ;

(b) dangerous footways over bridges, caissons and dock gates shall be fenced to a height of not less than 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.) on each side, and the said fencing shall be continued at both ends to a sufficient distance which shall not be required to exceed 5 yards (4 m. 50).

(5) The measurement requirements of paragraph (4) of this Article shall be deemed to be complied with, in respect of appliances in use at the date of the ratification of this Convention, if the actual measurements are not more than 10 per cent. less than the measurements specified in the said paragraph (4).

Article 3

(1) When a ship is lying alongside a quay or some other vessel for the purpose of the processes, there shall be safe means of access for the use of the workers at such times as they have to pass to or from the ship, unless the conditions are such that they would not be exposed to undue risk if no special appliance were provided.

(2) The said means of access shall be—

(a) where reasonably practicable, the ship's accommodation ladder, a gangway or a similar construction ;

(b) in other cases a ladder.

(3) The appliances specified in paragraph (2) (a) of this Article shall be at least 22 inches (55 cm.) wide, properly secured to prevent their displacement, not inclined at too steep an angle, constructed of materials of good quality and in good condition, and securely fenced throughout to a clear height of not less than 2 feet 9 inches (82 cm.) on both sides, or in the case of the ship's accommodation ladder securely fenced to the same height on one side, provided that the other side is properly protected by the ship's side.

Provided that any appliances as aforesaid in use at the date of the ratification of this Convention shall be allowed to remain in use—

- (a) until the fencing is renewed if they are fenced on both sides to a clear height of at least 2 feet 8 inches (80 cm.) ;
- (b) for two years from the date of ratification if they are fenced on both sides to a clear height of at least 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.).

(4) The ladders specified in paragraph (2) (b) of this Article shall be of adequate length and strength, and properly secured.

(5) (a) Exceptions to the provisions of this Article may be allowed by the competent authorities when they are satisfied that the appliances specified in the Article are not required for the safety of the workers.

(b) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to cargo stages or cargo gangways when exclusively used for the processes.

(6) Workers shall not use, or be required to use, any other means of access than the means specified or allowed by this Article.

Article 4

When the workers have to proceed to or from a ship by water for the processes, appropriate measures shall be prescribed to ensure their safe transport, including the conditions to be complied with by the vessels used for this purpose.

Article 5

(1) When the workers have to carry on the processes in a hold the depth of which from the level of the deck to the bottom of the hold exceeds 5 feet (1 m. 50), there shall be safe means of access from the deck to the hold for their use.

(2) The said means of access shall ordinarily be by ladder, which shall not be deemed to be safe unless it complies with the following conditions :

- (a) provides foothold of a depth, including any space behind the ladder, of not less than 4 1/2 inches (11 1/2 cm.) for a width of not less than 10 inches (25 cm.) and a firm handhold ;
- (b) is not recessed under the deck more than is reasonably necessary to keep it clear of the hatchway ;

- (c) is continued by and is in line with arrangements for secure handhold and foothold on the coamings (e.g. cleats or cups) ;
- (d) the said arrangements on the coamings provide foothold of a depth, including any space behind the said arrangements, of not less than 4 1/2 inches (11 1/2 cm.) for a width of not less than 10 inches (25 cm.) ;
- (e) if separate ladders are provided between the lower decks, the said ladders are as far as practicable in line with the ladder from the top deck.

Where, however, owing to the construction of the ship, the provision of a ladder would not be reasonably practicable, it shall be open to the competent authorities to allow other means of access, provided that they comply with the conditions laid down in this Article for ladders so far as they are applicable.

In the case of ships existing at the date of the ratification of this Convention the measurement requirements of subparagraphs (a) and (d) of this paragraph shall be deemed to be complied with, until the ladders and arrangements are replaced, if the actual measurements are not more than 10 per cent. less than the measurements specified in the said subparagraphs (a) and (d).

(3) Sufficient free passage to the means of access shall be left at the coamings.

(4) Shaft tunnels shall be equipped with adequate handhold and foothold on both sides.

(5) When a ladder is to be used in the hold of a vessel which is not decked it shall be the duty of the contractor undertaking the processes to provide such ladder. It shall be equipped at the top with hooks or with other means for firmly securing it.

(6) The workers shall not use, or be required to use, other means of access than the means specified or allowed by this Article.

(7) Ships existing at the date of ratification of this Convention shall be exempt from compliance with the measurements in paragraph (2) (a) and (d) and from the provisions of paragraph (4) of this Article for a period not exceeding four years from the date of ratification of this Convention.

Article 6

(1) While the workers are on a ship for the purpose of the processes, every hatchway of a cargo hold accessible to the workers which exceeds 5 feet (1 m. 50) in depth from the level of the deck to the bottom of the hold, and which is not protected to a clear height of 2 feet 6 inches (75 cm.) by the coamings, shall, when not in use for the passage of goods, coal or other material, either be securely fenced to a height of 3 feet (90 cm.) or be securely covered. National laws or regulations shall determine whether the requirements of this paragraph shall be enforced during meal times and other short interruptions of work.

(2) Similar measures shall be taken when necessary to protect all other openings in a deck which might be dangerous to the workers.

Article 7

1. When the processes have to be carried on on a ship, the means of access thereto and all places on board at which the workers are employed or to which they may be required to proceed in the course of their employment shall be efficiently lighted.

2. The means of lighting shall be such as not to endanger the safety of the workers nor to interfere with the navigation of other vessels.

Article 8

In order to ensure the safety of the workers when engaged in removing or replacing hatch coverings and beams used for hatch coverings,

(1) hatch coverings and beams used for hatch coverings shall be maintained in good condition ;

(2) hatch coverings shall be fitted with adequate hand grips, having regard to their size and weight, unless the construction of the hatch or the hatch coverings is of a character rendering the provision of hand grips unnecessary ;

(3) beams used for hatch coverings shall have suitable gear for removing and replacing them of such a character as to render it unnecessary for workers to go upon them for the purpose of adjusting such gear ;

(4) all hatch coverings and fore and aft and thwart-ship beams shall, in so far as they are not interchangeable, be kept plainly marked to indicate the deck and hatch to which they belong and their position therein ;

(5) hatch coverings shall not be used in the construction of cargo stages or for any other purpose which may expose them to damage.

Article 9

1. Appropriate measures shall be prescribed to ensure that no hoisting machine, or gear, whether fixed or loose, used in connection therewith, is employed in the processes on shore or on board ship unless it is in a safe working condition.

2. In particular,

(1) before being taken into use, the said machines, fixed gear on board ship accessory thereto as defined by national laws

or regulations, and chains and wire ropes used in connection therewith, shall be adequately examined and tested, and the safe working load thereof certified, in the manner prescribed and by a competent person acceptable to the national authorities ;

(2) after being taken into use, every hoisting machine, whether used on shore or on board ship, and all fixed gear on board ship accessory thereto as defined by national laws or regulations shall be thoroughly examined or inspected as follows :

- (a) to be thoroughly examined every four years and inspected every twelve months : derricks, goose necks, mast bands, derrick bands, eyebolts, spans and any other fixed gear the dismantling of which is specially difficult ;
- (b) to be thoroughly examined every twelve months : all hoisting machines (e.g. cranes, winches), blocks, shackles and all other accessory gear not included in (a).

All loose gear (e.g. chains, wire ropes, rings, hooks) shall be inspected on each occasion before use unless they have been inspected within the previous three months.

Chains shall not be shortened by tying knots in them and precautions shall be taken to prevent injury to them from sharp edges.

A thimble or loop splice made in any wire rope shall have at least three tucks with a whole strand of rope and two tucks with one half of the wires cut out of each strand ; provided that this requirement shall not operate to prevent the use of another form of splice which can be shown to be as efficient as the form hereby prescribed.

(3) Chains and such similar gear as is specified by national laws or regulations (e.g. hooks, rings, shackles, swivels) shall, unless they have been subjected to such other sufficient treatment as may be prescribed by national laws or regulations, be annealed as follows under the supervision of a competent person acceptable to the national authorities :

- (a) In the case of chains and the said gear carried on board ship :
 - (i) half inch (12 $\frac{1}{2}$ mm.) and smaller chains or gear in general use once at least in every six months ;
 - (ii) all other chains or gear (including span chains but excluding bridle chains attached to derricks or masts) in general use once at least in every twelve months ;

Provided that in the case of such gear used solely on cranes and other hoisting appliances worked by hand, twelve months shall be substituted for six months in sub-paragraph (i) and two years for twelve months in sub-paragraph (ii) ;

Provided also that, if the competent authority is of opinion that owing to the size, design, material or infrequency of use of any of the said gear the requirements of this paragraph as to annealing are not necessary for the protection of the workers, it may, by certificate in writing (which it may at its discretion revoke), exempt such gear from the said requirements subject to such conditions as may be specified in the said certificate.

(b) In the case of chains and the said gear not carried on board ship :

measures shall be prescribed to secure the annealing of the said chains and gear.

(c) In the case of the said chains and gear whether carried on board ship or not, which have been lengthened, altered or repaired by welding, they shall thereupon be tested and re-examined.

(4) Such duly authenticated records as will provide sufficient prima facie evidence of the safe condition of the machines and gear concerned shall be kept, on shore or on the ship as the case may be, specifying the safe working load and the dates and results of the tests and examinations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this Article and of the annealings or other treatment referred to in paragraph (3).

Such records shall, on the application of any person authorised for the purpose, be produced by the person in charge thereof.

(5) The safe working load shall be kept plainly marked on all cranes, derricks and chain slings and on any similar hoisting gear used on board ship as specified by national laws or regulations. The safe working load marked on chain slings shall be either in plain figures or letters upon the chains or upon a tablet or ring of durable material attached securely thereto.

(6) All motors, cogwheels, chain and friction gearing, shafting, live electric conductors and steam pipes shall (unless it can be shown that by their position and construction they are equally safe to every worker employed as they would be if securely fenced) be securely fenced so far as is practicable without impeding the safe working of the ship.

(7) Cranes and winches shall be provided with such means as will reduce to a minimum the risk of the accidental descent of a load while in process of being lifted or lowered.

(8) Appropriate measures shall be taken to prevent exhaust steam from and, so far as practicable, live steam to any crane or winch obscuring any part of the working place at which a worker is employed.

(9) Appropriate measures shall be taken to prevent the foot of a derrick being accidentally lifted out of its socket or support.

Article 10

Only sufficiently competent and reliable persons shall be employed to operate lifting or transporting machinery whether driven by mechanical power or otherwise, or to give signals to a driver of such machinery, or to attend to cargo falls on winch ends or winch drums.

Article 11

(1) No load shall be left suspended from any hoisting machine unless there is a competent person actually in charge of the machine while the load is so left.

(2) Appropriate measures shall be prescribed to provide for the employment of a signaller where this is necessary for the safety of the workers.

(3) Appropriate measures shall be prescribed with the object of preventing dangerous methods of working in the stacking, unstacking, stowing and unstowing of cargo, or handling in connection therewith.

(4) Before work is begun at a hatch the beams thereof shall either be removed or be securely fastened to prevent their displacement.

(5) Precautions shall be taken to facilitate the escape of the workers when employed in a hold or on 'tween decks in dealing with coal or other bulk cargo.

(6) No stage shall be used in the processes unless it is substantially and firmly constructed, adequately supported and where necessary securely fastened.

No truck shall be used for carrying cargo between ship and shore on a stage so steep as to be unsafe.

Stages shall where necessary be treated with suitable material to prevent the workers slipping.

(7) When the working space in a hold is confined to the square of the hatch, and except for the purpose of breaking out or making up slings,

(a) hooks shall not be made fast in the bands or fastenings of bales of cotton, wool, cork, gunny-bags, or other similar goods ;

(b) can-hooks shall not be used for raising or lowering a barrel when, owing to the construction or condition of the barrel or of the hooks, their use is likely to be unsafe.

(8) No gear of any description shall be loaded beyond the safe working load save in exceptional cases and then only in so far as may be allowed by national laws or regulations.

(9) In the case of shore cranes with varying capacity (e.g. raising and lowering jib with load capacity varying according to the angle) an automatic indicator or a table showing the safe working loads at the corresponding inclinations of the jib shall be provided on the crane.

Article 12

National laws or regulations shall prescribe such precautions as may be deemed necessary to ensure the proper protection of the workers, having regard to the circumstances of each case, when they have to deal with or work in proximity to goods which are in themselves dangerous to life or health by reason either of their inherent nature or of their condition at the time, or work where such goods have been stowed.

Article 13

1. At docks, wharves, quays and similar places which are in frequent use for the processes, such facilities as having regard to local circumstances shall be prescribed by national laws or regulations shall be available for rapidly securing the rendering of first-aid and in serious cases of accident removal to the nearest place of treatment. Sufficient supplies of first-aid equipment shall be kept permanently on the premises in such a condition and in such positions as to be fit and readily accessible for immediate use during working hours. The said supplies shall be in charge of a responsible person or persons, who shall include one or more persons competent to render first-aid, and whose services shall also be readily available during working hours.

2. At such docks, wharves, quays and similar places as aforesaid appropriate provision shall also be made for the rescue of immersed workers from drowning.

Article 14

Any fencing, gangway, gear, ladder, life-saving means or appliance, light, mark, stage or other thing whatsoever required to be provided under this Convention shall not be removed or interfered with by any person except when duly authorised or in case of necessity, and if removed shall be restored at the end of the period for which its removal was necessary.

Article 15

1. It shall be open to each Member to grant exemptions from or exceptions to the provisions of this Convention in respect of any dock, wharf, quay or similar place at which the processes are only occasionally carried on or the traffic is small and confined to small ships, or in respect of certain special ships or special classes of ships or ships below a certain small tonnage, or in cases where as a result of climatic conditions it would be impracticable to require the provisions of this Convention to be carried out.

2. The International Labour Office shall be kept informed of the provisions in virtue of which any exemptions and exceptions as aforesaid are allowed.

Article 16

Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this Convention which affect the construction or permanent equipment of the ship shall apply to ships the building of which is commenced after the date of ratification of the Convention, and to all other ships within four years after that date, provided that in the meantime the said provisions shall be applied so far as reasonable and practicable to such other ships.

Article 17

In order to ensure the due enforcement of any regulations prescribed for the protection of the workers against accidents,

(1) The regulations shall clearly define the persons or bodies who are to be responsible for compliance with the respective regulations ;

(2) Provision shall be made for an efficient system of inspection and for penalties for breaches of the regulations ;

(3) Copies or summaries of the regulations shall be posted up in prominent positions at docks, wharves, quays and similar places which are in frequent use for the processes.

Article 18

1. Each Member undertakes to enter into reciprocal arrangements on the basis of this Convention with the other Members which have ratified this Convention, including more particularly the mutual recognition of the arrangements made in their respective countries for testing, examining and annealing and of certificates and records relating thereto ;

2. Provided that, as regards the construction of ships and as regards plant used on ships and the records and other matters to be observed on board under the terms of this Convention, each Member is satisfied that the arrangements adopted by the other Member secure a general standard of safety for the workers equally effective as the standard required under its own laws and regulations ;

3. Provided also that the Governments shall have due regard to the obligations of paragraph (11) of Article 19 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation.

Article 19

The formal ratifications of this Convention under the conditions set forth in the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 20

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members whose ratifications have been registered with the International Labour Office.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 21

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 22

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period or five years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 23

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 24

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve denunciation of this Convention without any requirement of delay, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 22 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force.

2. As from the date of the coming into force of the new revising Convention, the present Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

3. Nevertheless, this Convention shall remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Recommendation 41

Recommendation concerning the Age for Admission of Children to Non-Industrial Employment

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Sixteenth Session on 12 April 1932, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the age of admission of children to employment in non-industrial occupations, which is the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation, adopts this thirtieth day of April of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Minimum Age (Non-Industrial Employment) Recommendation, 1932, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration, with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

The Conference,

Having adopted a Convention concerning the age for admission of children to non-industrial employment, with a view to completing the international regulations laid down by the three Conventions adopted at previous Sessions concerning the age for admission of children to industrial employment, employment at sea and employment in agriculture ; and

Desiring to ensure as uniform application as possible of the new Convention which leaves certain details of application to national laws or regulations ;

Considers that, in spite of the variety of employments covered by the Convention and the need of making allowance for the adoption of practical methods of application varying with the climate, customs, national tradition and other conditions peculiar to individual countries, account should be taken of certain methods which have been found to give satisfactory results, and which may accordingly be a guide to the Members of the Organisation.

The Conference therefore recommends the Members to take the following rules and methods into consideration :

I. LIGHT WORK

(1) In order that children may derive full benefit from their education and that their physical, intellectual and moral development may be safeguarded, it is desirable that so long as they are required to attend school their employment should be restricted to as great an extent as possible.

(2) In determining the categories of employment in light work to which children may be admitted outside the hours of school attendance, such occupations and employments as running errands, distribution of newspapers, odd jobs in connection with the practice of sport or the playing of games, and picking and selling flowers or fruits might be taken into consideration.

(3) For the admission of children to employment in light work the competent authorities should require the consent of parents or guardians, a medical certificate of physical fitness for the employment contemplated, and, where necessary, previous consultation with the school authorities.

(4) The limitations on the hours of work per day of children employed in light work outside school hours should be adapted to the school time-table on the one hand, and to the age of the child on the other. Where instruction is given both in the morning and in the afternoon, the child should be ensured a sufficient rest before morning school, in the interval between morning and afternoon school, and immediately after the latter.

II. EMPLOYMENT IN PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENTS

(5) Employment in any public entertainment, or as actors or supernumeraries in the making of cinematographic films, should in principle be prohibited for children under twelve years of age, and exceptions to this rule should be kept within the narrowest limits and only allowed in so far as the interests of art, science or education may require.

The permits to be granted by the competent authorities in individual cases should only be issued if the competent authorities are satisfied as to the nature and the particular type of the employment contemplated, if the parents' or guardians' consent has been obtained, and if the physical fitness of the child for the employment has been established. In the case of cinematographic films, measures should be taken to ensure that the children employed shall be under the supervision of a medical eye specialist. The child should also be assured of receiving good treatment and of being able to continue his education.

Each permit should specify the number of hours during which the child may be employed, with special regard to night work and work on Sundays and legal public holidays. It should be delivered for a particular entertainment, or for a limited period, and may be renewed.

III. DANGEROUS EMPLOYMENTS

(6) The competent authorities should consult the principal organisations of employers and workers concerned before determining the employments which are dangerous to the life, health or morals of the persons employed, and before fixing the higher age or ages of admission to be prescribed for such employments by national laws or regulations.

Among employments of the kind referred to might be included, for example, certain employments in public entertainments such as acrobatic performances ; in establishments for the cure of the sick such as employment involving danger of contagion or infection ; and in establishments for the sale of alcoholic liquor such as serving customers.

Different ages for particular employments should be fixed in relation to their special dangers and in some cases the age required for girls might be higher than the age for boys.

IV. PROHIBITION OF EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN BY CERTAIN PERSONS

(7) With a view to safeguarding the moral interests of children persons who have been condemned for certain serious offences or who are notorious drunkards should be prohibited from employing children other than their own, even if such children live in the same household with these persons.

V. ENFORCEMENT

(8) In order to facilitate the enforcement of the provisions of the Convention, it is desirable to institute a public system of registration and of employment or identity books for children admitted to employment.

These documents should contain, in particular, indications of the age of the child, the nature of his employment, the number of hours of work authorised, and the dates when the child began and finished his employment.

In the case of street trading the wearing of special badges should be prescribed.

In the case of children employed in public entertainments, supervising or inspecting officials should have the right of access to premises in which such entertainments are prepared or performed.

Recommendation 42

Recommendation concerning Employment Agencies

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Seventeenth Session on 8 June 1933, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the abolition of fee-charging employment agencies, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-ninth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Employment Agencies Recommendation, 1933, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

The Conference,

Having adopted a Convention concerning fee-charging employment agencies intended to supplement the provisions of the Convention and Recommendation concerning unemployment which it adopted at its First Session ;

Considering it to be desirable to ensure within as short a time as possible the complete abolition of fee-charging employment agencies conducted with a view to profit ;

Considering that, for certain occupations, the abolition of such agencies may nevertheless involve certain difficulties in countries in which the free public employment offices are not in a position completely to take the place of the agencies abolished ;

Considering that features other than placing fees may give a profit-making character to placing operations and may lead to abuses ;

Recommends the Members to take the following rules and methods into consideration :

1. Measures should be taken to adapt the free public employment offices to the needs of the occupations in which recourse is often had to the services of fee-charging employment agencies.

2. The principle of having specialised public employment offices for particular occupations should be applied and in so far as possible persons familiar with the characteristics, usages and customs of the occupations concerned should be attached to such offices.

3. Representatives of the organisations most representative of workers and employers in the occupations concerned should be invited to collaborate in the working of the public employment offices.

II

1. Persons and undertakings which either directly or through any intermediary derive any profit from certain activities such as the keeping of public houses, hotels, second-hand clothes shops, pawnshops or money-changing should be forbidden to engage in placing.

2. Placing operations should be prohibited on all premises or in all outhouses and annexes of such premises where any of the above-mentioned trades are carried on.

2. Where the pension varies with the time spent in insurance and its award is made conditional upon the completion by the insured person of a qualifying period, the pension shall, unless a minimum rate is guaranteed, include a fixed sum or fixed portion not dependent on the time spent in insurance; where the pension is awarded without any condition as to the completion of a qualifying period, provision may be made for a guaranteed minimum rate of pension.

3. Where contributions are graduated according to remuneration, the remuneration taken into account for this purpose shall also be taken into account for the purpose of computing the pension, whether or not the pension varies with the time spent in insurance.

Recommendation 43

Recommendation concerning the General Principles of Invalidity, Old-Age and Widows' and Orphans' Insurance

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Seventeenth Session on 8 June 1933, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance, which is included in the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals should take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-ninth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Invalidity, Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance Recommendation, 1933, to be submitted to the Members of the International Labour Organisation for consideration with a view to effect being given to it by national legislation or otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation :

The Conference,

Having adopted Conventions concerning compulsory invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance for persons employed in industrial or commercial undertakings, in the liberal professions, and for outworkers and domestic servants and concerning compulsory invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance for persons employed in agricultural undertakings, and

Considering that these Conventions lay down the minimum conditions to be complied with from the beginning by every scheme of compulsory invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance, and

Considering that it is desirable to indicate a number of general principles which practice shows to be best calculated to promote a just, effective and appropriate organisation of invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance ;

Recommends that each Member should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

I. SCOPE

1. (a) Compulsory invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance for employed persons should include, irrespective of age, sex or nationality, every person who is ordinarily engaged in employment for remuneration.

(b) Where economic, social and administrative conditions permit, national laws or regulations should provide that invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance should also include persons of small means working on their own account in industry, commerce and agriculture.

2. If, however, it is considered advisable to fix a minimum age for entry into insurance, such age should be as close as possible to the age at which compulsory school attendance ceases and at which the choice of an occupation is made.

3. The fixing of a maximum age for entry into insurance is only justified in insurance schemes which make the right to a pension conditional upon the completion of a qualifying period and then only for workers who, when they take up employment for remuneration as their ordinary occupation, are too old to be able to complete the qualifying period before the normal pensionable age.

4. Where it is considered advisable to fix (apart from the limitation, inherent in social insurance, of the remuneration taken into account for insurance purposes) a maximum remuneration as a criterion of liability to insurance, only such workers should thereby be excluded as, by reason of the fact that their remuneration is considerably in excess of the general level of wages, may be deemed to be capable of making provision by themselves against invalidity, old age and death.

II. PENSIONS

A. Qualifying Period and Insurance Periods

5. The qualifying period prescribed by insurance schemes which provide for awarding all pensioners a pension at a fixed rate or varying with the remuneration taken into account for insurance purposes should be restricted to a contribution period which shall not be longer than is strictly necessary to preclude persons from entering insurance with intent to take undue advantage of it and to ensure some consideration for the benefits afforded.

6. The qualifying period for the purpose of an invalidity or survivor's pension should in no case exceed 60 contribution months, 250 contribution weeks or 1,500 contribution days and the qualifying period for the purpose of an old-age pension should not exceed twice this maximum.

7. Periods during which the insured person is incapable of work by reason of sickness, is not available for work by reason of childbirth or is involuntarily unemployed should, within limits to be prescribed, count towards the qualifying period, even where no contributions are paid for such periods by sickness or maternity insurance or by an unemployment fund.

8. (a) Insurance schemes which place limitations on the retention of such rights in respect of contributions which have been paid should guarantee retention of such rights for a term of at least eighteen months reckoned from the last contribution payment, this term being prolonged, in schemes in which contributions are graduated according to remuneration, up to at least one-third (less the periods for which contributions have not been credited) of the total of the periods for which contributions have been credited since entry into insurance. In reckoning this term, periods during which the insured person was incapable of work by reason of sickness, was not available for work by reason of childbirth or was involuntarily unemployed or engaged in military service, should not be considered as periods for which contributions have not been credited.

(b) Any further retention of rights in respect of contributions may be made conditional either upon resumption of payment of contributions in virtue of compulsory or voluntarily continued insurance or upon the payment of a moderate fee for this purpose; in insurance schemes in which contributions are graduated according to remuneration and which provide for pensions varying with the time spent in insurance, resumption of payment of contributions should operate to increase the value of the rights in course of acquisition.

9. A person formerly insured should be able to recover rights already expired, by the payment of a prescribed number of contributions in virtue of compulsory or voluntarily continued insurance; where the pension varies with the number or amount of the contributions credited to the account of the insured person, the number of contributions so prescribed should be less than the number required for the initial qualifying period.

10. Sums required to be paid for maintaining the rights in course of acquisition of insured persons who are unemployed for a long time should—in view of the impossibility of putting the expense of such payments solely on the insured persons in employment—be obtained through the financial assistance of the public authorities ; and the same principle should apply to payments for the purpose of consolidating and enhancing the rights of such unemployed persons.

B. Old-Age Pensions

11. For insurance schemes which fix the pensionable age above sixty it is recommended, as a means of relieving the labour market and of ensuring rest for the aged, that the pensionable age should be reduced to sixty, in so far as the demographic, economic and financial situation of the country permits and, if necessary, by stages.

12. Insured persons who have for many years been engaged in a particularly arduous or unhealthy occupation should be enabled to claim a pension at a less advanced age than workers in other occupations.

13. (a) In order to ensure that workers in their old age shall not suffer privations, the pension should be sufficient to cover essential needs. The pension provided for all pensioners who have completed a certain qualifying period should accordingly be fixed with due regard to the cost of living.

(b) In insurance schemes in which contributions are graduated according to remuneration, insured persons to the account of whom have been credited contributions corresponding to the normal duration of working life should be awarded a pension commensurate with their economic condition during their working life. To this end the pension provided for insured persons who have completed thirty years of actual contribution should not be less than half the remuneration taken into account for insurance purposes either since entry into insurance or over a prescribed period immediately preceding the award of the pension.

14. A bonus should be paid to a pensioner—

(a) for each dependent child who is of school age or, being under the age of seventeen, is continuing his general or vocational education, or who cannot by reason of infirmity earn his living ;

(b) when his wife is aged or infirm and is not herself on this account entitled to a pension.

15. A pensioner who needs the constant attendance of another person should be awarded a special supplement.

C. Invalidity Pensions

16. (a) A pension should be awarded to an insured person who by reason of sickness or infirmity is unable to earn an appreciable remuneration by work suited to his strength and ability and his training ; remuneration which is less than one-third of the ordinary remuneration of a fit worker of similar training and experience should not be deemed to be appreciable.

(b) Nevertheless, in special insurance schemes set up on behalf of manual or non-manual workers in certain occupations, reduction of capacity for work should be assessed solely with reference to the occupation hitherto followed or to a similar occupation.

17. (a) In order to fulfil its purpose, an insurance scheme should provide for every insured person who becomes invalid after having completed the qualifying period a pension sufficient to cover his essential needs. The minimum pension provided for every pensioner should accordingly be fixed with due regard to the cost of living.

(b) In insurance schemes in which the minimum pension is fixed in terms of the remuneration taken into account for insurance purposes, the minimum should not be less than 40 per cent. of such remuneration. The same result should be aimed at by schemes in which the pension includes a fixed portion which is the same for every pensioner and a portion varying with the number and amount of the contributions credited to his account.

18. A bonus should be paid to a pensioner for each dependent child who is of school age or, being under the age of seventeen, is continuing his general or vocational education or who cannot by reason of infirmity earn his living.

19. A pensioner who needs the constant attendance of another person should be awarded a special supplement.

D. Survivors' Pensions

20. (a) If a pensioner or insured person dies after completing the qualifying period and leaves a widow, the widow should be entitled to a pension as long as she does not remarry.

(b) If, however, the award of the pension is subject to the fulfilment of other conditions, pensions should nevertheless be awarded to widows unable to earn their living by reason of age or invalidity and to widows with a dependent child who is of school age or who, being under the age of seventeen, is continuing his general or vocational education.

21. A pension should also be awarded to an invalid widower who by reason of his invalidity was dependent on an insured woman who died after completing the qualifying period.

22. (a) The pension awarded to a widow (or invalid widower) should represent a substantial contribution towards covering essential needs. Whatever may be the method of computing it, the minimum pension should be fixed with due regard to the cost of living.

(b) In insurance schemes in which contributions are graduated according to the remuneration of the deceased, the widow's (or invalid widower's) pension should not be less than half the pension to which the deceased was entitled or would have been entitled if at the date of his death he had been awarded an invalidity or old-age pension. Nevertheless, where such schemes determine the rights of survivors without regard to the rate of the pension to which the deceased was or would have been entitled, a widow's (or invalid widower's) pension should not be less than 20 per cent. of the remuneration of the deceased taken into account for the purposes of his insurance either since entry into insurance or over a prescribed period immediately preceding his death.

23. (a) Every child of school age who was dependent on a pensioner or insured person who died after completing the qualifying period should be entitled to a child's pension and the pension should continue to be paid until the age of seventeen if the child is continuing his general or vocational education and even beyond this age if the child cannot by reason of infirmity earn his living.

(b) A child's pension may be paid in the form of a supplement to the pension of his widowed mother.

24. (a) The minimum pension provided for every child should represent a substantial contribution towards the cost of maintaining and educating him ; such minimum should be higher in the case of an orphan child.

(b) In insurance schemes in which contributions are graduated according to the remuneration of the deceased, a child's pension should not be less than one-quarter or in the case of orphans one-half of the pension to which the deceased was entitled or would have been entitled if at the date of his death he had been awarded an invalidity or old-age pension. Nevertheless, where such schemes determine the rights of survivors without regard to the rate of the pension to which the deceased was or would have been entitled, a child's pension should not be less than 10 per cent. or in the case of orphans 20 per cent. of the remuneration of the deceased as taken into account for the purposes of his insurance either since entry into insurance or over a prescribed period immediately preceding his death.

25. If it is considered advisable to fix a maximum for the total of the survivors' pensions which may be awarded in respect of one deceased person, such maximum should not, where survivors' pensions vary with the pension of the deceased, be less than the pension, including bonuses for family responsibilities, to which the deceased was or would have been entitled, or, where survivors' pensions vary with the remuneration of the deceased taken into account for the purposes of his insurance, be less than half such remuneration.

26. Survivors not eligible for a pension because the qualifying conditions have not been fulfilled should (provided that a minimum number of payments has been credited to the account of the deceased) be granted a lump sum which will enable them to adapt themselves to the change in their circumstances caused by the death of the head of the family.

27. In countries where burial expenses are not, by law or custom, covered by some other insurance, and in particular by sickness insurance, a benefit in respect of the cost of decent burial should be paid by widows' and orphans' insurance on the death of an insured person.

E. Provisions for the Suspension or Reduction of Pensions

28. Where provision is made for the suspension or reduction of invalidity, old-age or survivors' pensions in cases where a concurrent title exists to a pension acquired under another scheme of social insurance or a scheme of pensions or workmen's compensation for accidents or occupational diseases, the provisions concerning suspension or reduction should be such as to enable the pensioner to receive in its entirety whichever of the pensions is the higher and in any case he should be paid that part of the invalidity, old-age or survivor's pension which corresponds to the insured person's own contributions.

29. Where an invalidity or old-age pension is suspended for reason other than the existence of a concurrent title to another pension, the dependent family of the person whose pension is suspended should be awarded a maintenance allowance equal to the whole or to a part of the pension.

III. FINANCIAL RESOURCES

30. (a) The financial resources of the insurance scheme should be provided by contributions from the insured persons and contributions from their employers.

(b) The public authorities should contribute to the insurance scheme.

31. As a general rule the contribution of the insured person should not be higher than the contribution of his employer.

32. The employer should be responsible for the whole or the greater part of the joint contribution in respect of workers who are remunerated only in kind, outworkers and apprentices whose remuneration does not exceed a prescribed amount.

33. The State should be responsible for the contributions in respect of periods of compulsory military service performed by persons who were insured before beginning their military service.

IV. ADMINISTRATION

34. National laws or regulations should provide that insured women are adequately represented on the administrative bodies of invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance.

3. In those countries where no Government regulation as yet applies to the employment of women in industrial undertakings during the night, the term "night" may provisionally, and for a maximum period of three years, be declared by the Government to signify a period of only ten hours, including the interval between ten o'clock in the evening and five o'clock in the morning.

Article 5

In India and Siam, the application of Article 3 of this Convention may be suspended by the Government in respect to any industrial undertaking, except factories as defined by the national law. Notice of every such suspension shall be filed with the International Labour Office.

Article 6

In industrial undertakings which are influenced by the seasons and in all cases where exceptional circumstances demand it, the night period may be reduced to ten hours on sixty days of the year.

Article 7

In countries where the climate renders work by day particularly trying to the health, the night period may be shorter than prescribed in the above articles, provided that compensatory rest is accorded during the day.

This Convention does not apply to women holding responsible positions of management who are not ordinarily engaged in manual work.

Article 9

Article 13

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 14

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, then, unless the new Convention otherwise provides,

- (a) the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve the immediate denunciation of this Convention, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 12 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force ;
- (b) as from the date when the new revising Convention comes into force, this Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

Convention 43Convention for the Regulation of Hours of Work in Automatic Sheet-Glass Works ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Eighteenth Session on 4 June 1934, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the regulation of hours of work in automatic sheet-glass works, which is the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention, adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four the following Convention, which may be cited as the Sheet-Glass Works Convention, 1934 :

Article 1

1. This Convention applies to persons who work in successive shifts in necessarily continuous operations in sheet-glass works which manufacture by automatic machines sheet-glass or other glass of the same characteristics which only differs from sheet-glass in thickness and other dimensions.

2. By necessarily continuous operations are meant all operations which, on account of the automatic and continuous character of the feeding of the molten glass to the machines and the working of the machines, are necessarily carried on without a break at any time of the day, night or week.

Article 2

1. The persons to whom this Convention applies shall be employed under a system providing for at least four shifts.

- (a) in case of accident, actual or threatened, or in case of urgent work to be done to machinery or plant, or in case of force majeure ; or
- (b) in order to make good the unforeseen absence of one or more members of a shift.

2. Adequate compensation for all additional hours worked in accordance with this Article shall be granted in such manner as may be determined by national laws or regulations or by agreement between the organisations of employers and workers concerned.

Article 4

In order to facilitate the effective enforcement of the provisions of this Convention every employer shall be required—

- (a) to notify, by the posting of notices in conspicuous positions in the works or other suitable place or by such other method as may be approved by the competent authority, the hours at which each shift begins and ends ;
- (b) not to alter the hours so notified except in such manner and with such notice as may be approved by the competent authority ; and
- (c) to keep a record in the form prescribed by the competent authority of all additional hours worked in pursuance of Article 3 of this Convention and of the compensation granted in respect thereof.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 7

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of ten years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of ten years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 9

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 10

4. This Convention does not apply to seamen, sea fishermen, or agricultural workers as these categories may be defined by national laws or regulations.

Article 3

In cases of partial unemployment, benefit or an allowance shall be payable to unemployed persons whose employment has been reduced in a way to be determined by national laws or regulations.

Article 4

The right to receive benefit or an allowance may be made subject to compliance by the claimant with the following conditions :

- (a) that he is capable of and available for work ;
- (b) that he has registered at a public employment exchange or at some other office approved by the competent authority and, subject to such exceptions and conditions as may be prescribed by national laws or regulations, attends there regularly ; and
- (c) that he complies with such other requirements as may be prescribed by national laws or regulations for the purpose of showing whether he fulfils the conditions for the receipt of benefit or an allowance.

- (a) if acceptance of it would involve residence in a district in which suitable accommodation is not available ;
- (b) if the rate of wages offered is lower, or the other conditions of employment are less favourable :
 - (i) where the employment offered is employment in the claimant's usual occupation and in the district where he was last ordinarily employed, than those which he might reasonably have expected to obtain, having regard to those which he habitually obtained in his usual occupation in that district or would have obtained if he had continued to be so employed ;
 - (ii) in all other cases, than the standard generally observed at the time in the occupation and district in which the employment is offered ;

3. A claimant who on leaving his employment has received from his employer in virtue of his contract of service compensation for and substantially equal to his loss of earnings for a certain period may be disqualified for the duration of that period for the receipt of benefit or of an allowance. A discharge allowance provided for by national laws or regulations shall not be deemed to be such compensation.

Article 12

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 19

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered with the International Labour Office, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 20

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of five years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered with the International Labour Office.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of five years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of five years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of five years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 21

- (b) as from the date when the new revising Convention comes into force this Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

2. This Convention shall in any case remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 23

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

Recommendation 44

Recommendation concerning Unemployment Insurance and Various Forms of Relief for the Unemployed

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Eighteenth Session on 4 June 1934, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to unemployment insurance and various forms of relief for the unemployed, which is the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation, adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Unemployment Provision Recommendation, 1934 :

The Conference,

Having adopted a Convention ensuring benefit or allowances to the involuntarily unemployed ;

Considering that this Convention lays down the minimum conditions to be complied with by every scheme of unemployment insurance or assistance ;

Considering that it is desirable to indicate a number of general principles which practice shows to be best calculated to promote a satisfactory organisation of unemployment insurance and assistance ;

Recommends that each Member should take the following principles and rules into consideration :

1. In countries where compulsory insurance against unemployment is not in operation, steps should be taken to create such a system as soon as possible.

2. In countries in which compulsory or voluntary unemployment insurance is in operation, a complementary assistance scheme should be maintained to cover persons who have exhausted their right to benefit and in certain cases those who have not yet acquired the right to benefit ; this scheme should be on a different basis from the ordinary arrangements for the relief of destitution.

3. All schemes for the payment of unemployment benefit or allowances should cover not only persons who are wholly unemployed, but also persons who are partially unemployed.

4. (a) Unemployment insurance and assistance schemes should be applied as soon as possible to all persons who are employed under a contract of service, and to persons employed under a contract of apprenticeship with money payment. If, however, exceptions are considered necessary, they should be confined within the narrowest possible limits.

(b) Such persons should be covered either by insurance or assistance until they reach the age at which they are entitled to an old-age pension.

(c) If circumstances make it difficult to apply the general provisions relating to unemployment insurance to a particular class of workers, special arrangements should be made for the insurance of such workers. These special arrangements should aim in particular at ensuring adequate proof of unemployment and at adapting the benefit to the normal earnings of the workers concerned.

(d) Whenever possible, and in particular whenever satisfactory measures of supervision can be applied, special provision should be made for the relief in case of unemployment of persons of comparatively small means who work on their own account.

5. Where it is considered advisable to fix a maximum remuneration as a criterion of liability to insurance, only such workers should thereby be excluded as are in receipt of remuneration sufficiently high for them to ensure their own protection against the risk of unemployment, the ultimate object being to include all workers, manual and non-manual, irrespective of income.

6. The qualifying period permitted by the Convention should not exceed 26 weeks' employment in an occupation covered by the scheme, or the payment of 26 weekly contributions or the equivalent, within twelve months preceding the claim for benefit, or alternatively 52 weeks' such employment, or 52 weekly contributions or the equivalent, within twenty-four months preceding the claim for benefit.

7. The period during which benefit is payable under national laws or regulations should be as long as is consistent with the solvency of the scheme ; and every effort should be made to pay allowances as long as claimants are in need of them.

8. Subject to the provisions concerning partially unemployed persons, of Articles 3 and 7 of the Convention, and of paragraph 3 of the present Recommendation, the waiting period permitted by the Convention should not exceed eight days per spell of unemployment.

9. In deciding whether employment in an occupation other than that in which a claimant has previously been engaged is "suitable employment" for the purpose of the disqualification permitted by the Convention, account should be taken of the length of the claimant's service in the previous occupation, his chances of obtaining work in it, his vocational training, and his suitability for the work.

10. Disqualification for the receipt of benefit or allowances on the ground that a claimant has lost his employment by reason of a stoppage of work due to a trade dispute should be confined to cases in which the claimant is directly interested in the dispute, and should in all cases cease when the stoppage of work ceases.

11. (a) The obligation to attend a course of vocational or other instruction permitted by the Convention as a condition for the receipt of benefit or allowances should be imposed only if the unemployed person will derive an advantage therefrom either from the point of view of physical or mental well-being or of vocational or general capabilities.

(b) When imposing on an unemployed person an obligation to accept employment on relief works, account should be taken of his age, health, previous occupation and suitability for the employment in question.

(c) Only works of an exceptional and temporary character, organised by the public authority by means of funds specially allocated for the relief of the unemployed, should be considered as relief works.

12. Part of the money allocated to the relief of unemployment should be available for the purpose of facilitating the return of unemployed persons to employment, such as vocational and other training, and the payment of fares to unemployed persons who find employment in a district other than that in which they have been residing.

13. There should be a periodical review by the competent authority of the financial position of insurance funds in order that they may be kept as far as possible solvent and self-supporting. The financial arrangements should so far as possible include provisions to enable the scheme to surmount changes of short duration in the level of unemployment without change of the conditions governing the scheme.

14. An emergency fund should be created for the purpose of ensuring the payment, during periods of particularly severe unemployment, of the allowances provided for under national laws or regulations.

15. Provision should be made for the participation of representatives of the contributors in the administration of insurance schemes.

16. Equality of treatment should be applied in appropriate cases not only to the nationals of Members bound by the Convention but also to those of Members and States which, without having ratified the Convention, effectively apply its provisions.

17. States should regulate by means of bilateral agreements with neighbouring States the conditions under which benefit or allowances shall be paid to unemployed workers in frontier zones who have their residence in one country and who work in another.

Convention 46

Convention Limiting Hours of Work in Coal Mines
(Revised 1935) ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Nineteenth Session on 4 June 1935, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the partial revision of the Convention limiting hours of work in coal mines adopted by the Conference at its Fifteenth Session, which is the seventh item on the agenda of the Session, and

Considering that these proposals must take the form of an international Convention, adopts this twenty-first day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five the following Convention, which may be cited as the Hours of Work (Coal Mines) Convention (Revised), 1935 :

Article 1

1. This Convention shall apply to all coal mines, that is to say, to any mine from which only hard coal or lignite, or principally hard coal or lignite together with other minerals, is extracted.

2. For the purpose of this Convention, the term "lignite mine" shall mean any mine from which coal of a geological period subsequent to the carboniferous period is extracted.

Article 2

For the purpose of this Convention, the term "worker" shall mean—

- (a) in underground coal mines, any person occupied underground, by whatever employer and on whatever kind of work he may be employed, except persons engaged in supervision or management who do not ordinarily perform manual work ;
- (b) in open coal mines, any person employed directly or indirectly in the extraction of coal, except persons engaged in supervision or management who do not ordinarily perform manual work.

Article 3

1. Hours of work in underground hard coal mines shall mean the time spent in the mine, calculated as follows :

- (a) time spent in an underground mine shall mean the period between the time when the worker enters the cage in order to descend and the time when he leaves the cage after re-ascending ;
- (b) in mines where access is by an adit the time spent in the mine shall mean the period between the time when the worker passes through the entrance of the adit and the time of his return to the surface.

2. In no underground hard coal mine shall the time spent in the mine by any worker exceed seven hours and forty-five minutes in the day.

Article 4

The provisions of this Convention shall be deemed to be complied with if the period between the time when the first workers of the shift or of any group leave the surface and the time when they return to the surface is the same as that laid down in paragraph 2 of Article 3. The order of and the time required for the descent and ascent of a shift and of any group of workers shall, moreover, be approximately the same.

1. Subject to the provisions of the second paragraph of this Article, the provisions of this Convention shall be deemed to be complied with if the national laws or regulations prescribe that for calculating the time spent in the mine the descent or ascent of the workers is to be calculated according to the weighted average duration of the descent or ascent of all shifts of workers in the whole country. In this case, the period between the time when the last worker of the shift leaves the surface and the time when the first worker of the same shift returns to the surface shall not in any mine exceed seven hours and fifteen minutes ; provided that no method of regulation shall be permitted by which the hewers as a class of workers would on the average work longer hours than the other classes of underground workers in the same shift.

2. Any Member which, having applied the method laid down in this Article, subsequently applies the provisions of Articles 3 and 4 shall make the change simultaneously for the whole country and not for any part thereof.

Article 6

1. Workers shall not be employed on underground work in coal mines on Sundays and legal public holidays.

Provided that this requirement shall be deemed to be complied with if the workers enjoy a rest period of twenty-four consecutive hours, of which at least eighteen fall upon the Sunday or legal public holiday.

2. National laws or regulations may authorise the following exceptions to the provisions of the preceding paragraph for workers over eighteen years of age :

- (a) for work which, owing to its nature, must be carried on continuously ;
- (b) for work in connection with the ventilation of the mine and the prevention of damage to the ventilation apparatus, safety work, work in connection with first aid in the case of accident and sickness, and the care of animals ;
- (c) for survey work in so far as this cannot be done on other days without interrupting or disturbing the work of the undertaking ;
- (d) for urgent work in connection with machinery and other appliances which cannot be carried out during the regular working time of the mine, and in other urgent or exceptional cases which are outside the control of the employer.

3. The competent authorities shall take appropriate measures for ensuring that no work is done on Sundays and legal public holidays except as authorised by this Article.

4. Work permitted under paragraph 2 of this Article shall be paid for at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the regular rate.

5. Workers who are engaged to any considerable extent on work permitted under paragraph 2 of this Article shall be assured either a compensatory rest period or an adequate extra payment in addition to the rate specified in paragraph 4 of this Article. The detailed application of this provision shall be regulated by national laws or regulations.

Article 7

Lower maxima than those specified in Articles 3, 4 and 5 shall be laid down by regulations made by public authority for workers in workplaces which are rendered particularly unhealthy by reason of abnormal conditions of temperature, humidity or other cause.

Article 8

1. Regulations made by public authority may provide that the hours specified in Articles 3, 4, 5 and 7 may be exceeded in case of accident, actual or threatened, in case of force majeure, or in case of urgent work to be done to machinery, plant or equipment of the mine as a result of a breakdown of such machinery, plant or equipment, even if coal production is thereby incidentally involved, but only so far as may be necessary to avoid serious interference with the ordinary working of the mine.

2. Regulations made by public authority may provide that the hours specified in Articles 3, 4, 5 and 7 may be exceeded in the case of workers employed on operations which by their nature must be carried on continuously or on technical work, in so far as their work is necessary for preparing or terminating work in the ordinary way or for a full resumption of work on the next shift, provided, however, that this shall not refer to the production or transport of coal. The additional time so authorised for any individual worker shall not, except as specified in paragraphs 3 and 4 of this Article, exceed half an hour on any day.

3. Regulations made by public authority may provide that the hours specified in Articles 3, 4, 5 and 7 may be exceeded to an extent exceeding half an hour in the case of the following grades :

- (a) workers whose presence is indispensable for the work of ventilation and pumping stations and of such compressed air stations as are necessary for ventilation ;
- (b) underground storemen ; and
- (c) winchmen and locomotive drivers and their indispensable assistants.

Provided that no worker in the above grades who is employed on operations which by their nature must be carried on continuously may be employed for more than eight hours per day exclusive of the time spent in the mine by that worker in reaching and returning from his place of work, it being understood that in each case this time will be reduced to the indispensable minimum.

Provided also that in the case of—

- (a) underground storemen ;
- (b) enginemen and men in charge of internal shafts who are engaged upon the transport of workers ;
- (c) drivers of locomotives who are engaged upon the transport of workers ; and
- (d) the indispensable assistants of the grades specified in clauses (b) and (c) ;

the limit of such extension shall be that fixed by the regulations of the public authority.

4. Regulations made by public authority may provide that the limit of hours specified in Articles 3, 4, 5 and 7 and in paragraphs 2 and 3 of this Article may be exceeded in the case of workers whose presence is indispensable for the work of underground ventilation, pumping and compressed air stations, but only to such extent as may be necessary to permit the periodical change-over of shifts, and time worked in virtue of this provision shall not be deemed to be overtime, so however that during any period of three weeks no worker shall work more than twenty-one shifts of the length prescribed for his grade by paragraph 2 or paragraph 3 of this Article as the case may be.

5. In the case of mines in normal operation the number of persons coming under paragraphs 2 and 3 of this Article shall at no time exceed five per cent. of the total number of persons employed at the mine.

6. Overtime worked in virtue of the provisions of this Article shall be paid for at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the regular rate.

Article 9

1. Regulations made by public authority may, in addition to the provisions of Article 8, put not more than sixty hours' overtime in the year at the disposal of undertakings throughout the country as a whole.

Convention 48

Convention concerning the Establishment of an International Scheme for the Maintenance of Rights under Invalidity, Old-Age and Widows' and Orphans' Insurance¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

¹ Date of coming into force : 10 August 1938.

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Nineteenth Session on 4 June 1935, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the maintenance of rights in course of acquisition and acquired rights under invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance on behalf of workers who transfer their residence from one country to another, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-second day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five the following Convention, which may be cited as the Maintenance of Migrants' Pension Rights Convention, 1935 :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention,

PART I. ESTABLISHMENT OF INTERNATIONAL SCHEME

Article 1

1. There is hereby established between Members of the International Labour Organisation a scheme for the maintenance of rights in course of acquisition with and of rights acquired with compulsory invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance institutions (hereinafter called insurance institutions).

2. References to Members in Parts II, III, IV and V of this Convention shall be construed as including only Members of the International Labour Organisation bound by this Convention.

PART II. MAINTENANCE OF RIGHTS IN COURSE OF ACQUISITION

Article 2

1. The insurance periods spent by persons who have been affiliated to insurance institutions of two or more Members shall, irrespective of the nationality of such persons, be totalised by each such institution in accordance with the following rules.

2. For the maintenance of rights in course of acquisition the periods to be totalised shall be—

- (a) contribution periods ;
- (b) periods in respect of which contributions were not payable but during which rights are maintained under the laws or regulations under which they were spent ;
- (c) periods during which a cash benefit has been paid under an invalidity or old-age insurance scheme of another Member ; and

- (d) periods during which a cash benefit has been paid under some other social insurance scheme of another Member, in so far as a corresponding benefit would, under the laws or regulations governing the institution which is totalising, maintain rights in course of acquisition.

3. For the purposes of—

- (i) determining whether any conditions as to the qualifying period (minimum duration of liability to insurance) or the number of contributions prescribed for entitlement to special advantages (guaranteed minima) have been fulfilled ;
- (ii) the recovery of rights ;
- (iii) the right to enter voluntary insurance ; and
- (iv) the right to medical treatment and attendance ;

the periods to be totalised shall be—

- (a) contribution periods ; and
- (b) periods in respect of which contributions were not payable but which are counted for the purpose of the qualifying period both under the laws or regulations under which they were spent and under the laws or regulations governing the institution which is totalising.

4. Provided that, where under the laws or regulations of a Member periods spent in an occupation covered by a special scheme are alone to be taken into account for the purpose of determining whether a claimant is entitled to certain advantages, the periods to be totalised for the purpose set forth in paragraphs 2 and 3 shall be restricted to periods spent under the corresponding special insurance schemes of other Members or, in respect of a Member with no special insurance scheme for the occupation concerned, to periods spent in that occupation under the insurance scheme applicable thereto.

5. Contribution periods and assimilated periods spent simultaneously with institutions of two or more Members shall be reckoned once for the purpose of totalisation.

Article 3

1. Each insurance institution from which on the basis of the totalised insurance periods the claimant is entitled to benefit shall calculate the amount of such benefit according to the laws and regulations governing the said institution.

2. Benefits or benefit components which vary with the time spent in insurance and are determined with sole regard to the periods spent under the laws and regulations governing the institution liable shall be payable without reduction.

3. Benefits or benefit components which are determined independently of the time spent in insurance and consist of a fixed sum, a percentage of the remuneration taken into account for insurance purpose, or a multiple of the average contribution, may be reduced in the ratio of the periods counted for the purpose of reckoning benefits according to the laws and regulations governing the institution liable to the total of the periods counted for the purpose of reckoning benefits according to the laws and regulations governing all the institutions concerned.

4. The provisions of paragraphs 2 and 3 shall apply to any subsidy or supplement to or fraction of a pension which is payable out of public funds.

5. The apportionment of the cost of medical treatment and attendance is not regulated by this Convention.

Article 4

In cases in which the total of the insurance periods spent with the insurance institutions of a Member does not amount to twenty-six contribution weeks, the institution or institutions with which they were spent may decline to recognise any liability for benefit. Periods in respect of which liability for benefit has been so declined shall not be taken into account by any of the other institutions concerned when making the reduction permitted by Article 3, paragraph 3.

Article 5

1. If a person who is entitled to benefit from the insurance institutions of at least two Members would but for this Convention be entitled to receive from any such institution in respect of periods spent with it a benefit greater than the total of the benefits to which he is entitled under Article 3, he shall be entitled to receive from that institution a complementary benefit equal to the difference.

2. Where such complementary benefits are due from more than one institution, the total amount due to the beneficiary shall be the highest such benefit due from any one of them and the liability for this amount shall be apportioned among them in proportion to the complementary benefit which would have been due from each individually.

Article 6

Provision may be made by agreement between the Members concerned for—

(a) the reckoning of benefits by a method which differs from that prescribed in Article 3 but gives a result which is at least equivalent on the whole to that given by applying the said Article, subject to the total of the benefits payable never being less than the highest benefit payable by any one insurance institution in respect of periods spent with it ;

- (b) enabling an insurance institution of one Member to discharge its liability to the insured person and his dependants by paying to the insurance institution of another Member to which he has become affiliated the capital representing the rights in course of acquisition by him at the date at which he ceased to be affiliated to the institution, subject to the latter institution consenting thereto and undertaking to apply the capital for the purpose of crediting rights ;
- (c) limiting the total of the benefits granted by the insurance institutions of the Members to the amount due on the basis of the totalised insurance periods from the institution governed by the most favourable laws and regulations.

Article 7

A claimant shall not be required to submit his claim for benefit to more than one of the insurance institutions to which he has been affiliated. This institution shall then inform the other institutions mentioned in the claim.

Article 8

For the purpose of converting sums expressed in the currency of another Member, insurance institutions shall, when dealing with claims for benefit, adopt the relation between the two currencies which, on the first day of the quarter during which the claim was submitted, obtained on the principal foreign exchange market of the Member in the currency of which the sum is expressed : Provided that provision may be made for another method of conversion by agreement between the Members concerned.

Article 9

Any Member may decline to apply the provisions of this Part of this Convention in its relations with a Member the laws and regulations of which do not cover the risk in respect of which a benefit is claimed.

PART III. MAINTENANCE OF ACQUIRED RIGHTS

Article 10

1. Persons who have been affiliated to an insurance institution of a Member and their dependants shall be entitled to the entirety of the benefits the right to which has been acquired in virtue of their insurance—

- (a) if they are resident in the territory of a Member, irrespective of their nationality ;

(b) if they are nationals of a Member, irrespective of their place of residence.

2. Provided that any subsidy or supplement to or fraction of a pension which is payable out of public funds may be withheld from persons who are not nationals of a Member.

3. Provided also that, for a period of five years from the first coming into force of this Convention, a Member may reserve the payment of any subsidy or supplement to or fraction of a pension which is payable out of public funds to the nationals of Members with which it has concluded supplementary agreements to that effect.

Article 11

1. Pensions the right to which is maintained under Article 10 shall not be commuted for lump sums smaller than their capital value.

2. Provided that the insurance institution liable for benefit may commute pensions the monthly value of which is inconsiderable for lump sums calculated according to the laws and regulations governing the said institution, subject to the said sums not being reduced on the ground of residence abroad.

Article 12

1. The provisions of the laws or regulations of a Member permitting the reduction or suspension of benefit if the person concerned has concurrent rights to other social insurance benefits or is in employment involving compulsory insurance may be applied to beneficiaries under this Convention in respect of benefits payable under an insurance scheme of another Member or in respect of employment in the territory of another Member.

2. Provided that provisions permitting reduction or suspension in the case of concurrent benefits in respect of the same risk shall not apply to benefits the right to which is acquired under Part II of this Convention.

Article 13

An insurance institution liable for benefit in virtue of this Convention may discharge in the currency of its own country its liability to all persons entitled to such benefit.

PART IV. MUTUAL ASSISTANCE IN ADMINISTRATION

Article 14

1. The authorities and insurance institutions of each Member shall afford assistance to those of other Members to the same extent as if they were applying their own laws and regulations relating to social insurance, and more particularly shall, at the request of an institution of any Member, carry out the investigations and medical examinations necessary to determine whether the persons in receipt of benefits for which the latter institution is liable satisfy the conditions for entitlement to such benefits.

2. In so far as the Members concerned do not otherwise agree, the expenses to be repaid for assistance so afforded shall be an amount determined according to the scale of charges of the institution or authority which has afforded assistance or, in the absence of such a scale, the expenditure incurred.

Article 15

Any exemption from fees granted by the laws or regulations of a Member in respect of documents furnished to its authorities or insurance institutions shall be extended to the corresponding documents furnished in connection with the application of this Convention to the authorities and insurance institutions of any other Member.

Article 16

With the consent of the competent central authorities of the Members concerned, an insurance institution liable for benefit to a beneficiary resident in the territory of another Member may, on terms agreed between the two institutions, entrust the insurance institution of the place of residence of the beneficiary with the payment of such benefit on its behalf.

PART V. OPERATION OF INTERNATIONAL SCHEME

Article 17

Every Member which at the date of its ratification of this Convention has not established such a scheme undertakes to establish within twelve months from that date either—

- (a) a compulsory insurance scheme under which pensions are payable at an age not later than sixty-five to the majority of persons employed in industrial and commercial undertakings ; or
- (b) a compulsory invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance scheme covering a substantial proportion of the persons employed in industrial and commercial undertakings.

Article 18

1. Each Member shall treat the nationals of other Members on the same footing as its own nationals for the purpose of liability to compulsory insurance and for the purpose of insurance benefits, including any subsidy or supplement to or fraction of a pension which is payable out of public funds.

2. Provided that any Member may restrict to its own nationals the right to any subsidy or supplement to or fraction of a pension which is payable out of public funds and granted solely to insured persons who have exceeded a prescribed age at the date when the laws or regulations providing for compulsory insurance come into force.

Article 19

The provisions of this Convention may be derogated from by treaties between Members which do not affect the rights and duties of Members not parties to the treaty and which make definite provision for the maintenance of rights in course of acquisition and of acquired rights under conditions at least as favourable on the whole as those provided for in this Convention.

The Commission shall regulate its own procedure.

2. At the request of one or more Members concerned, the Commission, which shall be guided by the principles and purposes of this Convention, shall make recommendations as to the manner in which it shall be applied.

Article 21

1. Where, prior to the coming into force of this Convention, a pension has not been awarded or the payment of a pension has been suspended on account of the residence abroad of the person concerned, the pension shall be awarded or the payment of the pension resumed in pursuance of the Convention as from the date of the coming into force thereof for the Member concerned.

2. In applying this Convention account shall be taken of insurance periods prior to its coming into force if account would have been taken of such periods if this Convention had been in force during these periods.

3. At the request of the person concerned claims settled before the coming into force of this Convention shall, unless they have been settled by the payment of a lump sum, be reviewed. Review shall not involve the payment of arrears of, or the refund of, benefits for the period prior to the coming into force of the Convention for the Member concerned.

Article 22

1. The denunciation of this Convention by a Member shall not affect the liabilities of its insurance institutions in respect of claims with matured before the denunciation took effect.

2. Rights in course of acquisition which are maintained in pursuance of this Convention shall not lapse by reason of the denunciation thereof: their further maintenance during the period subsequent to the date on which the Convention ceases to be in force shall be regulated by the laws and regulations governing the institution concerned.

The Conference,

Recalling that it has on several occasions drawn the attention of Governments to the economic measures that should be adopted as a remedy for the general depression, as a result of which large numbers of workers are unemployed ;

Considering that this unemployment continues and affects a large number of young persons, whose involuntary idleness may undermine their characters, diminish their occupational skill, and menace the future development of the nations ;

Considering that the Conference at its Eighteenth Session adopted a Convention and Recommendation concerning unemployment insurance and various forms of relief for the unemployed which apply to young persons among others ;

Considering that many countries have adopted other measures to remedy a situation the gravity of which has rightly alarmed public opinion ;

Recommends, in the light of the experience already gained in this field, that each Member should apply the following principles and should submit to the International Labour Office a report stating the extent to which, and manner in which, the said principles have been applied :

SCHOOL-LEAVING AGE ; AGE FOR ADMISSION TO EMPLOYMENT ; GENERAL AND VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

1. The minimum age for leaving school and being admitted to employment should be fixed at not less than fifteen years, as soon as circumstances permit.

2. (1) Juveniles over the school-leaving age who are unable to find suitable employment should, where the organisation of the school allows, be required to continue full-time attendance at school until suitable employment is available for them.

(2) For the purpose of this paragraph the term "suitable" refers primarily to the continuity of the employment and to future prospects therein.

(3) For the purpose of applying this paragraph there should be close co-operation between the education, placing and unemployment insurance authorities.

3. For the purpose of this Recommendation, "juvenile" means a person under eighteen years of age.

4. In countries where compulsory education does not yet exist, it should be introduced as soon as possible in conformity with paragraphs 1 and 2.

5. Maintenance allowances should, if necessary, be granted to parents by the competent public authorities during the additional periods of education recommended in paragraphs 1 and 2.

6. The curricula for juveniles whose period of school attendance is prolonged by the application of the measures recommended above should be designed primarily to promote their general education, but should also provide general training for occupational activity.

7. (1) Measures should be adopted to encourage juveniles with the necessary aptitudes to attend secondary or technical schools beyond the minimum school-leaving age.

(2) Exemption from the payment of fees or the reduction of fees would be suitable methods of applying this principle.

8. Juveniles who are no longer in full-time attendance at school should, until they reach the age of eighteen, be required to attend continuation courses providing a combination of general and vocational education.

9. (1) Where such attendance is not compulsory for all juveniles it should at least be made compulsory for unemployed juveniles, who should be required to attend for a prescribed number of hours every day or, where this is not possible, for a prescribed number of hours every week.

(2) In districts in which there is a sufficient number of unemployed juveniles special courses should be organised for them.

(3) Measures should be taken to enable juveniles who have attended courses organised in accordance with the two preceding sub-paragraphs to continue similar instruction if possible after having found work.

10. Any unemployed juvenile unable to show good cause for his having refused to attend the course which he is required to attend in application of paragraph 9 may, under suitable circumstances, be temporarily disqualified, entirely or partly, for the receipt of unemployment benefit and allowances.

11. (1) There should be organised for unemployed persons between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five vocational training centres in which some provision is made for general education. Whether these centres are residential or non-residential should be decided according to circumstances.

(2) These centres should be organised in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations.

12. (1) The programmes of such centres should include, in addition to practical subjects, general courses of vocational and cultural interest.

(2) The persons responsible for giving the courses at such centres should be suitably remunerated and should be selected with special care, as far as possible from among qualified unemployed young persons.

13. Persons attending a course or centre organised in application of paragraphs 9 or 11 should be allowed supplementary grants to cover their travelling and other necessary expenses.

14. In the case of persons unable to secure employment on the termination of secondary, technical or higher studies measures should be taken—

- (a) to enable such persons to supplement their theoretical training by obtaining practical experience in industrial, commercial and other undertakings and in public administration, every precaution being taken to prevent such persons displacing regular workers ;
- (b) to facilitate, by such methods as the provision of free courses and of study and research scholarships, their continued attendance at the institution where they terminated their technical or higher studies or at some other institution of general or vocational education ;
- (c) to give such persons information concerning overcrowded occupations and to assist them to counteract prejudices which constitute barriers to their occupational readjustment.

15. Special measures should be adopted to train a qualified staff for educational, recreational, social service and employment centres for the young unemployed. It would be appropriate for such training to be given in special centres to which unemployed young persons with the necessary qualifications are admitted.

RECREATIONAL AND SOCIAL SERVICES FOR THE YOUNG UNEMPLOYED

16. (1) Measures for promoting the general and vocational education of the young unemployed should be accompanied by measures to facilitate the useful and agreeable utilisation of their spare time, such as the establishment of recreational centres, physical training centres, reading rooms, etc.

(2) Such centres should not be reserved for the exclusive use of the unemployed but should also, with a view to avoiding any systematic separation of employed and unemployed, be open to young employed persons.

(3) Such centres should be under the supervision of a qualified person, but their activities should be arranged as far as possible by co-operation with and among the young persons themselves.

17. In districts where there is a sufficient number of young unemployed, measures should be taken to establish social service centres and hostels where they can obtain board and lodging at low cost.

ACTION BY TRADE ORGANISATIONS AND PRIVATE ORGANISATIONS

18. The public authorities should assist educational and other social services for the young unemployed organised by trade organisations and other associations.

SPECIAL EMPLOYMENT CENTRES

19. Where it is considered desirable to establish, for unemployed persons between the ages of eighteen and twenty-four inclusive, employment centres, the principal object of which is not to give vocational training but to provide work under other than normal conditions of employment, adequate safeguards should be adopted to prevent these abnormal conditions resulting in abuses.

20. Attendance at employment centres should be strictly voluntary.

21. Every care should be taken to prevent centres, whether public or private, from becoming institutions for military training. Privately organised centres should be under the supervision of public civil authorities.

22. No person should be admitted to an employment centre unless he has been medically examined and found physically fit for the work proposed for him.

23. The strictest hygienic conditions should prevail in all centres.

24. Special attention should be devoted to living conditions and discipline. The organisation of the centres should as far as possible be such as to enable the young unemployed to govern themselves, particularly as regards discipline.

25. In order to enable the young persons to maintain regular contact with their families, centres should be as near to their homes as circumstances permit.

26. (1) The work programmes of the centres should be such as to avoid competition by the centres with workers in normal employment.

(2) In so far as possible, the work provided should be appropriate to the age, sex, strength and occupation of the persons concerned.

27. The remuneration of young persons employed at centres should include a cash payment, in addition to board and, where these are provided, working clothes and lodging.

28. Persons employed at centres should be admitted to social insurance schemes and the contributions due in respect of them should be payable by the centres.

29. Where there is no general scheme of compulsory accident compensation insurance, centres should, unless directly organised by public authorities, which act as their own insurance carriers, cover their compensation liability by insurance.

30. (1) With a view to the inclusion in the programmes of centres of adequate provision for general education, vocational training, games, sports and free time, the time spent on productive work should be considerably less than forty hours per week.

(2) Centres should have libraries.

31. (1) There should be detailed regulations for the training and selection of the staff of centres, and members of centre staffs should have a thorough knowledge of social questions generally and of the problems of youth in particular.

(2) The staff of centres specially organised for young women should consist chiefly of women.

(3) Intermediate posts should in all possible cases be reserved for persons in attendance at the centres who are found to be suitably qualified.

(4) These centres should be placed under the supervision of a qualified person, but their activities should as far as possible be regulated by co-operation with and among the young persons themselves.

32. (1) A central supervisory council should be instituted for the purpose of general supervision over the employment centre system.

(2) The central supervisory council should include representatives of the most representative organisations of workers and employers and of the public department responsible for placing, public works, agriculture, public health, safety, education and for other aspects of the welfare of the young.

(3) Among these representatives there should be a certain number of women.

33. The central supervisory council or some other appropriate body should collaborate closely with the public employment exchanges with a view to placing in normal employment the persons attending the centres.

34. Measures should be taken to develop team spirit among the persons attending the centres and to encourage them to form co-operative working groups for employment on land settlement schemes, public works, handicrafts, etc.

SPECIAL PUBLIC WORKS FOR UNEMPLOYED YOUNG PERSONS

35. (1) Special public works should be organised to assist unemployed young persons and such works should as far as possible be adapted to the age and occupation of such persons.

(2) For young unemployed persons who have terminated secondary, technical or higher studies, such works should be adapted as far as possible to the training of such persons.

(3) In so far as they are appropriate and possible, the safeguards recommended for Special Employment Centres should also be applied to public works organised to assist unemployed young persons.

PLACING AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPPORTUNITIES FOR NORMAL EMPLOYMENT

36. The national system of public employment exchanges should include special local and central arrangements for the placing of juveniles.

37. Placing services for juveniles—

- (a) should seek to place juveniles in suitable occupations as defined in paragraph 2 (2) ; and
- (b) should either include a vocational guidance department or be co-ordinated with independent bodies for vocational guidance.

38. Employers should be required to notify the local placing service for juveniles of vacancies for juveniles and of any engagements of juveniles which they have made without recourse to the placing service.

39. Placing services for juveniles should be required—

- (a) to supervise, in co-operation with vocational guidance services, apprenticeship committees and similar bodies, the results of the placings made, with a view to obtaining information likely to further the occupational prospects of juveniles ; and

- (b) to maintain close relations with all other public and private institutions interested in young persons and notably with the education authorities.

40. In the development of placing services for young persons of eighteen years of age and over, provision should be made whenever possible for assisting such persons in their occupational readjustment.

41. Measures should be taken to transfer to expanding occupations and to districts in which such occupations are carried on young persons who are without employment in districts where the principal industries appear to be in permanent decline.

42. Governments should conclude agreements for the purpose of facilitating the international exchange of student employees, that is to say, of young persons desirous of improving their occupational qualifications by a knowledge of the customs of other countries.

43. Present attempts to promote re-employment by a reduction in ordinary hours of work should be pursued with special vigour in respect of employment in which young persons engage.

STATISTICS

44. (1) Unemployment insurance institutions, public employment exchanges, and other institutions which compile unemployment statistics should include in their statistics figures showing the extent of unemployment among persons below the age of twenty-five.

(2) These figures should be classified so as to show the distribution of such unemployment according to—

- (a) sex ;
- (b) age, juveniles and other young persons being classified separately ;
- (c) occupation, persons who have never been in paid employment being classified separately and according to the occupation for which they have been trained or in which they have applied for employment.

45. For the purpose of supplementing such statistics, and in substitution for them where they do not exist, special enquiries should be made from time to time with a view to obtaining the above information and complementary information upon such matters as the length of unemployment and occupational history of the persons concerned.

46. Where the general census returns include information concerning unemployment, the returns should be analysed for the purpose of obtaining in so far as possible the information referred to in paragraph 44.

47. Until such time as the recommendation made in paragraph 1 is fully applied in the various countries, annual returns should be compiled showing the number of children still under the school-leaving age who during the year have been engaged in employment out of school hours. Such returns should be classified by sex, age group and occupation, and should give details of the days of the week and the seasons during which such employment was carried on, and the number and incidence of the hours of employment.

TWENTIETH SESSION
(Geneva, 4-24 June 1936)

Convention 50

Convention concerning the Regulation of Certain Special Systems of Recruiting Workers ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twentieth Session on 4 June 1936, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the regulation of certain special systems of recruiting workers, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention, adopts this twentieth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six the following Convention, which may be cited as the Recruiting of Indigenous Workers Convention, 1936:

Article 1

Each Member of the International Labour Organisation which ratifies this Convention undertakes to regulate in accordance with the following provisions the recruiting of indigenous workers in each of its territories in which such recruiting exists or may hereafter exist.

Article 2

For the purposes of this Convention—

- (a) the term “recruiting” includes all operations undertaken with the object of obtaining or supplying the labour of persons who do not spontaneously offer their services at the place of employment or at a public emigration or employment office or at an office conducted by an employers’ organisation and supervised by the competent authority ;
- (b) the term “indigenous workers” includes workers belonging to or assimilated to the indigenous populations of the dependent territories of Members of the Organisation and workers belonging to or assimilated to the dependent indigenous populations of the home territories of Members of the Organisation.

¹ Date of coming into force : 8 September 1939.

Article 3

Where the circumstances make the adoption of such a policy desirable, the following classes of recruiting operations may, except when undertaken by persons or associations engaged in professional recruiting, be exempted from the application of the Convention by the competent authority :

- (a) operations undertaken by or on behalf of employers who do not employ more than a prescribed limited number of workers ;
- (b) operations undertaken within a prescribed limited radius from the place of employment ; and
- (c) operations for the engagement of personal and domestic servants and of non-manual workers.

Article 4

Before approving for any area any scheme of economic development which is likely to involve the recruiting of labour, the competent authority shall take such measures as may be practicable and necessary—

- (a) to avoid the risk of pressure being brought to bear on the populations concerned by or on behalf of the employers in order to obtain the labour required ;
- (b) to ensure that, as far as possible, the political and social organisation of the populations concerned and their powers of adjustment to the changed economic conditions will not be endangered by the demand for labour ; and
- (c) to deal with any other possible untoward effects of such development on the populations concerned.

Article 5

1. Before granting permission to recruit labour in any area, the competent authority shall take into consideration the possible effects of the withdrawal of adult males on the social life of the population concerned, and in particular shall consider—

- (a) the density of the population, its tendency to increase or decrease, and the probable effect upon the birthrate of the withdrawal of adult males ;
- (b) the possible effects of the withdrawal of adult males on the health, welfare and development of the population concerned, particularly in connection with the food supply ;
- (c) the dangers to the family and morality arising from the withdrawal of adult males ; and
- (d) the possible effects of the withdrawal of adult males on the social organisation of the population concerned.

2. Where the circumstances make the adoption of such a policy practicable and necessary, the competent authority shall, in order to safeguard the populations concerned against any untoward consequences of the withdrawal of adult males, fix the maximum number of adult males who may be recruited in any given social unit in such manner that the number of adult males remaining in the said unit does not fall below a prescribed percentage of the normal proportion of adult males to women and children.

Article 6

Non-adult persons shall not be recruited. Provided that the competent authority may permit non-adults above a prescribed age to be recruited with the consent of their parents for employment upon light work subject to prescribed safeguards for their welfare.

Article 7

1. The recruiting of the head of a family shall not be deemed to involve the recruiting of any member of his family.

2. Where the circumstances make the adoption of such a policy practicable and desirable, the competent authority shall encourage recruited workers to be accompanied by their families, more particularly in the case of workers recruited for agricultural or similar employment at a long distance from their homes and for periods exceeding a specified duration.

3. Except at the express request of the persons concerned, recruited workers shall not be separated from wives and minor children who have been authorised to accompany them to, and to remain with them at, the place of employment.

4. In default of agreement to the contrary before the departure of the worker from the place of recruiting, an authorisation to accompany a worker shall be deemed to be an authorisation to remain with him for the full duration of his term of service.

Article 8

Where the circumstances make the adoption of such a policy practicable and desirable, the competent authority may make it a condition of permitting recruiting that the recruited workers shall be grouped at the place of employment under suitable ethnical conditions.

Article 9

Public officers shall not recruit for private undertakings either directly or indirectly, except when the recruited workers are to be employed on works of public utility for the execution of which private undertakings are acting as contractors for a public authority.

Article 10

Chiefs or other indigenous authorities shall not—

- (a) act as recruiting agents ;
- (b) exercise pressure upon possible recruits ; or
- (c) receive from any source whatsoever any special remuneration or other special inducement for assistance in recruiting.

Article 11

No person or association shall engage in professional recruiting unless the said person or association has been licensed by the competent authority and is recruiting workers for a public department or for one or more specific employers or organisations of employers.

Article 12

Employers, employers' agents, organisations of employers, organisations subsidised by employers, and the agents of organisations of employers and of organisations subsidised by employers, shall only engage in recruiting if licensed by the competent authority.

Article 13

1. Before issuing any licence for recruiting the competent authority shall—

- (a) satisfy itself that the applicant for a licence, if an individual, is a fit and proper person ;
- (b) require the applicant for a licence, except when the said applicant is an employers' organisation or an organisation subsidised by employers, to furnish financial or other security for proper conduct as a licensee ;
- (c) require the applicant for a licence, if an employer, to furnish financial or other security for the payment of wages due ; and
- (d) satisfy itself that adequate provision has been made for safeguarding the health and welfare of the workers to be recruited.

2. Licensees shall keep, in such form as the competent authority may prescribe, records from which the regularity of every recruiting operation can be verified and every recruited worker can be identified.

3. A licensee who is the agent of another licensee shall wherever possible receive a fixed salary, and in any case in which he receives remuneration calculated at a rate per head of workers recruited such remuneration shall not exceed a maximum to be prescribed by the competent authority.

4. The validity of licences shall be limited to a fixed period not exceeding one year to be prescribed by the competent authority.

5. The renewal of licences shall be conditional upon the manner in which the licensee has respected the conditions subject to which the licence was issued.

6. The competent authority shall be entitled—

- (a) to withdraw any licence if the licensee has been guilty of any offence or misconduct unfitting him to conduct recruiting operations ; and
- (b) to suspend any licence pending the result of any enquiry into the conduct of the licensee.

Article 14

1. No person shall assist a licensee in a subordinate capacity in the actual recruiting operations unless he has been approved by a public officer and has been furnished with a permit by the licensee.

2. Licensees shall be responsible for the proper conduct of such assistants.

Article 15

1. Where the circumstances make the adoption of such a policy necessary or desirable, the competent authority may exempt from the obligation to hold a licence worker-recruiters who—

- (a) are employed as workers by the undertaking for which they recruit other workers ;
- (b) are formally commissioned in writing by the employer to recruit other workers ; and
- (c) do not receive any remuneration or other advantage for recruiting.

2. Worker-recruiters shall not make advances of wages to recruits.

3. Worker-recruiters may recruit only within an area to be prescribed by the competent authority.

4. The operations of worker-recruiters shall be supervised in a manner to be prescribed by the competent authority.

Article 16

1. Recruited workers shall be brought before a public officer, who shall satisfy himself that the law and regulations concerning recruiting have been observed and, in particular, that the workers have not been subjected to illegal pressure or recruited by misrepresentation or mistake.

2. Recruited workers shall be brought before such an officer as near as may be convenient to the place of recruiting or, in the case of workers recruited in one territory for employment in a territory under a different administration, at latest at the place of departure from the territory of recruiting.

Article 17

Where the circumstances make the adoption of such a provision practicable and necessary, the competent authority shall require the issue to each recruited worker who is not engaged at or near the place of recruiting of a document in writing such as a memorandum of information, a work book or a provisional contract containing such particulars as the authority may prescribe, as for example particulars of the identity of the workers, the prospective conditions of employment, and any advances of wages made to the workers.

Article 18

1. Every recruited worker shall be medically examined.

2. Where the worker has been recruited for employment at a distance from the place of recruiting or has been recruited in one territory for employment in a territory under a different administration the medical examination shall take place as near as may be convenient to the place of recruiting or, in the case of workers recruited in one territory for employment in a territory under a different administration, at latest at the place of departure from the territory of recruiting.

3. The competent authority may empower public officers before whom workers are brought in pursuance of Article 16 to authorise the departure prior to medical examination of workers in whose case they are satisfied—

- (a) that it was and is impossible for the medical examination to take place near to the place of recruiting or at the place of departure ;
- (b) that the worker is fit for the journey and the prospective employment ; and
- (c) that the worker will be medically examined on arrival at the place of employment or as soon as possible thereafter.

4. The competent authority may, particularly when the journey of the recruited workers is of such duration and takes place under such conditions that the health of the workers is likely to be affected, require recruited workers to be examined both before departure and after arrival at the place of employment.

5. The competent authority shall ensure that all necessary measures are taken for the acclimatisation and adaptation of recruited workers and for their immunisation against disease.

Article 19

1. The recruiter or employer shall whenever possible provide transport to the place of employment for recruited workers.

2. The competent authority shall take all necessary measures to ensure—

- (a) that the vehicles or vessels used for the transport of workers are suitable for such transport, are in good sanitary condition and are not overcrowded ;
- (b) that when it is necessary to break the journey for the night suitable accommodation is provided for the workers ; and
- (c) that in the case of long journeys all necessary arrangements are made for medical assistance and for the welfare of the workers.

3. When recruited workers have to make long journeys on foot to the place of employment, the competent authority shall take all necessary measures to ensure—

- (a) that the length of the daily journey is compatible with the maintenance of the health and strength of the workers ; and
- (b) that, where the extent of the movement of labour makes this necessary, rest camps or rest houses are provided at suitable points on main routes and are kept in proper sanitary condition and have the necessary facilities for medical attention.

4. When recruited workers have to make long journeys in groups to the place of employment, they shall be convoyed by a responsible person.

Article 20

1. The expenses of the journey of recruited workers to the place of employment, including all expenses incurred for their protection during the journey, shall be borne by the recruiter or employer.

2. The recruiter or employer shall furnish recruited workers with everything necessary for their welfare during the journey to the place of employment, including particularly, as local circumstances may require, adequate and suitable supplies of food, drinking water, fuel and cooking utensils, clothing and blankets.

3. This Article applies to workers recruited by worker-recruiters only to the extent to which its application is considered possible by the competent authority.

Article 21

Any recruited worker who—

- (a) becomes incapacitated by sickness or accident during the journey to the place of employment ;
- (b) is found on medical examination to be unfit for employment ;
- (c) is not engaged after recruiting for a reason for which he is not responsible ; or

- (d) is found by the competent authority to have been recruited by misrepresentation or mistake ; shall be repatriated at the expense of the recruiter or employer.

Article 22

The competent authority shall limit the amount which may be paid to recruited workers in respect of advances of wages and shall regulate the conditions under which such advances may be made.

Article 23

Where the families of recruited workers have been authorised to accompany the workers to the place of employment the competent authority shall take all necessary measures for safeguarding their health and welfare during the journey and more particularly—

- (a) Articles 19 and 20 of this Convention shall apply to such families ;
- (b) in the event of the worker being repatriated in virtue of Article 21, his family shall also be repatriated ; and
- (c) in the event of the death of the worker during the journey to the place of employment, his family shall be repatriated.

Article 24

1. Before permitting the recruiting of workers for employment in a territory under a different administration, the competent authority of the territory of recruiting shall satisfy itself that all necessary measures have been taken for the protection of the recruited workers in accordance with the provisions of this Convention when the workers have travelled beyond its jurisdiction.

2. Where workers are recruited in one territory for employment in a territory under a different administration and the circumstances and amount of recruiting appear to the competent authorities concerned to necessitate such action, the said authorities shall enter into agreements defining the extent to which such recruiting is to be permitted and providing for co-operation between them in supervising the execution of the conditions of recruiting and employment.

3. The recruiting of workers in one territory for employment in a territory under a different administration shall be undertaken only under licence issued by the competent authority of the territory of recruiting. Provided that the said authority may accept as equivalent to a licence issued by it a licence issued by the competent authority of the territory of employment.

4. Where the circumstances and the amount of recruiting for employment in a territory under a different administration appear to the competent authority of the territory of recruiting to necessitate such action, the said authority shall provide that such recruiting may only be undertaken by organisations approved by it.

Article 25

1. In respect of the territories referred to in Article 35 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation, each Member of the Organisation which ratifies this Convention shall append to its ratification a declaration stating—

- (a) the territories to which it undertakes to apply the provisions of the Convention without modification ;
- (b) the territories to which it undertakes to apply the provisions of the Convention subject to modifications, together with details of the said modifications ;
- (c) the territories to which the Convention is inapplicable and in such cases the grounds on which it is inapplicable ;
- (d) the territories in respect of which it reserves its decision.

2. The undertakings referred to in sub-paragraphs (a) and (b) of paragraph 1 of this Article shall be deemed to be an integral part of the ratification and shall have the force of ratification.

3. Any Member may by a subsequent declaration cancel in whole or in part any reservations made in its original declaration in virtue of sub-paragraphs (b), (c) or (d) of paragraph 1 of this Article.

Article 26

The formal ratifications of this Convention shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 27

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members of the International Labour Organisation whose ratifications have been registered with the Director-General.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 28

As soon as the ratifications of two Members of the International Labour Organisation have been registered, the Director-General of the International Labour Office shall so notify all the Members of the International Labour Organisation. He shall likewise notify them of the registration of ratifications which may be communicated subsequently by other Members of the Organisation.

Article 29

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of ten years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of ten years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 30

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 31

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, then, unless the new Convention otherwise provides,

- (a) the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve the immediate denunciation of this Convention, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 29 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force ;
- (b) as from the date when the new revising Convention comes into force this Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

2. This Convention shall in any case remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 32

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

Recommendation 46

Recommendation concerning the Progressive Elimination of Recruiting

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twentieth Session on 4 June 1936, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the progressive elimination of recruiting, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twentieth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Elimination of Recruiting Recommendation, 1936 :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

The Conference,

Having adopted a Convention concerning the regulation of certain special systems of recruiting workers,

Considering that in addition to the regulation of recruiting of labour it should be a cardinal principle to be followed by the Members of the International Labour Organisation to direct their policy where necessary and desirable towards the progressive elimination of the recruiting of labour and the development of the spontaneous offer of labour,

Recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take steps to hasten such elimination by—

- (a) improvement of the conditions of labour ;
- (b) development of the means of transport ;
- (c) promotion of the settlement of workers and their families in the area of employment, where such settlement is the policy of the competent authority ;
- (d) facilitating the voluntary movement of labour under administrative supervision and control ; and
- (e) the educational development of indigenous peoples and the improvement of their standard of living.

Convention 51

Convention concerning the Reduction of Hours of Work on Public Works ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

¹ This Convention had not come into force by 1 January 1949.

Having met at Geneva in its Twentieth Session on 4 June 1936 ;

Considering that the question of the reduction of hours of work on public works undertaken or subsidised by Governments is the third item on the agenda of the Session ;

Confirming the principle laid down in the Forty-Hour Week Convention, 1935, including the maintenance of the standard of living ;

Considering it to be desirable that this principle should be applied by international agreement to public works ;

adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six the following Convention, which may be cited as the Reduction of Hours of Work (Public Works) Convention, 1936 :

Article 1

1. This Convention applies to persons directly employed on building or civil engineering works financed or subsidised by central Governments.

2. For the purpose of this Convention the precise scope of the terms "building or civil engineering", "financed" and "subsidised" shall be delimited by the competent authority after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist.

3. The competent authority may, after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist, exempt from the application of this Convention—

- (a) persons employed in undertakings in which only members of the employer's family are employed ;
- (b) persons occupying positions of management who do not ordinarily perform manual work.

Article 2

1. The hours of work of persons to whom this Convention applies shall not exceed an average of forty per week.

2. In the case of persons who work in successive shifts on processes required by reason of the nature of the process to be carried on without a break at any time of the day, night or week, weekly hours of work may average forty-two.

3. The competent authority shall, after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist, determine the processes to which paragraph 2 of this Article applies.

4. Where hours of work are calculated as an average the competent authority shall, after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist, determine the number of weeks over which this average may be calculated and the maximum number of hours that may be worked in any week.

5. For the purpose of this Convention, the term "hours of work" means the time during which the persons employed are at the disposal of the employer and does not include rest periods during which they are not at his disposal.

Article 3

1. The competent authority may, by regulations made after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist, provide that the limits of hours prescribed in the preceding Article may be exceeded in the case of—

- (b) persons employed in occupations which by their nature involve long periods of inaction during which the said persons have to display neither physical activity nor sustained attention or remain at their posts only to reply to possible calls.

2. The regulations referred to in paragraph 1 shall determine the maximum number of hours which may be worked in virtue of this Article.

3. The competent authority may permit the limits of hours prescribed in the preceding Article to be exceeded to a prescribed extent in cases in which this is necessary, if serious hindrance to the execution of a particular public work is to be avoided, on account of abnormal circumstances such as the inaccessibility of the site or the impossibility of engaging sufficient qualified labour.

Article 4

The limits of hours prescribed in the preceding Articles may be exceeded, but only so far as may be necessary to avoid serious interference with the ordinary working of the undertaking—

- (a) in case of accident, actual or threatened, or in case of urgent work to be done to machinery or plant, or in case of force majeure ; or
- (b) in order to make good the unforeseen absence of one or more members of a shift.

Article 5

1. The limits of hours prescribed in Articles 2 and 3 may be exceeded in cases where the continued presence of particular persons is necessary for the completion of an operation which for technical reasons cannot be interrupted.

2. The competent authority shall, after consultation with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist, determine the operations to which this Article applies and the maximum number of hours in excess of the prescribed limits which may be worked by the persons concerned.

3. Overtime worked in virtue of this Article shall be remunerated at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the normal rate.

Article 6

1. The competent authority may grant an allowance of overtime for exceptional cases of pressure of work. Such an allowance shall only be granted under regulations made after consultation as to the necessity of such overtime and the number of hours to be worked with the organisations of employers and workers concerned where such exist, and no such allowance shall permit of any person being employed for more than one hundred hours of such overtime in any year.

2. Overtime worked in virtue of this Article shall be remunerated at not less than one-and-a-quarter times the normal rate.

Article 7

In order to facilitate the effective enforcement of the provisions of this Convention, every employer shall be required—

 - (i) the hours at which work begins and ends ;

 - (v) rest periods in so far as these are not reckoned as part of the working hours ;
- (b) to keep a record in the form prescribed by the competent authority of all additional hours worked in virtue of Articles 3 (paragraph 3), 5 and 6 and of the payments made in respect thereof.

Article 8

The annual reports submitted by Members upon the application of this Convention shall include more particularly full information concerning—

- (a) the definitions adopted in virtue of Article 1, paragraph 2 ;
- (b) processes which the competent authority has recognised as necessarily continuous in character in virtue of Article 2, paragraph 2 ;
- (c) determinations made in virtue of Article 2, paragraph 4 ;
- (d) decisions taken in virtue of Article 3 ; and

Recommendation 47

Recommendation concerning Annual Holidays with Pay

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twentieth Session on 4 June 1936, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to annual holidays with pay, which is the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation, adopts this twenty-fourth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Holidays with Pay Recommendation, 1936 :

The Conference,

Having adopted a Convention concerning annual holidays with pay for employed persons,

Considering that the purpose of such holidays is to secure to employed persons opportunities for rest, recreation and the development of their faculties,

Considering that the conditions laid down by the Convention constitute the minimum standard to which any system of holidays with pay should conform,

Considering that it is desirable to deal in greater detail with the methods of applying the system,

Recommends that each Member should take the following suggestions into consideration :

1. (1) The continuity of service required in order to become entitled to a holiday should not be affected by interruptions occasioned by sickness or accident, family events, military service, the exercise of civic rights, changes in the management of the undertaking in which the employed person is employed, or intermittent involuntary unemployment if the duration of the unemployment does not exceed a prescribed limit and if the person concerned resumes employment.

(2) In employments in which work is not carried on regularly throughout the year the condition of continuity of employment should be regarded as satisfied by the working of a prescribed number of days during a prescribed period.

(3) The holiday should be earned after one year's work, regardless whether this period has been spent in the employment of the same or of several employers. Each Government should take effective steps to ensure that the cost arising from the granting of the holidays shall not fall entirely upon the last employer.

2. Although it may be desirable that provision should be made in special cases for holidays to be divided, care should be exercised to ensure that such special arrangements do not run counter to the purpose of the holiday, which is to enable the employed person to make good the loss of physical and mental forces during the course of the year. In other cases division of the holiday should be restricted, save in quite exceptional circumstances, to division into not more than two parts, one of which should not be less than the prescribed minimum.

3. It would be desirable that the increase in the length of the holiday with the duration of service should begin to operate as soon as possible and should be effected by regular stages so that a prescribed minimum will be attained after a prescribed number of years, for example, twelve working days after seven years of service.

4. The fairest method of calculating the remuneration of a person paid in whole or in part on an output or piece-work basis would be to calculate the average earnings over a fairly long period so as to nullify as far as possible the effect of fluctuations in earnings.

5. It would be desirable that the Members should consider whether a more advantageous system should not be established for young persons and apprentices under eighteen years of age in order to ease the transition from school to industrial life during a period of physical development.

TWENTY-FIRST SESSION

(Geneva, 6-24 October 1936)

Recommendation 48

Recommendation concerning the Promotion of Seamen's Welfare in Ports

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-first Session on 6 October 1936, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the promotion of seamen's welfare in ports, which is the third item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-fourth day of October of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Seamen's Welfare in Ports Recommendation, 1936 :
Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

Whereas by the nature of their calling seamen are frequently deprived for long periods of the advantages of family life and may be exposed while in ports, particularly in foreign countries, to special dangers and difficulties and whereas it is not always possible for them to have the benefit of arrangements made to organise the spare time, promote the welfare and safeguard the health of the general body of workers ;

Whereas certain Governments and different private associations have successfully taken various measures for the special help and protection of seamen in ports and whereas such protection should be extended to as large a number of seamen as possible ; and

Whereas it is important, notwithstanding differences which may exist in national and local needs and customs, to develop and co-ordinate nationally and internationally the principal forms of action, in a manner which draws no distinction of race between seamen ;

The Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and methods into consideration for the promotion of the welfare of both national and foreign seamen in ports.

PART I. GENERAL ORGANISATION

1. It is desirable to create in every important port an official or officially recognised body, which might comprise representatives of shipowners, seamen, national and local authorities and the chief associations concerned, for the purposes of—

- (a) collecting, as far as possible in conjunction with the different authorities or organisations concerned, including the consular authorities of maritime States, all useful information and suggestions on the conditions for seamen in the port ;
- (b) advising the competent departments, authorities and associations as to the adoption, adaptation and co-ordination of measures for the improvement of such conditions ; and
- (c) collaborating if required with other competent bodies in carrying out such measures.

2. It is desirable, in order to enable the International Labour Office to inform the Governments of the maritime States and to assist them to co-ordinate their action, that each of them should keep in touch with the Office and furnish it every three years with all useful information on the experience acquired in the promotion of seamen's welfare in ports and on the progress made in this field.

PART II. REGULATION

3. There should be laws or regulations to protect seamen, by measures including the following, from the dangers to which they are exposed in certain establishments or in the docks as such :

- (a) the regulation of the sale of intoxicating liquor ;
- (b) the prohibition of the employment in public houses of young persons of either sex under a certain age ;
- (c) the application of the provisions of international agreements limiting the sale and use of narcotics to all seamen without distinction of nationality ;
- (d) the prohibition of the entry into the docks and harbour area generally of undesirable persons ;
- (e) the fencing off of dock areas and the protection of the edges of wharves and quays and other dangerous parts of docks by fixed or movable barriers, wherever such measures are practicable ;
- (f) the provision of sufficient lighting and, where necessary, of signposts for docks and approaches.

4. In order to ensure the strict enforcement of the measures indicated above and to increase their efficacy, there should be arrangements for supervision, including—

- (a) supervision of establishments where intoxicating liquors are sold and, where necessary and practicable, of hotels, cafés, lodging houses and other similar establishments in the harbour area ;

- (b) supervision, which might be carried out jointly by masters and the public authorities, of persons visiting ships, including boatmen plying between ships and the shore, with a view to preventing intoxicating liquor or narcotics being wrongfully brought on board or the fulfilment of any other illicit purpose ;
- (c) the maintenance in the harbour area of adequate police forces, specially trained and equipped, which should keep in touch with the other supervising bodies.

5. For the better protection of foreign seamen, measures should be taken to facilitate—

- (a) their relations with their consuls ; and
- (b) effective co-operation between consuls and the local or national authorities.

PART III. HEALTH

6. Soliciting and enticing, whether directly or indirectly, in the neighbourhood of the harbour and in districts frequented by seamen should be energetically repressed.

7. All suitable measures should be taken to make known to seamen entering the port, irrespective of their nationality—

- (a) the dangers and means of preventing diseases to which they are exposed, including more particularly tuberculosis and tropical and venereal diseases ;
- (b) the necessity for persons suffering from disease to undergo treatment and the facilities available for such treatment ; and
- (c) the dangers arising from the habit of using narcotics.

8. The treatment of seamen suffering from disease should be facilitated by suitable measures including—

- (a) as wide extension as possible, especially in the dock area, of free and continued treatment for venereal diseases, as provided, for example, by the Agreement concerning Facilities to be given to Merchant Seamen for the Treatment of Venereal Diseases, signed at Brussels, 1 December 1924 ;
- (b) the admission of seamen to clinics and hospitals in ports, without difficulty and irrespective of nationality or religious belief ;
- (c) as wide application as possible to foreign seamen of the provision made for the protection of nationals against tuberculosis ;
- (d) the provision, whenever possible, of arrangements, designed to ensure, when necessary, continuation of treatment with a view to supplementing the medical facilities available to seamen.

PART IV. ACCOMMODATION AND RECREATION

9. Arrangements should be made, at least in the larger ports, for the material and general assistance of seamen while in the port and such arrangements should more particularly include—

- (a) the institution or development of seamen's hostels of a satisfactory character and furnishing suitable board and lodging at reasonable prices ;
- (b) the institution or development of institutes—which might be distinct from the seamen's hostels, but should keep as far as possible in touch with them—providing meeting and recreation rooms (canteens, rooms for games, libraries, etc.) ;
- (c) the organisation, where possible in co-operation with ships' sports clubs, of healthy recreations, such as sports, excursions, etc. ;
- (d) the promotion, by every possible means, of the family life of seamen.

PART V. SAVINGS AND REMITTANCE OF WAGES

10. In order to help seamen to save and to transmit their savings to their families—

- (a) there should be adopted a simple, rapid and safe system, operating with the assistance of consuls, masters, ship-owners' agents or reliable private institutions, for enabling seamen, and more especially those who are in a foreign country, to deposit or remit the whole or part of their wages ;
- (b) a system for enabling seamen, at the time of their signing on or during the voyage, to allot, if they so desire, a proportion of their wages for remittance at regular intervals to their families should be instituted or made of more general application.

PART VI. INFORMATION FOR SEAMEN

11. In view of the fact that the success of most of the measures recommended above must depend to a large extent on suitable publicity among seamen, such publicity should be organised and undertaken by the public authorities, the bodies referred to in Part I of this Recommendation, and the competent associations, assisted as far as possible by the ship's officers and doctor and by ships' sports clubs.

12. Such publicity might include—

- (a) the distribution on shore and, subject to the consent of the master, on board ship, of pamphlets in the most appropriate languages giving clear information as to the

- facilities available for seamen in the port of call or in the next ports for which the ship is bound ;
- (b) the creation in the larger ports of information offices, either at shipping offices or elsewhere, easily accessible to seamen and staffed by persons capable of giving directly such explanations or guidance as may be useful ;
 - (c) the inclusion of some useful information for the physical well-being and general protection of seamen in seamen's books, discharge books or other documents habitually carried by seamen, or in notices posted in a conspicuous place in the crew's quarters ;
 - (d) the frequent publication of articles of general and educational interest to seamen in periodicals read by seamen, both of specialised and general interest, and also the use of the cinema for this purpose ;
 - (e) the distribution of information concerning the tariffs of local transport and of local places of interest and entertainment.

PART VII. EQUALITY OF TREATMENT

13. Governments, authorities and organisations which may have to administer funds for the welfare of seamen are specially urged not to concern themselves solely with seamen of a particular nationality, but to act as generously as possible in the spirit of international solidarity.

TWENTY-THIRD SESSION
(Geneva, 3-23 June 1937)

Recommendation 50

Recommendation concerning International Co-operation in respect of Public Works

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to international co-operation in respect of public works, which is included in the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-second day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Public Works (International Co-operation) Recommendation, 1937 :

Whereas the advance planning of public works is a useful method of preventing unemployment and counteracting economic fluctuations ; and

Whereas action for this purpose can be effective only if it is based on adequate information and international co-operation ;

The Conference recommends that :

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation should communicate annually to the International Labour Office, on the most suitable date, statistical and other information concerning public works undertaken or planned on its territory, including orders for plant, equipment and supplies.

2. The information communicated by Members in accordance with paragraph 1 should be supplied as far as possible in accordance with a uniform plan relating more particularly to the expenditure involved, the method of financing the works and the number of workers engaged.

3. Each Member should co-operate in the work of any international committee which may be set up by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office for the purpose, more particularly, of studying the information communicated in accordance with paragraph 1 and preparing the uniform plan referred to in paragraph 2.

4. Each Member should carefully consider what action to take on the basis of any reports which the Governing Body of the International Labour Office may send it as a result of the discussions of the committee contemplated by paragraph 3.

Recommendation 51

Recommendation concerning the National Planning of Public Works

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the national planning of public works, which is included in the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-second day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Public Works (National Planning) Recommendation, 1937 :

Whereas in the absence of advance planning expenditure on public works tends to increase in years of prosperity and to diminish in years of depression ;

Whereas fluctuations in the volume of employment of workers engaged on public works are thereby superimposed on the fluctuations in the volume of employment arising out of commercial demand, thus aggravating successively the shortage of certain classes of workers in periods of prosperity and the extent of unemployment in periods of depression ;

Whereas it is desirable to time public works in such a way as to reduce industrial fluctuations as far as possible ;

Whereas the uniform application of such a policy of timing to all public works involves the co-ordination of the administrative and financial methods applied by the various authorities ; and

Whereas it is also desirable, if public works are to be fully effective as a remedy for unemployment, that measures should be adopted relating to the conditions of recruitment and employment of the workers engaged on the works ;

The Conference recommends that each Member should apply the following principles :

PART I. TIMING OF PUBLIC WORKS

1. (1) Appropriate measures should be adopted for the purpose of achieving a suitable timing of all works undertaken or financed by public authorities.

(2) This timing should involve an increase in the volume of such works in periods of depression and for this purpose it is desirable to provide for the preparation in advance, during periods of prosperity, of works capable of being held in reserve or exceeding ordinary requirements and which should be ready for execution as soon as the need is felt.

(3) Special attention should be paid to public works which stimulate heavy industries or public works which create a more direct demand for consumers' goods, as changing economic conditions may require.

2. The policy of timing public works should apply to all such works (including works in colonies) undertaken by central authorities, regional or local authorities, public utility undertakings, or any body or individual in receipt of subsidies or loans from a public authority.

3. There should be established a national co-ordinating body the duties of which should be, more particularly—

- (a) to centralise information relating to the various kinds of public works ;
- (b) to ensure or encourage the preparation of works in advance ; and
- (c) to give instructions or advice as to when works should be held in reserve and when works held in reserve should be undertaken, account being taken of fluctuations in the volume of unemployment, changes in the index of wholesale prices, changes in the rate of interest and any changes in other indices which indicate an alteration in the economic situation.

PART II. FINANCING OF PUBLIC WORKS

4. Among the financial measures necessitated by the policy embodied in the present Recommendation the following should receive special consideration :

- (a) the placing to reserve in periods of prosperity of the resources necessary for carrying out works prepared for periods of depression ;
- (b) the carrying forward of unexpended balances from one year to another ;
- (c) restricted borrowing by public authorities in periods of prosperity and accelerated repayment of loans previously contracted ;

- (d) the financing by loan in periods of depression of public works likely to stimulate economic recovery, and, generally speaking, the application of a monetary policy which will make possible the expansion of credit required at such a time for the speeding up of the public works and which will ensure the lowest possible rate of interest on the loans.

5. The co-ordinating body provided for in paragraph 3 or a special body acting in co-operation with it should be entrusted with all or some of the following duties in connection with the financing of public works :

- (a) to advise the central authority on financial policy and, if necessary, taxation policy relating to public works ;
- (b) to assist in achieving proper co-ordination between the credit policy and market operations of the central bank, or corresponding institution, and the public works policy of the Government ;
- (c) to co-ordinate the borrowing policy of the different public bodies referred to in paragraph 2 ; and
- (d) to take such measures as may be necessary to ensure that the policy of the central authority in respect of loans and subsidies is made effective.

PART III. EMPLOYMENT OF CERTAIN CLASSES OF WORKERS

6. In applying the policy of timing provided for in this Recommendation, consideration should be given to the possibility of including works which will give employment to special classes of workers such as young workers, women and non-manual workers.

PART IV. CONDITIONS OF RECRUITMENT AND EMPLOYMENT

7. The recruitment of workers for employment on public works should be effected for preference through the public employment exchanges.

8. Foreign workers authorised to reside in the country concerned should be accepted for employment on public works in the same conditions as nationals, subject to reciprocal treatment.

9. The rates of wages of workers on public works should be not less favourable than those commonly recognised by workers' organisations and employers for work of the same character in the district where the work is carried out ; where there are no such rates recognised or prevailing in the district, those recognised or prevailing in the nearest district in which the general industrial circumstances are similar should be adopted, subject to the condition that the rates should in any case be such as to ensure to the workers a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in their time and country.

Convention 59Convention Fixing the Minimum Age for Admission of Children to Industrial Employment (Revised 1937) ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Whereas the Minimum Age (Industry) Convention (Revised), 1937, while restricting the scope of the exception for family undertakings contained in the 1919 Convention, still permits such undertakings to be excluded from its scope except in the case of employments which, by their nature or the circumstances in which they are carried on, are dangerous to the life, health or morals of the persons employed therein ; and

Convention 62Convention concerning Safety Provisions in the Building Industry ¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Considering that building work gives rise to serious accident risks which it is necessary to reduce both on humanitarian and on economic grounds, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to safety provisions for workers in the building industry with reference to scaffolding and hoisting machinery, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Considering that, in view of the desirability of standardising minimum safety provisions without prescribing requirements too rigid for general application, the most appropriate form for these proposals is that of an international Convention accompanied by a Recommendation embodying a model code of safety regulations, adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Convention, which may be cited as the Safety Provisions (Building) Convention, 1937 :

Recommendation 53

Recommendation concerning Safety Provisions in the Building Industry

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to safety provisions for workers in the building industry with reference to scaffolding and hoisting machinery, which is the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention accompanied by a Recommendation embodying a model code of safety regulations, adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Safety Provisions (Building) Recommendation, 1937 :

Whereas it is desirable, with a view to intensifying the efforts being made by the Members of the Organisation to reduce the risk of accident in the building industry, to submit for their consideration model safety provisions and to arrange for an exchange upon an international scale of the experience acquired in the application of these provisions ;

Whereas the Safety Provisions (Building) Convention, 1937, embodies a series of general principles which require to be supplemented by detailed safety regulations ;

Whereas it is therefore desirable that Members of the Organisation which ratify that Convention should have at their disposal a model code of safety regulations which have been proved by experience to be calculated to reduce the risk of accidents ; and

Whereas it is also desirable that such a model code should be available for the guidance of any Members which may be unable to ratify immediately the Safety Provisions (Building) Convention, 1937 ;

The Conference recommends that :

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation should give the fullest effect possible and desirable under national conditions to the provisions of, or provisions equivalent to the provisions of, the annexed Model Code.

2. Any Members of the International Labour Organisation which have not ratified the Safety Provisions (Building) Convention, 1937, should communicate every third year to the International Labour Office on a voluntary basis a report indicating the extent to which effect has been given to the Model Code.

3. No person shall interfere with, displace, take away, damage or destroy any of the plant or safeguards required by the foregoing Regulations without the authority of the employer or his responsible foreman.

4. Every person employed shall make proper use of all safeguards, safety devices or other appliances furnished for his protection and shall obey all safety instructions pertaining to his work.

5. Every worker shall take the necessary precautions for his own safety and for the safety of any other person on the site and abstain from any action which might endanger him or other persons.

6. No employed person shall go to or from his workplace otherwise than by the safe means of access and egress provided.

Recommendation 54

Recommendation concerning Inspection in the Building Industry

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to inspection in the building industry, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Inspection (Building) Recommendation, 1937 :

Whereas the Safety Provisions (Building) Convention, 1937, and the Safety Provisions (Building) Recommendation, 1937, contain provisions relating to labour inspection ;

Whereas the Conference adopted at its Fifth Session (1923) a Recommendation concerning labour inspection ;

Whereas it is nevertheless desirable that as regards the building industry the attention of Members should be drawn to certain other provisions not included in the above-mentioned Convention and Recommendations ;

The Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration as regards inspection in the building industry :

1. All work in connection with the construction, repair, alteration, maintenance and demolition of buildings of all kinds should be subject to inspection.

2. The authority responsible for inspection (hereinafter called the inspection authority) should be a public body and should have all powers necessary to ensure that the laws and regulations in force are strictly applied.

3. Inspectors should have previous technical training and have passed examinations covering all suitable technical and administrative matters which should ensure that they are competent to supervise effectively the enforcement of the safety regulations for the workers employed in the building industry.

4. In order to ensure effective collaboration between the inspection authority and the head of the undertaking, national laws or regulations should make the head of the undertaking responsible—

- (a) for providing for constant and adequate supervision of the work so as to ensure compliance with the safety provisions in force ;
- (b) for taking all other practicable steps necessary to prevent accidents, and in particular for not employing on work likely to involve risk of accidents any person whom he knows to be deaf, of defective vision, or liable to giddiness ;
- (c) for informing the inspection authority, in conformity with the national laws or regulations, of the commencement of all building operations undertaken by him ; and
- (d) for reporting to the competent authority, in accordance with the national laws or regulations, accidents occurring in the undertaking.

Recommendation 55

Recommendation concerning Co-operation in Accident Prevention in the Building Industry

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to co-operation in accident prevention in the building industry, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Co-operation in Accident Prevention (Building) Recommendation, 1937 :

Whereas it is considered that in addition to the Safety Provisions (Building) Convention, 1937, the Safety Provisions (Building) Recommendation, 1937, the Inspection (Building) Recommendation, 1937, and the Prevention of Industrial Accidents Recommendation, 1929, it is desirable to make a specific recommendation concerning the prevention of accidents in the building industry by means of safety organisations ;

The Conference recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration in connection with accident prevention in the building industry :

1. There should be established safety organisations within the industry to secure the collaboration of all concerned in effecting a reduction in the number and severity of accidents with particular regard to accident risks for which there are no statutory requirements.

2. In order to render this collaboration effective there should be set up within each undertaking, where it is possible, a special safety organisation including representatives of the employer and the persons employed.

3. It would also be desirable to have direct collaboration between the competent inspector, the employer and the representatives of the persons employed in the undertaking in the form and within the limits fixed by the inspection authority.

4. Safety propaganda in the building industry would be more effective if there were constant co-operation between the inspection authority and all the organisations concerned : safety organisations (joint or separate) of employers and workers ; trade unions and employers' associations ; associations of architects or engineers ; standards associations, etc. ; accident insurance institutions (public, semi-official or private).

5. (1) Periodical meetings should be held by representatives of the organisations mentioned in the preceding paragraph and representatives of the inspection authority, together with representatives of any other public bodies concerned.

- (2) The purpose of such meetings should be to examine jointly the methods that might be taken to improve accident prevention in the building industry.

6. The inspection authority should promote accident prevention by collaborating with all parties concerned in the necessary propaganda, which might take such forms as safety education by training courses, demonstrations, meetings, lectures and films ; the distribution of manuals, pamphlets, magazines or publications reproducing or analysing accident statistics ; and the distribution of posters and notices which should as far as possible be illustrated.

Recommendation 56

Recommendation concerning Vocational Education for the Building Industry

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-third Session on 3 June 1937, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to vocational education for the building industry, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-third day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Vocational Education (Building) Recommendation, 1937 :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

The Conference,

Recalling that at its Twelfth Session (1929) it adopted a Recommendation concerning the prevention of industrial accidents, one part of which deals with vocational education ;

Considering that, in view of the risk of accident, vocational education is of special importance in the case of the building industry ;

Recommends that technical and vocational school curricula relating to the building industry should include theoretical and practical instruction concerning—

- (a) the materials used for the construction of scaffolds and the principles of erecting and maintaining scaffolds ;
- (b) the construction and maintenance of the hoisting appliances used in the building industry ;
- (c) the organisation and supervision of safety measures on building sites ; and
- (d) the safety regulations for building work.

TWENTY-FOURTH SESSION

(Geneva, 2-22 June 1938)

Convention 63

Convention concerning Statistics of Wages and Hours of Work in the Principal Mining and Manufacturing Industries, including Building and Construction, and in Agriculture¹

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fourth Session on 2 June 1938, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to statistics of wages and hours of work in the principal mining and manufacturing industries, including building and construction, and in agriculture, which is the sixth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention, and

Having determined that, although it is desirable that all Members of the Organisation should compile statistics of average earnings and of hours actually worked which comply with the requirements of Part II of this Convention, it is nevertheless expedient that the Convention should be open to ratification by Members which are not in a position to comply with the requirements of that Part, adopts this twentieth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-eight the following Convention, which may be cited as the Convention concerning Statistics of Wages and Hours of Work, 1938 :

PART I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

¹ Date of coming into force : 22 June 1940.

- (b) it will publish the data compiled in pursuance of this Convention as promptly as possible and will endeavour to publish data collected at quarterly or more frequent intervals during the succeeding quarter and to publish data collected at intervals of six or twelve months during the succeeding six or twelve months respectively ; and
- (c) it will communicate the data compiled in pursuance of this Convention to the International Labour Office at the earliest possible date.

Article 3

Nothing in this Convention imposes any obligation to publish or to reveal particulars which would result in the disclosure of information relating to any individual undertaking or establishment.

Article 4

1. Each Member which ratifies this Convention undertakes that its competent statistical authority shall, unless it has already obtained the information in some other way, make enquiries relating either to all, or to a representative part, of the wage earners concerned, in order to obtain the information required for the purpose of the statistics which it has undertaken to compile in accordance with this Convention.

2. Nothing in this Convention shall be interpreted as requiring any Member to compile statistics in cases in which, after enquiries made in the manner required by paragraph 1 of this Article, it is found impracticable to obtain the necessary information without the exercise of compulsory powers.

PART II. STATISTICS OF AVERAGE EARNINGS AND OF HOURS
ACTUALLY WORKED IN MINING AND MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES

Article 5

1. Statistics of average earnings and of hours actually worked shall be compiled for wage earners employed in each of the principal mining and manufacturing industries, including building and construction.

2. The statistics of average earnings and of hours actually worked shall be compiled on the basis of data relating either to all establishments and wage earners or to a representative sample of establishments and wage earners.

3. The statistics of average earnings and of hours actually worked shall—

Article 7

In the case of countries and industries in which allowances in kind, for example in the form of free or cheap housing, food or fuel, form a substantial part of the total remuneration of the wage earners employed, the statistics of average earnings shall be supplemented by particulars of such allowances, together with estimates, so far as practicable, of their money value.

Article 8

The statistics of average earnings shall be supplemented, so far as practicable, by indications as to the average amount of any family allowances per person employed in the period to which the statistics relate.

Article 9

1. The statistics of average earnings shall relate to average earnings per hour, day, week or other customary period.

2. Where the statistics of average earnings relate to average earnings per day, week or other customary period, the statistics of actual hours shall relate to the same period.

Article 10

1. The statistics of average earnings and of hours actually worked, referred to in Article 9, shall be compiled once every year and where possible at shorter intervals.

2. Once every three years and where possible at shorter intervals the statistics of average earnings and, so far as practicable, the statistics of hours actually worked shall be supplemented by separate figures for each sex and for adults and juveniles ; provided that it shall not be necessary to compile these separate figures in the case of industries in which all but an insignificant number of the wage earners belong to the same sex or age group, or to compile the separate figures of hours actually worked for males and females, or for adults and juveniles, in the case of industries in which the normal hours of work do not vary by sex or age.

3. In publishing such index numbers indications shall be given as to the methods employed in their construction.

PART III. STATISTICS OF TIME RATES OF WAGES AND OF NORMAL HOURS OF WORK IN MINING AND MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES

Article 13

Statistics of time rates of wages and of normal hours of work of wage earners shall be compiled for a representative selection of the principal mining and manufacturing industries, including building and construction.

Article 14

1. The statistics of time rates of wages and of normal hours of work shall show the rates and hours—

- (a) fixed by or in pursuance of laws or regulations, collective agreements or arbitral awards ;
- (b) ascertained from organisations of employers and workers, from joint bodies, or from other appropriate sources of information, in cases where rates and hours are not fixed by or in pursuance of laws or regulations, collective agreements or arbitral awards.

The statistics of time rates of wages and of normal hours of work shall indicate the nature and source of the information from which they have been compiled and whether it relates to rates or hours fixed by or in pursuance of laws or regulations, collective agreements or arbitral awards, or to rates or hours fixed by arrangements between employers and wage earners individually.

3. When rates of wages are described as minimum (other than statutory minimum) rates, standard rates, typical rates, or prevailing rates, or by similar terms, the terms used shall be explained.

4. "Normal hours of work", where not fixed by or in pursuance of laws or regulations, collective agreements or arbitral awards, shall be taken as meaning the number of hours, per day, week or other period, in excess of which any time worked is remunerated at overtime rates or forms an exception to the rules or custom of the establishment relating to the classes of wage earners concerned.

- (b) at least once a year, and if possible at shorter intervals, separate figures for the main occupations in the most important of these industries.

2. The data relating to time rates of wages and of normal hours of work shall be presented, so far as practicable, on the basis of the same occupational classification.

3. Where the sources of information from which the statistics are compiled do not indicate the separate occupations to which the rates or hours apply, but fix varying rates of wages or hours of work for other categories of workers (such as skilled workers, semi-skilled workers and unskilled workers) or fix normal hours of work by classes of undertakings or branches of undertakings, the separate figures shall be given according to these distinctions.

4. Where the categories of workers for which figures are given are not separate occupations, the scope of each category shall, in so far as the necessary particulars are given in the sources of information from which the statistics are compiled, be indicated.

Article 16

Where the statistics of time rates do not give the rates per hour but give rates per day, week, or other customary period

- (a) the statistics of normal hours of work shall relate to the same period ; and together with estimates, so far as practicable, of their money value.

Article 21

1. Annual index numbers showing the general movement of rates of wages per hour or per week shall be compiled on the basis of the statistics compiled in pursuance of this Part of this Convention, supplemented, where necessary, by any other relevant information which may be available (for example, particulars as to changes in piece-work rates of wages).

3. In compiling such index numbers due account shall be taken, inter alia, of the relative importance of the different industries.

4. In publishing such index numbers indications shall be given as to the methods employed in their construction.

Any Member the territory of which includes large areas in respect of which, by reason of the difficulty of creating the necessary administrative organisation and the sparseness of the population or the stage of economic development of the area, it is impracticable to compile statistics complying with the requirements of this Convention may exclude such areas from the application of this Convention in whole or in part.

2. Each Member shall indicate in its first annual report upon the application of this Convention submitted under Article 22 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation any areas in respect of which it proposes to have recourse to the provisions of this Article and no Member shall, after the date of its first annual report, have recourse to the provisions of this Article except in respect of areas so indicated.

The French and English texts of this Convention shall both be authentic.

TWENTY-FIFTH SESSION

(Geneva, 8-28 June 1939)

Recommendation 57

Recommendation concerning Vocational Training

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to vocational training, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-seventh day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Vocational Training Recommendation, 1939 :

Considering that the Preamble to the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation mentions the organisation of vocational and technical education among the reforms necessary for improving the conditions of labour ;

Considering that the International Labour Conference has already to a certain extent dealt with this problem, particularly by adopting at its Third Session (1921) a Recommendation concerning the development of technical agricultural education and at its Twenty-third Session the Vocational Education (Building) Recommendation, 1937 ;

Considering that at its Nineteenth Session the Conference, by adopting the Unemployment (Young Persons) Recommendation, 1935, favoured the generalisation of measures for vocational training, and that it was as a result of a resolution adopted during that session that it was decided to include in the agenda of the Conference the question of the vocational training of workers in all its aspects ;

Considering that the effective organisation of vocational training is desirable in the interests of workers and employers alike as well as those of the community as a whole ;

Considering that the rapid transformation of the economic structure of, and conditions in, various countries, the constant changes in the methods of production, and the widening of the conception of vocational training as a factor in social progress and in the general culture of the workers, have in a number of countries led to a fresh examination of the whole of this question and have given rise to a general desire to reorganise vocational training on the basis of principles better adapted to present requirements ;

Considering that, in these circumstances, it is particularly desirable at the present time to state the principles and methods which each Member should apply on its territory, with due regard to the special requirements of the different branches of its national economy and of the different occupations, as well as the customs and traditions of the country, and subject to further special measures that might be required in respect of vocational training for certain branches of activity such as agriculture or maritime transport ;

The Conference makes the following recommendations :

PART I. DEFINITIONS

1. For the purpose of this Recommendation—
 - (a) the expression “vocational training” means any form of training by means of which technical or trade knowledge can be acquired or developed, whether the training is given at school or at the place of work ;
 - (b) the expression “technical and vocational education” means theoretical and practical instruction, of whatever grade, given at school for purposes of vocational training ;
 - (c) the expression “apprenticeship” means any system by which an employer undertakes by contract to employ a young person and to train him or have him trained systematically for a trade for a period the duration of which has been fixed in advance and in the course of which the apprentice is bound to work in the employer's service.

PART II. GENERAL ORGANISATION

2. (1) The work of the various official and private institutions in each country which deal with vocational training should, while ensuring free play to initiative and adaptability to the requirements of the different industries, regions and localities, be co-ordinated and developed on the basis of a general programme.

(2) This programme should be based on—

- (a) the occupational interests and cultural and moral requirements of the worker ;
- (b) the labour requirements of employers ;
- (c) the economic and social interests of the community.

(3) In drawing up this programme due account should also be taken of the following factors :

- (a) the stage of development reached in general education and in vocational guidance and selection ;
- (b) changes in technique and methods of organisation of work ;
- (c) the structure of, and trend of development in, the labour market ;
- (d) national economic policy.

(4) The co-ordination and development referred to in subparagraph (1) should be undertaken on a national scale with the organised collaboration of the authorities concerned with the different aspects of the problem mentioned in subparagraphs (2) and (3), and of the interested parties, including more particularly the occupational organisations of employers and workers.

PART III. PREVOCATIONAL PREPARATION

3. (1) Compulsory education, which should be entirely general in character, should provide for all children a preparation developing an idea of, taste for, and esteem for, manual work, these being an indispensable part of a general education and likely to facilitate future vocational guidance.

(2) The proposed preparation should aim, in particular, at training the eye and hand of the child by means of practical work, but the importance and character of this work should be consistent with the general purposes of compulsory education. In drawing up the programme of practical work, the nature of the principal industries in the locality or district might be taken into account, but any attempt at vocational training should be avoided.

(3) This preparation, which should extend over a period of at least one year, should begin at the latest at the age of thirteen years and continue until the end of the period of compulsory education.

4. (1) In order to determine the occupational aptitudes of the child and to facilitate the selection of the future labour supply, there should be available to children who intend to enter an occupation requiring vocational training of long duration, and in particular to those who propose to become apprentices, a preliminary preparation constituting a transition from general education to vocational training.

(2) This preparation should take place after the completion of the period of compulsory education : Provided that where the laws or regulations in force in the country concerned fix the school-leaving age at not less than fourteen years, this preparation may be undertaken during the last year of compulsory education.

(3) The duration of this preparation should be determined with due regard to the occupation concerned and to the age and educational qualifications of the young person.

(4) In the curricula for this preparation, particular importance should be attached to practical work, but such work should not be given precedence over the theoretical courses or courses in general education. Practical and theoretical instruction should be so arranged as to be mutually complementary. The preparation should, by aiming at the general development of the pupil's intellectual and manual capacities and avoiding undue specialisation, make it possible to determine for which of a group of occupations he is best suited to undergo full training. Practical and theoretical instruction should be so arranged as to secure continuity between this preliminary preparation and subsequent vocational training.

PART IV. TECHNICAL AND VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

5. (1) A network of schools should be established in each country, adjusted as regards number, location and curricula to the economic requirements of each region or locality and affording the workers adequate opportunities for developing their technical or trade knowledge.

(2) Measures should be adopted to ensure that, in the event of economic depression or financial difficulty, the supply of trained workers necessary to meet future requirements is not imperilled by a reduction in the facilities for technical and vocational education. For this purpose, consideration should be given particularly to the grant of subsidies to existing schools and to the provision of special courses to make good the loss of opportunities for training caused by unemployment.

(3) In countries in which a sufficient number of vocational and technical schools has not yet been established, it would be desirable that undertakings of such a size as to make such arrangements practicable should meet the cost of training a certain number of young workers determined according to the number of workers employed by the undertaking.

6. (1) Admission to technical and vocational schools should be free.

(2) Attendance at such schools should be facilitated, as circumstances require, by the grant of economic assistance in such forms as free meals, provision of working clothes and implements, free transport or reduction in the cost of transport, or maintenance allowances.

7. (1) Courses should be organised in several grades, adjusted for each branch of economic activity to the training requirements of (a) journeymen and similar grades, (b) staff in intermediate grades, (c) managerial staff.

(2) The curricula for the courses in the different schools and for the different grades should be so co-ordinated as to facilitate transfer from one school to another and to enable promising pupils with the requisite knowledge to pass from a lower to a higher grade and to obtain admission to higher technical education at a university or equivalent institution.

8. The curricula for technical and vocational schools should be so drawn up as to protect the future vocational adaptability of the workers and for this purpose it is particularly desirable—

- (a) that the primary object of the courses in the earlier years should be to give the pupil a sound basis of theoretical and practical knowledge, avoiding excessive or premature specialisation ; and
- (b) that care should be taken to enable the pupil to acquire a wide grasp of the theoretical principles underlying the practice of his occupation.

9. (1) In technical and vocational education of all grades, subjects of general educational value and subjects relating to social questions should be included in the curricula for full-time courses and, so far as the time available permits, for part-time courses, other than special short courses for adults.

(2) The curricula should include courses in domestic subjects, attendance at which might be either compulsory or optional for young workers according to circumstances.

10. (1) Workers of both sexes should have equal rights of admission to all technical and vocational schools, provided that women and girls are not required to engage continuously on work which on grounds of health they are legally prohibited from performing, a short period on such work for the purpose of training being, however, permissible.

(2) Appropriate facilities for technical and vocational training should be provided for occupations in which women and girls are mainly employed, including domestic employments and activities.

PART V. VOCATIONAL TRAINING BEFORE AND DURING EMPLOYMENT

11. (1) Where the nature of the occupation, the methods of operation of the undertaking, the absence of an adequate system of apprenticeship and traditions of craftsmanship, or other local circumstances, make it impossible for young persons to secure satisfactory vocational training while in employment, such training should be given in full-time schools before they enter employment.

(2) Where young persons are given vocational training in the conditions referred to in the preceding sub-paragraph, the practical training should be given in surroundings as similar as possible to those of an actual undertaking and, where circumstances permit, should be completed by periods of practical work at the place of work.

(3) Where vocational training is given during employment, it is desirable that separate workshops specially adapted for the purpose of giving training should be set up within the undertaking wherever the size and organisation of the undertaking make such an arrangement practicable.

12. (1) Opportunities for extending their technical and trade knowledge by attending part-time supplementary courses should be provided for all workers, whether or not they had received vocational training before entering employment.

(2) These courses should, as far as possible, be held in establishments near to the place of employment or the workers' homes.

(3) The curricula for these courses should be adjusted to the special requirements of (a) apprentices ; (b) young workers for whom facilities should be provided to enable them to obtain better posts ; (c) adult workers who wish to acquire a technical qualification or to extend or improve their technical or trade knowledge.

(4) The time spent in attending supplementary courses by apprentices and other young workers who are under an obligation to attend such courses should be included in normal working hours.

PART VI. MEASURES CONCERNING CO-ORDINATION AND THE SUPPLY OF INFORMATION

13. Close collaboration should be maintained between technical and vocational schools and the industries or other branches of activity concerned, particularly by the inclusion of employers and workers in the governing bodies of the schools or in advisory bodies to the schools.

14. (1) Local or regional advisory committees should be established to ensure collaboration between the competent administrative authorities and the technical and vocational educational institutions, public employment exchanges and organisations concerned, in particular the occupational organisations of employers and workers.

(2) The duties of these committees should be to advise the competent authorities—

- (a) on the promotion and co-ordination of official and private action in regard to vocational training, guidance and selection in the locality or region ;
- (b) on the drawing up of curricula and the adjustment of such curricula to changes in practical requirements ;
- (c) on the conditions of work of young persons who are receiving vocational training, whether in a technical or vocational school or in an undertaking, and, more particularly, on measures for ensuring—
 - (i) that the work done by them is suitably restricted and is essentially of an educative character ; and

- (ii) that the work of pupils in technical and vocational schools is not intended for commercial profit.

15. (1) Measures should be taken to supply information to interested persons, by means of brochures, articles, talks, films, posters, visits to undertakings, exhibitions, etc., on the occupations for which young persons can obtain training corresponding with their inclinations and aptitudes, on the conditions upon which such training can be obtained and the facilities that are accorded, and on the advantages offered by each type of training in relation to the prospects of employment and a future career.

(2) The primary and secondary schools, vocational guidance offices, public employment exchanges and technical and vocational educational institutions should collaborate in furnishing such information.

PART VII. CERTIFICATES AND EXCHANGES

16. (1) The qualifications required in the examination on termination of technical and vocational training for any given occupation should be uniformly fixed, and the certificates issued as a result of these examinations should be recognised throughout the country.

(2) It would be desirable for the occupational organisations of employers and workers to assist the competent authorities in the control of these examinations.

(3) Persons of both sexes should have equal rights to obtain the same certificates and diplomas on completion of the same studies.

17. (1) Regional, national and international exchanges of students who have completed their training would be desirable so as to enable them to acquire wider knowledge and experience.

(2) The occupational organisations of employers and workers should, as far as possible, collaborate in organising these exchanges.

PART VIII. TEACHING STAFF

18. (1) Teachers responsible for theoretical courses should be recruited from among persons with a university degree or a diploma awarded after training in a technical school or teachers' training college and should possess or acquire practical knowledge of the branch of activity for which they prepare pupils.

(2) Teachers responsible for practical courses should be recruited from among persons qualified by practical experience, should have extensive experience of the subject they teach, and should be fully qualified as regards both theoretical knowledge of their subject and general culture.

(3) Teachers recruited from industry and commerce should as far as possible receive special training for the purpose of developing their teaching ability and where necessary their theoretical knowledge and general culture.

19. The following methods should be taken into consideration with a view to improving the qualifications of teachers and keeping their knowledge up to date :

- (a) the establishment of contacts between undertakings and the teachers responsible for giving practical training as, for instance, by the organisation of regular "refresher" periods of work ;
- (b) the organisation by educational institutions of special courses which teachers may follow individually and short holiday courses for groups of teachers ;
- (c) the granting, in special cases, of travelling or research scholarships or special leave with or without pay.

20. Arrangements should be made between employers and educational authorities for the appointment of persons employed in industry and commerce as part-time teachers of special subjects.

2. Where the period of service to be stipulated in any re-engagement contract, together with the period already served under the expired contract, involves the separation of any worker from his family for more than eighteen months, the worker shall not begin the service stipulated in the re-engagement contract until he has had the opportunity to return home at the employer's expense. Provided that the competent authority may grant exemption from this provision whenever its application is impracticable or undesirable.

3. Except as provided in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article, all the provisions of the preceding articles shall apply to re-engagement contracts. Provided that the competent authority may at its discretion exempt such contracts from the provisions of Article 6, paragraphs 1 to 5, and Article 7.

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the maximum length of written contracts of employment of indigenous workers, which is included in the second item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-seventh day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Contracts of Employment (Indigenous Workers) Recommendation, 1939 :

The Conference,

Having adopted the Contracts of Employment (Indigenous Workers) Convention, 1939, Article 9 of which provides that "the maximum period of service that may be stipulated in any contract, and the leave, if any, to be granted during the period of the contract, shall be prescribed by the regulations" ; and Desiring to supplement this provision by a statement of principles which appear well fitted to guide the policy of the Members concerned in fixing the maximum period of service in different cases and by suggestions regarding the maxima which might be fixed in such cases ;

Recommends that each Member of the International Labour Organisation which ratifies the Contracts of Employment (Indigenous Workers) Convention, 1939, should take the following principles into consideration in fixing the maximum period of service provided for in Article 9 of the Convention :

1. The maximum period of service should always be as short as possible, and should be shorter when the workers will be separated from their families during the period of service than when they are accompanied by their families.

2. (1) The maximum period of service for employments not involving a long and expensive journey by land or sea should in no case exceed twelve months if the workers are not accompanied by their families or two years if the workers are accompanied by their families.

(2) The maximum period of service for employments involving a long and expensive journey by land or sea should in no case exceed two years if the workers are not accompanied by their families or three years if the workers are accompanied by their families.

3. Exceptions to the above maxima should be made only in the case of workers accompanied by their families and where it is intended, with the prior consent of the workers, to settle them with their families at or near the place of employment.

4. Where the period of service is twelve months or more, the worker should be granted a holiday with pay of at least one week.

Recommendation 59

Recommendation concerning Labour Inspectorates for Indigenous Workers

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to labour inspectorates for indigenous workers, which is included in the second item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-seventh day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Labour Inspectorates (Indigenous Workers) Recommendation, 1939 :

The Conference,

Having adopted the Contracts of Employment (Indigenous Workers) Convention, 1939, and

Considering that the law or regulations relating to the employment of indigenous workers can only be satisfactorily administered by labour inspection services, Recommends that the Members of the International Labour Organisation concerned should establish labour inspection services in any territories where such services do not already exist.

Recommendation 60

Recommendation concerning Apprenticeship

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to apprenticeship, which is included in the first item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Apprenticeship Recommendation, 1939 :

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

The Conference,

Having adopted the Vocational Training Recommendation, 1939, which enumerates the principles and methods which should be applied with regard to the organisation of such training ;

Considering that of the various methods of vocational training, apprenticeship raises special problems, particularly because it is given in undertakings and involves contractual relations between master and apprentice ;

Considering that the efficacy of apprenticeship largely depends on the satisfactory definition and observance of the conditions governing apprenticeship and, in particular, of those relating to the mutual rights and obligations of master and apprentice ;

Recommends that each Member should take into consideration the following principles and rules :

1. For the purpose of the present Recommendation the expression "apprenticeship" means any system by which an employer undertakes by contract to employ a young person and to train him or have him trained systematically for a trade for a period the duration of which has been fixed in advance and in the course of which the apprentice is bound to work in the employer's service.

2. (1) Measures should be taken to make apprenticeship as effective as possible in trades in which this system of training seems necessary. These trades should be designated in each country, having regard to the degree of skill and the length of the period of practical training required.

(2) Subject to there being sufficient co-ordination to guarantee uniformity in the degree of skill required and in the methods and conditions of apprenticeship within each trade throughout the country, the measures referred to in the preceding sub-paragraph may be taken by laws or regulations, or by decisions of public bodies entrusted with the control of apprenticeship, or in virtue of collective agreements, or by a combination of the above methods.

3. (1) The measures referred to in the preceding paragraph should make provision in respect of—

- (a) the technical and other qualifications required of employers in order that they may take and train apprentices ;
- (b) the conditions governing the entry of young persons into apprenticeship ; and
- (c) the mutual rights and obligations of master and apprentice.

(2) In making such provision consideration should be given more particularly to the following principles :

- (a) An employer taking apprentices should either himself be qualified to give adequate training or be in a position to provide such training by some other person in his service with the necessary qualifications, and the undertaking in which the training is to be given should be such as will permit of the apprentice securing a proper training in the trade to be learnt.
- (b) Young persons should not be allowed to enter into apprenticeship until they have reached a fixed age, which should not be below the age at which school attendance ceases to be compulsory.
- (c) Where the minimum standard of general education required for entry into apprenticeship is higher than that normally attained at the end of the period of compulsory school attendance, this minimum standard should be fixed with due regard to the variations in requirements of different trades.
- (d) Entry into apprenticeship should in every case be subject to a medical examination, and where the trade in view calls for special physical qualities or mental aptitudes these should be specified and tested by special tests.
- (e) Provision should be made for the registration of apprentices with appropriate bodies and, where necessary, for the control of their number.
- (f) Arrangements should be made to facilitate the transfer of an apprentice from one employer to another in cases where transfer appears necessary or desirable in order to avoid interruption of the apprenticeship or to complete the training of the apprentice or for some other reason.

- (g) The duration of apprenticeship, including that of the probationary period, should be determined in advance, any prior training undergone by the apprentice in a technical or vocational school being duly taken into account.
- (h) Provision should be made for the holding of examinations of apprentices on the expiry of the period of apprenticeship and, where necessary, in the course of apprenticeship, for determining the methods of organising such examinations, and for the issue of certificates based on the results thereof. The qualifications required in such examinations for any given trade should be uniformly fixed, and the certificates issued as a result of such examinations should be recognised throughout the country.
- (i) Supervision should be established over apprenticeship, particularly with a view to ensuring that the rules governing apprenticeship are observed, that the training given is satisfactory and that there is reasonable uniformity in the conditions of apprenticeship.
- (j) Any requirements of form to be complied with by the contract of apprenticeship and the terms to be contained or implied in it should be specified, as for instance by the drawing up of a standard contract, and the procedure for the registration of contracts with the bodies referred to under (c) above should be determined.

4. (1) Provision should be made in the contract of apprenticeship as to how any remuneration in cash or otherwise due to the apprentice should be determined and as to the scale of increase in remuneration during the course of the apprenticeship.

(2) Where there are no laws or regulations upon the subject, or the laws or regulations do not apply to apprentices, provision should also be made in the contract of apprenticeship in respect of—

- (a) the remuneration referred to in sub-paragraph (1) above during sickness ; and
- (b) holidays with pay.

5. (1) It would be desirable that the parties concerned in apprenticeship and more particularly the organisations of employers and workers should collaborate with the official bodies responsible for the supervision of apprenticeship.

(2) Close collaboration should be maintained between the bodies responsible for the supervision of apprenticeship and the general and vocational education authorities, vocational guidance institutions, public employment exchanges and labour inspection authorities.

6. This Recommendation does not apply to the apprenticeship of seamen.

Recommendation 61

Recommendation concerning the Recruitment, Placing and Conditions of Labour of Migrants for Employment

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the recruiting, placing and conditions of labour (equality of treatment) of migrant workers, which is the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Migration for Employment Recommendation, 1939 :

The Conference,

Having adopted the Migration for Employment Convention, 1939, and Desiring to supplement its provisions by a Recommendation ;

Recommends as follows :

1. (1) For the purpose of this Recommendation—

(a) the term “recruitment” means—

- (i) the engagement of a person in one territory on behalf of an employer in another territory, or
- (ii) the giving of an undertaking to a person in one territory to provide him with employment in another territory, together with the making of any arrangements in connection with the operations mentioned in (i) and (ii) including the seeking for and selection of would-be emigrants and the preparation for departure of the emigrants ;

(b) the term “introduction” means any operations for ensuring or facilitating the arrival in or admission to a territory of persons who have been recruited within the meaning of (a) ;

(c) the term “placing” means any operations for the purpose of supplying an employer with the labour of persons who have been introduced within the meaning of (b).

(2) This Recommendation does not apply to—

- (a) migration within the territory of a Member or from one territory of a Member to another territory of the same Member ;
- (b) frontier workers whose place of employment is in the territory of one State and whose place of residence is in the territory of another State ;
- (c) seamen ;
- (d) indigenous workers as defined in Article 2 (b) of the Recruiting of Indigenous Workers Convention, 1936.

II

2. The service provided in each country to supply information and give assistance to migrants should have the following duties :

- (a) to supply information to migrants and their families and advise them, in their languages or dialects or at least in a language which they can understand, on matters relating to emigration, immigration, employment and living conditions in the place of destination, return to the country of origin, and generally speaking on any other question which may be of interest to them in their capacity as migrants ;
- (b) to provide facilities for migrants and their families with regard to the fulfilment of administrative formalities and other steps to be taken in connection with their departure, journey, admission into the country of destination, residence there and, should the case arise, return to the country of origin.

3. There should, whenever possible, be a reasonable interval between the publication and coming into force of any modification of the conditions on which emigration or immigration or the employment of foreigners is permitted in order that these conditions may be notified in good time to persons who are preparing to emigrate.

4. Provision should be made for the display at the places of departure, transit and arrival, of the texts of the principal measures referred to in the preceding paragraph or of notices relating thereto in the languages most commonly known to the migrants.

III

5. (1) With a view to safeguarding the interests of migrants for employment and ensuring the equilibrium of the employment market, the competent authorities of the country of emigration and the country of immigration should, when the volume of migration justifies it, require applications for the recruitment and introduction of migrants for employment to be submitted in advance for examination and endorsement.

(2) Before authorising the introduction of migrants for employment the country of immigration should ascertain whether there is not a sufficient number of capable persons already available to do the work in question.

6. (1) The conditions under which authorisations for the recruitment, introduction or placing of migrants for employment are granted and maintained in force should be determined either by national laws or regulations or by agreement between the country of emigration and the country of immigration.

(2) The persons to whom or bodies to which authorisations are granted should furnish guarantees, which might take the form of a deposit, for the payment of compensation in respect of any damage suffered by a migrant for employment through the fault of the said persons or bodies.

7. (1) Any intermediary who undertakes the recruitment, introduction or placing of migrants for employment on behalf of an employer should be required to obtain a written warrant from the employer or some other document proving that he is acting on the employer's behalf.

(2) This document should be drawn up in, or translated into, the official language of the country of emigration, and should set forth all necessary particulars concerning the employer, concerning the nature and scope of the recruitment, introduction or placing which the intermediary is to undertake, and concerning the employment offered, including the remuneration offered.

8. (1) It is desirable that in each country where migrants for employment are recruited, introduced or placed, the competent authorities should fix maximum scales for the expenditure that may be charged to the migrant or to his employer in respect of recruitment, introduction (including maintenance during the journey), placing, repatriation or any other operations connected therewith.

(2) The expenditure mentioned in the preceding sub-paragraph should not, as a rule, be borne by the migrant and in all cases any deductions from remuneration which the employer may make for this purpose should be limited by national laws or regulations or by agreement between the country of emigration and the country of immigration.

9. (1) Intending migrants for employment should, as far as possible, be examined before their departure from the country of emigration by a representative of the country of immigration responsible for satisfying himself that they are eligible for admission into that country.

(2) If recruitment takes place on a sufficiently large scale to be considered as collective recruitment under the law or regulations of the country of emigration, an expert official of that country should be present.

(3) It is desirable that the examinations and the recruitment referred to in the preceding sub-paragraphs of this paragraph should, as far as possible, be carried out in the neighbourhood of the intending migrant's home.

10. (1) The members of the family of a migrant for employment who desire to accompany or join him should receive special facilities for this purpose, more particularly—

- (a) priority over other applications for permission to leave the country of emigration and to enter and reside in the country of immigration ;
- (b) a simplification of the administrative formalities and a reduction in the payments required either for leaving the country of emigration or for entering and residing in the country of immigration.

(2) For the purpose of this paragraph the members of the family of a migrant for employment should be deemed to consist of his wife and minor children and of other members of his family dependent upon him.

IV

11. Equality of treatment for nationals and foreigners, as laid down in Article 6 of the Migration for Employment Convention, 1939, should be applied as far as possible to all foreigners.

12. (1) Foreigners authorised to reside in a territory with a view to employment, and the members of their families authorised to accompany or join them, should as far as possible be admitted to employment in the same conditions as nationals.

(2) In countries in which the employment of foreigners authorised to be employed there is subject to restrictions, these restrictions should as far as possible—

- (a) cease to be applied to such persons who have regularly resided in the country for a period, the length of which should not, as a rule, exceed five years ; and
- (b) be waived, without any condition as to length of residence, in favour of the wife and children of an age to work who have been authorised to accompany or join the migrant.

13. It is desirable that Members which have not ratified the international labour Conventions relating to social insurance should grant to foreign employed persons and their survivors the treatment defined in the said Conventions.

14. (1) It is desirable that, in countries where the number of immigrants for employment is sufficiently large, the conditions of employment of such immigrants should be specially supervised, such supervision being undertaken according to circumstances either by a special inspection service or by labour inspectors or other officials specialising in this work.

(2) The administrative services entrusted with the supervision referred to in the preceding sub-paragraph should co-operate as far as possible with voluntary organisations for the assistance of migrants which have been approved by the authorities.

15. (1) When a foreign employed person has been regularly admitted to the territory of a State the said State should, as far as possible, refrain from removing such person or the members of his family from its territory on account of his lack of means or the state of the employment market, unless an agreement to this effect has been concluded between this country and the country of origin.

(2) A State which feels obliged to remove from its territory, for the reasons indicated in the previous sub-paragraph, foreign employed persons who have been regularly admitted or members of the families of such persons, should at all events—

- (a) take into account the length of time the said persons have been in its territory and in no case remove persons who have been there for more than five years ;
- (b) satisfy itself that the person concerned has exhausted his rights to unemployment insurance benefit ;
- (c) satisfy itself that the person concerned has been given reasonable notice so as to give him time, more particularly, to dispose of his property ; that suitable arrangements have been made for his transport and that of the members of his family ; and that the necessary arrangements have been made to ensure that he and the members of his family are treated in a humane manner ;

- (d) satisfy itself that the costs of the return of the employed person and the members of his family and of the transport of their household belongings to their final destination shall not fall on him.

16. When migrants for employment or members of their families who have retained the nationality of their State of origin return there, that country should admit such persons to the benefit of any measures in force for the granting of poor relief and unemployment relief, and for promoting the re-employment of the unemployed, by exempting them from the obligation to comply with any condition as to previous residence or employment in the country or place.

- (d) periodical meetings of a joint committee of the country of emigration and the country of immigration for the application or adaptation of proposals or measures for the recruitment, introduction, placing, employment, protection, and, where the case arises, repatriation of migrants for employment and their families.

Recommendation 64

Recommendation concerning the Regulation of Night Work in Road Transport

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the regulation of night work in road transport, which is included in the fourth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Night Work (Road Transport) Recommendation, 1939 :

Whereas in certain classes of road transport for the conveyance of passengers or goods it is necessary to operate at night ;

Whereas in order to afford road transport workers the necessary protection under labour regulations and in order to ensure safety on the road, it is desirable to regulate the conditions under which transport at night is carried on ;

The Conference recommends every Member of the International Labour Organisation to apply the following principles concerning the regulation of night work for travelling staff engaged in road transport :

1. The competent authority in each country should—
 - (a) determine the classes of transport for which it authorises night work to be regularly worked ; and
 - (b) define what constitutes night work.
2. When night work is organised on a rota system, the number of turns of night work worked by any worker during any rotation period should not exceed the number of turns of day work worked during the same period.

Recommendation 65

Recommendation concerning the Methods of Regulating Hours of Work in Road Transport

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the methods of regulating hours of work in road transport, which is included in the fourth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Methods of Regulating Hours (Road Transport) Recommendation, 1939 :

Whereas in many countries the system of collective negotiation has proved of great value in the regulation of conditions of work ;

Whereas this system is also to some extent applied as regards the regulation of hours of work in road transport and has worked well in this connection ;

The Conference recommends that :

Each Member of the International Labour Organisation, in taking such measures as may be necessary to promote the effective regulation of the weekly and daily hours of persons to whom the Hours of Work and Rest Periods (Road Transport)

Convention, 1939, applies, should consider the following methods :

- (a) the active encouragement of voluntary joint collective machinery established by agreement between the employers' and workers' organisations concerned ; or, failing this,
- (b) the establishment of statutory machinery operated in consultation with such organisations.

Recommendation 66

Recommendation concerning Rest Periods of Professional Drivers of Private Vehicles

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-fifth Session on 8 June 1939, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to rest periods for professional drivers of private vehicles, which is included in the fourth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twenty-eighth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Rest Periods (Private Chauffeurs) Recommendation, 1939 :

Whereas the Hours of Work and Rest Periods (Road Transport) Convention, 1939, authorises the competent authority in each country to exempt from the application of the Convention persons who drive private vehicles used solely for personal services ;

Whereas the exercise by the competent authority of this power of exemption should not result in depriving professional drivers of private vehicles of the rest periods to which they are no less entitled than the persons who may not be exempted from the application of the Convention ; and

Whereas, for reasons of road safety, it is necessary to apply provisions relating to rest periods to professional drivers of private vehicles ;

The Conference

Recommends each Member of the International Labour Organisation to draw up regulations applicable to professional drivers of private vehicles used solely for personal services providing for the observance of minimum daily and weekly rest periods.

TWENTY-SIXTH SESSION

(Philadelphia, 20 April-12 May 1944)

Recommendation 67

Recommendation concerning Income Security

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to income security, which is included in the fourth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Income Security Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas the Atlantic Charter contemplates "the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing for all improved labour standards, economic advancement and social security" ; and

Whereas the Conference of the International Labour Organisation, by a Resolution adopted on 5 November 1941, endorsed this principle of the Atlantic Charter and pledged the full co-operation of the International Labour Organisation in its implementation ; and

Whereas income security is an essential element in social security ; and

Whereas the International Labour Organisation has promoted the development of income security—by the adoption by the International Labour Conference of Conventions and Recommendations relating to workmen's compensation for accidents and occupational diseases, sickness insurance, provision for maternity, old-age, invalidity, and widows' and orphans' pensions, and provision for unemployment, by the adoption by the First and Second Labour Conferences of American States of the Resolutions constituting the Inter-American Social Insurance Code, by the participation of a delegation of the Governing Body in the First Inter-American Conference on Social Security which adopted the Declaration of Santiago de Chile, and by the approval by the Governing Body of the Statute of the Inter-American

Conference on Social Security established as a permanent agency of co-operation between social security administrations and institutions acting in concert with the International Labour Office, and by the participation of the International Labour Office in an advisory capacity in the framing of social insurance schemes in a number of countries and by other measures ; and

Whereas some Members have not taken such steps as are within their competence to promote the well-being and development of their people although their need for improved labour standards, economic advancement and social security is greatest ; and

Whereas it is now highly desirable that such Members take all necessary steps as soon as possible to reach the accepted international minimum standards and develop those standards ; and

Whereas it is now desirable to take further steps towards the attainment of income security by the unification or co-ordination of social insurance schemes, the extension of such schemes to all workers and their families, including rural populations and the self-employed, and the elimination of inequitable anomalies ; and

Whereas the formulation of certain general principles which should be followed by Members of the Organisation in developing their income security schemes along these lines on the foundation of the existing Conventions and Recommendations, pending the unification and amplification of the provisions of the said Conventions and Recommendations, will contribute to this end ;

The Conference—

(a) recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply progressively the following general guiding principles, as rapidly as national conditions allow, in developing their income security schemes with a view to the implementation of the fifth principle of the Atlantic Charter, and to report to the International Labour Office from time to time as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to the said general guiding principles ;

(b) calls the attention of the Members of the Organisation to the suggestions for the application of these general guiding principles submitted to the Conference and contained in the Annex to this Recommendation.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

GENERAL

1. Income security schemes should relieve want and prevent destitution by restoring, up to a reasonable level, income which is lost by reason of inability to work (including old age) or to obtain remunerative work or by reason of the death of a breadwinner.

2. Income security should be organised as far as possible on the basis of compulsory social insurance, whereby insured persons fulfilling prescribed qualifying conditions are entitled, in consideration of the contributions they have paid to an insurance institution, to benefits payable at rates, and in contingencies, defined by law.

3. Provision for needs not covered by compulsory social insurance should be made by social assistance; certain categories of persons, particularly dependent children and needy invalids, aged persons and widows, should be entitled to allowances at reasonable rates according to a prescribed scale.

4. Social assistance appropriate to the needs of the case should be provided for other persons in want.

SOCIAL INSURANCE

5. The range of contingencies to be covered by compulsory social insurance should embrace all contingencies in which an insured person is prevented from earning his living, whether by inability to work or inability to obtain remunerative work, or in which he dies leaving a dependent family, and should include certain associated emergencies, generally experienced, which involved extraordinary strain on limited incomes, in so far as they are not otherwise covered.

6. Compensation should be provided in cases of incapacity for work and of death resulting from employment.

7. In order that the benefits provided by social insurance may be closely adapted to the variety of needs, the contingencies covered should be classified as follows :

- (a) sickness ;
- (b) maternity ;
- (c) invalidity ;
- (d) old age ;
- (e) death of breadwinner ;
- (f) unemployment ;
- (g) emergency expenses ; and
- (h) employment injuries.

Provided that benefits should not be payable at the same time for more than one of the following contingencies : invalidity, old age and unemployment.

8. Supplements for each of the first two children should be added to all benefits payable for loss of earnings, provision for further children being left to be made by means of children's allowances payable out of public funds or under contributory schemes.

9. The contingency for which sickness benefit should be paid is loss of earnings due to abstention from work necessitated on medical grounds by an acute condition, due to disease or injury, requiring medical treatment or supervision.

10. The contingency for which maternity benefit should be paid is loss of earnings due to abstention from work during prescribed periods before and after childbirth.

11. The contingency for which invalidity benefit should be paid is inability to engage in any substantially gainful work by reason of a chronic condition, due to disease or injury, or by reason of the loss of a member or function.

12. The contingency for which old-age benefit should be paid is the attainment of a prescribed age, which should be that at which persons commonly become incapable of efficient work, the incidence of sickness and invalidity becomes heavy, and unemployment, if present, is likely to be permanent.

13. The contingency for which survivors' benefits should be paid is the loss of support presumably suffered by the dependants as the result of the death of the head of the family.

14. The contingency for which unemployment benefit should be paid is loss of earnings due to the unemployment of an insured person who is ordinarily employed, capable of regular employment in some occupation, and seeking suitable employment, or due to part-time unemployment.

15. Benefits should be provided in respect of extraordinary expenses, not otherwise covered, incurred in cases of sickness, maternity, invalidity and death.

16. The contingency for which compensation for an employment injury should be paid is traumatic injury or disease resulting from employment and not brought about deliberately or by the serious and wilful misconduct of the victim, which results in temporary or permanent incapacity or death.

17. Social insurance should afford protection, in the contingencies to which they are exposed, to all employed and self-employed persons, together with their dependants, in respect of whom it is practicable—

- (a) to collect contributions without incurring disproportionate administrative expenditure ; and
- (b) to pay benefits with the necessary co-operation of medical and employment services and with due precautions against abuse.

18. The employer should be made responsible for collecting contributions in respect of all persons employed by him, and should be entitled to deduct the sums due by them from their remuneration at the time when it is paid.

19. In order to facilitate the efficient administration of benefits, arrangements should be made for the keeping of records of contributions, for ready means of verifying the presence of the contingencies which give rise to benefits, and for a parallel organisation of medical and employment services with preventive and remedial functions.

20. Persons employed for remuneration should be insured against the whole range of contingencies covered by social insurance as soon as the collection of contributions in respect of them can be organised and the necessary arrangements can be made for the administration of benefit.

21. Self-employed persons should be insured against the contingencies of invalidity, old age and death, under the same conditions as employed persons, as soon as the collection of their contributions can be organised. Consideration should be given to the possibility of insuring them also against sickness and maternity necessitating hospitalisation, sickness which has lasted for several months, and extraordinary expenses incurred in cases of sickness, maternity, invalidity and death.

22. Benefits should replace lost earnings, with due regard to family responsibilities, up to as high a level as is practicable without impairing the will to resume work where resumption is a possibility, and without levying charges on the productive groups so heavy that output and employment are checked.

23. Benefits should be related to the previous earnings of the insured person on the basis of which he has contributed : Provided that any excess of earnings over those prevalent among skilled workers may be ignored for the purpose of determining the rate of benefits, or portions thereof, financed from sources other than the contributions of the insured person.

24. Benefits at flat rates may be appropriate for countries where adequate and economical facilities exist for the population to procure additional protection by voluntary insurance. Such benefits should be commensurate with the earnings of unskilled workers.

25. The right to benefits other than compensation for employment injuries should be subject to contribution conditions designed to prove that the normal status of the claimant is that of an employed or self-employed person and to maintain reasonable regularity in the payment of contributions : Provided that a person should not be disqualified for benefits by reason of the failure of his employer duly to collect the contributions payable in respect of him.

26. The cost of benefits, including the cost of administration, should be distributed among insured persons, employers and taxpayers in such a way as to be equitable to insured persons and to avoid hardship to insured persons of small means or any disturbance to production.

27. The administration of social insurance should be unified or co-ordinated within a general system of social security services, and contributors should, through their organisations, be represented on the bodies which determine or advise upon administrative policy and propose legislation or frame regulations.

SOCIAL ASSISTANCE

28. Society should normally co-operate with parents through general measures of assistance designed to secure the well-being of dependent children.

29. Invalids, aged persons and widows who are not receiving social insurance benefits because they or their husbands, as the case may be, were not compulsorily insured, and whose incomes do not exceed a prescribed level, should be entitled to special maintenance allowances at prescribed rates.

30. Appropriate allowances in cash or partly in cash and partly in kind should be provided for all persons who are in want and do not require internment for corrective care.

GENERAL

1. Income security schemes should relieve want and prevent destitution by restoring, up to a reasonable level, income which is lost by reason of inability to work (including old age) or to obtain remunerative work or by reason of the death of a breadwinner.

2. Income security should be organised as far as possible on the basis of compulsory social insurance, whereby insured persons fulfilling prescribed qualifying conditions are entitled, in consideration of the contributions they have paid to an insurance institution, to benefits payable at rates, and in contingencies, defined by law.

3. Provision for needs not covered by compulsory social insurance should be made by social assistance; certain categories of persons, particularly dependent children and needy invalids, aged persons and widows, should be entitled to allowances at reasonable rates according to a prescribed scale.

4. Social assistance appropriate to the needs of the case should be provided for other persons in want.

I. SOCIAL INSURANCE

A. CONTINGENCIES COVERED

Range of Contingencies to be Covered

5. The range of contingencies to be covered by compulsory social insurance should embrace all contingencies in which an insured person is prevented from earning his living, whether by inability to work or inability to obtain remunerative work, or in which he dies leaving a dependent family, and should include certain associated emergencies, generally experienced, which involve extraordinary strain on limited incomes, in so far as they are not otherwise covered.

6. Compensation should be provided in cases of incapacity for work and of death resulting from employment.

7. In order that the benefits provided by social insurance may be closely adapted to the variety of needs, the contingencies covered should be classified as follows :

- (a) sickness ;
- (b) maternity ;
- (c) invalidity ;
- (d) old age ;
- (e) death of breadwinner ;
- (f) unemployment ;
- (g) emergency expenses ; and
- (h) employment injuries.

Provided that benefits should not be payable at the same time for more than one of the following contingencies : invalidity, old age and unemployment.

8. Supplements for each of the first two children should be added to all benefits payable for loss of earnings, provision for further children being left to be made by means of children's allowances payable out of public funds or under contributory schemes.

Sickness

9. The contingency for which sickness benefit should be paid is loss of earnings due to abstention from work necessitated on medical grounds by an acute condition, due to disease or injury, requiring medical treatment or supervision.

(1) The necessity for abstention from work should be judged, as a rule, with reference to the previous occupation of the insured person, which he may be expected to resume.

(2) Benefit need not be paid for the first few days of a period of sickness, but if sickness recurs within a few months, a fresh waiting period should not be imposed.

(3) Benefit should preferably be continued until the beneficiary is fit to return to work, dies or becomes an invalid.

If, however, it is considered necessary to limit the duration of benefit, the maximum period should not be less than 26 weeks for a single case, and provision should be made for extending the duration of benefit in the case of specified diseases, such as tuberculosis, which often involve lengthy, though curable, sickness: Provided that at the outset of the operation of an insurance scheme it may be necessary to provide for a shorter period than 26 weeks.

Maternity

10. The contingency for which maternity benefit should be paid is loss of earnings due to abstention from work during prescribed periods before and after childbirth.

(1) A woman should have the right to leave her work if she produces a medical certificate stating that her confinement will probably take place within six weeks, and no woman should be permitted to work during the six weeks following her confinement.

(2) During these periods maternity benefit should be payable.

(3) Absence from work for longer periods or on other occasions may be desirable on medical grounds, having regard to the physical condition of the beneficiary and the exigencies of her work; during any such periods sickness benefits should be payable.

(4) The payment of maternity benefit may be made conditional on the utilisation by the beneficiary of health services provided for her and her child.

Invalidity

11. The contingency for which invalidity benefit should be paid is inability to engage in any substantially gainful work by reason of a chronic condition, due to disease or injury, or by reason of the loss of a member or function.

(1) A handicapped person should be expected to engage in any occupation which may reasonably be indicated for him, having regard to his remaining strength and ability, his previous experience, and any facilities for training available to him.

(2) A person for whom such an occupation can be indicated but is not yet available, and a person following a training course, should receive provisional invalidity benefit, training benefit or unemployment benefit, if he is otherwise qualified for it.

(3) A person for whom no such occupation can be indicated should receive invalidity benefit.

(4) Beneficiaries whose permanent inability to engage regularly in any gainful occupation has been confirmed should be allowed to supplement their invalidity benefit by casual earnings of small amount.

(5) Where the rate of invalidity benefit is related to the rate of the previous earnings of the insured person, the right to benefit should be admitted if the handicapped person is not able to earn by ordinary effort as much as one-third of the normal earnings in his previous occupation of able-bodied persons having the same training.

(6) Invalidity benefit should be paid, from the date when sickness benefit ceases, for the whole duration of invalidity, provided that when the beneficiary reaches the age at which old-age benefit may be claimed the latter may be substituted for invalidity benefit.

Old Age

12. The contingency for which old-age benefit should be paid is the attainment of a prescribed age, which should be that at which persons commonly become incapable of efficient work, the incidence of sickness and invalidity becomes heavy, and unemployment, if present, is likely to be permanent.

(1) The minimum age at which old-age benefit may be claimed should be fixed at not more than sixty-five in the case of men and sixty in the case of women : Provided that a lower age may be fixed for persons who have worked for many years in arduous or unhealthy occupations.

(2) Payment of old-age benefit may, if the basic benefit can be considered sufficient for subsistence, be made conditional on retirement from regular work in any gainful occupation ; where such retirement is required, the receipt of casual earnings of relatively small amount should not disqualify for old-age benefit.

Death of Breadwinner

13. The contingency for which survivors' benefits should be paid is the loss of support presumably suffered by the dependants as the result of the death of the head of the family.

(1) Survivors' benefits should be paid : (a) to the widow of an insured man ; (b) for the children, stepchildren, adopted children and, subject to their previous registration as dependants, illegitimate children of an insured man or of an insured woman who supported the children ; and (c) under conditions to be defined by national laws, to an unmarried woman with whom the deceased cohabited.

(2) Widow's benefit should be paid to a widow who has in her care a child for whom child's benefit is payable or who, at her husband's death or later, is an invalid or has attained the minimum age at which old-age benefit may be claimed ; a widow who does not fulfil one of these conditions should be paid widow's benefit for a minimum period of several months, and thereafter if she is unemployed until suitable employment can be offered to her, after training if necessary.

(3) Child's benefit should be paid for a child who is under the school-leaving age, or who is under the age of eighteen and is continuing his general or vocational education.

Unemployment

14. The contingency for which unemployment benefit should be paid is loss of earnings due to the unemployment of an insured person who is ordinarily employed, capable of regular employment in some occupation, and seeking suitable employment, or due to part-time unemployment.

(1) Benefit need not be paid for the first few days of a period of unemployment reckoned from the date on which the claim is registered, but if unemployment recurs within a few months, a fresh waiting period should not be imposed.

(2) Benefit should continue to be paid until suitable employment is offered to the insured person.

(3) During an initial period reasonable in the circumstances of the case, only the following should be deemed to be suitable employment :

(a) employment in the usual occupation of the insured person in a place not involving a change of residence and at the current rate of wages, as fixed by collective agreements where applicable ; or

(b) another employment acceptable to the insured person.

(4) After the expiration of the initial period—

(a) employment involving a change of occupation may be deemed to be suitable if the employment offered is one which may reasonably be offered to the insured person, having regard to his strength, ability, previous experience and any facilities for training available to him ;

(b) employment involving a change of residence may be deemed to be suitable if suitable accommodation is available in the new place of residence ;

(c) employment under conditions less favourable than the insured person habitually obtained in his usual occupation and district may be deemed to be suitable if the conditions offered conform to the standard generally observed in the occupation and district in which the employment is offered.

Emergency Expenses

15. Benefits should be provided in respect of extraordinary expenses, not otherwise covered, incurred in cases of sickness, maternity, invalidity and death.

(1) Necessary domestic help should be provided, or benefit paid for hiring it, during the hospitalisation of the mother of dependent children, if she is an insured woman or the wife of an insured man and is not receiving any benefit in lieu of earnings.

(2) A lump sum should be paid at childbirth to insured women and the wives of insured men towards the cost of a layette and similar expenses.

(3) A special supplement should be paid to recipients of invalidity or old-age benefit who need constant attendance.

(4) A lump sum should be paid on the death of an insured person, or of the wife, husband or dependent child of an insured person, towards the cost of burial.

Employment Injuries

16. The contingency for which compensation for an employment injury should be paid is traumatic injury or disease resulting from employment and not brought about deliberately or by the serious and wilful misconduct of the victim which results in temporary or permanent incapacity or death.

(1) Injuries resulting from employment should be deemed to include accidents occurring on the way to or from the place of employment.

(2) Where compensation for an employment injury is payable, the foregoing provisions should be subject to appropriate modifications as indicated in the following paragraphs.

(3) Any disease which occurs frequently only to persons employed in certain occupations or is a poisoning caused by a substance used in certain occupations, should, if the person suffering from such a disease was engaged in such an occupation, be presumed to be of occupational origin and give rise to compensation.

(4) A list of diseases presumed to be of occupational origin should be established and should be revised from time to time by a simple procedure.

(5) In fixing any minimum period of employment in the occupation required to establish the presumption of occupational origin and any maximum period during which the presumption of occupational origin will remain valid after leaving the employment, regard should be had to the length of time required for the contraction and manifestation of the disease.

(6) Temporary incapacity compensation should be payable under conditions similar to those applicable to the payment of sickness benefit.

(7) Consideration should be given to the possibility of paying compensation from the first day of temporary incapacity if the incapacity lasts longer than the waiting period.

(8) Permanent incapacity compensation should be payable in respect of the loss or reduction of earning capacity by reason of the loss of a member or function or by reason of a chronic condition due to injury or disease.

(9) A person who becomes permanently incapacitated should be expected to resume employment in any occupation which may reasonably be indicated for him, having regard to his remaining strength and ability, his previous experience, and any facilities for training available to him.

(10) If no such employment can be offered, the person should receive compensation for total incapacity on a definitive or provisional basis.

(11) If such employment can be offered, but the sum which the person is able to earn by ordinary effort in the employment is significantly less than that which he would probably have earned had he not suffered the injury or disease, he should receive compensation for partial incapacity proportionate to the difference in earning capacity.

(12) Consideration should be given to the possibility of paying suitable compensation in every case of loss of a member or function or disfigurement, even where no reduction of capacity can be proved.

(13) Persons exposed to the risk of an occupational disease of gradual development should be examined periodically, and those for whom a change of occupation is indicated should be eligible for compensation.

(14) Compensation for permanent incapacity, total or partial, should be paid from the time when temporary incapacity compensation ceases for the whole duration of permanent incapacity.

(15) Persons receiving compensation for permanent partial incapacity should be able to qualify for other benefits under the same conditions as able-bodied persons, where the rates of such benefits are related to the previous earnings of the insured person.

(16) Where the rates of such benefits are not related to the previous earnings of the insured person, a maximum may be fixed for the combined rate of compensation and other benefit.

(17) Survivors' compensation should, subject to the provisions of the following sub-paragraphs, be paid to the same dependants as could otherwise qualify for survivors' benefits.

(18) A widow should receive compensation for the whole duration of her widowhood.

(19) A child should receive compensation until the age of eighteen, or twenty-one if he is continuing his general or vocational education.

(20) Provision should be made for compensating other members of the family of the deceased who were dependent upon him, without prejudice to the claims of the widow and children.

(21) The survivors of a person permanently incapacitated in the degree of two-thirds or more who dies otherwise than from the effects of an employment injury should be entitled to basic survivors' benefits, whether or not the deceased fulfilled the contribution conditions for such benefit at the time of his death.

B. PERSONS COVERED

Range of Persons to be Covered

17. Social insurance should afford protection, in the contingencies to which they are exposed, to all employed and self-employed persons, together with their dependants, in respect of whom it is practicable—

- (a) to collect contributions without incurring disproportionate administrative expenditure; and
- (b) to pay benefits with the necessary co-operation of medical and employment services and with due precautions against abuse.

(1) Dependent wives (that is to say, wives who are not employed or self-employed) and dependent children (that is to say, persons who are under the school-leaving age, or who are under the age of eighteen and are continuing their general or vocational education) should be protected in virtue of the insurance of their breadwinners.

Collection of Contributions

18. The employer should be made responsible for collecting contributions in respect of all persons employed by him, and should be entitled to deduct the sums due by them from their remuneration at the time when it is paid.

(1) Where membership of an occupational association or the possession of a licence is compulsory for any class of self-employed persons, the association or the licensing authority may be made responsible for collecting contributions from the persons concerned.

(2) The national or local authority may be made responsible for collecting contributions from self-employed persons registered for the purpose of taxation.

(3) Pending the development of agencies to enforce payment of contributions, provision should be made for enabling self-employed persons to contribute voluntarily, either as individuals or as members of associations.

Administration of Benefits

19. In order to facilitate the efficient administration of benefits, arrangements should be made for the keeping of records of contributions, for ready means of verifying the presence of the contingencies which give rise to benefits, and for a parallel organisation of medical and employment services with preventive and remedial functions.

Employed Persons

20. Persons employed for remuneration should be insured against the whole range of contingencies covered by social insurance as soon as the collection of contributions in respect of them can be organised and the necessary arrangements can be made for the administration of benefit.

(1) Persons whose employment is so irregular, or likely to be so short in its total duration, that they are unlikely to qualify for benefit confined to employed persons, may be excluded from insurance for such benefits. Special provision should be made on behalf of persons who ordinarily work for a very short period for the same employer.

(2) Apprentices who receive no remuneration should be insured against employment injuries, and, as from the date at which they would have completed their apprenticeship for their trade, compensation based on the wages current for workers in that trade should become payable.

Self-Employed Persons

21. Self-employed persons should be insured against the contingencies of invalidity, old age and death under the same conditions as employed persons as soon as the collection of their contributions can be organised. Consideration should be given to the possibility of insuring them also against sickness and maternity necessitating hospitalisation, sickness which has lasted for several months, and extraordinary expenses incurred in cases of sickness, maternity, invalidity and death.

(1) Members of the employer's family living in his house, other than his dependent wife or dependent children, should be insured against the said contingencies on the basis of either their actual wages or, if these cannot be ascertained, the market value of their services ; the employer should be responsible for the payment of contributions in respect of such persons.

(2) Self-employed persons whose earnings are ordinarily so low that they can be presumed to be a merely subsidiary or casual source of income, or that payment of the minimum contribution would be a hardship for them, should be excluded provisionally from insurance and referred for counsel to the employment service or to any special service that may exist for promoting the welfare of the occupational group to which they may belong.

(3) Persons who, after completing the contribution period prescribed as a qualification for invalidity and survivors' benefits, cease to be compulsorily insured, either as employed or as self-employed persons, should be given the option, to be exercised within a limited period, of continuing their insurance under the same conditions as self-employed persons, subject to such modifications as may be prescribed.

C. BENEFIT RATES AND CONTRIBUTION CONDITIONS

Benefit Rates

22. Benefits should replace lost earnings, with due regard to family responsibilities, up to as high a level as is practicable without impairing the will to resume work where resumption is a possibility, and without levying charges on the productive groups so heavy that output and employment are checked.

23. Benefits should be related to the previous earnings of the insured person on the basis of which he has contributed : Provided that any excess of earnings over those prevalent among skilled workers may be ignored for the purpose of determining the rate of benefits, or portions thereof, financed from sources other than the contributions of the insured person.

24. Benefits at flat rates may be appropriate for countries where adequate and economical facilities exist for the population to procure additional protection by voluntary insurance. Such benefits should be commensurate with the earnings of unskilled workers.

(1) Sickness and unemployment benefits should, in the case of unskilled workers, be not less than 40 per cent. of the previous net earnings of the insured person if he has no dependants, or 60 per cent. thereof if he has a dependent wife or housekeeper for his children ; for each of not more than two dependent children, an additional 10 per cent. of such earnings, less the amount of any children's allowances for these children, should be payable.

(2) In the case of workers with high earnings, the foregoing proportions of benefit to previous earnings may be somewhat reduced.

(3) Maternity benefit should in all cases be sufficient for the full and healthy maintenance of the mother and her child ; it should be not less than 100 per cent. of the current net wage for female unskilled workers or 75 per cent. of the previous net earnings of the beneficiary, whichever is the greater, but may be reduced by the amount of any child's allowance payable in respect of the child.

(4) Basic invalidity and old-age benefits should be not less than 30 per cent. of the current wage commonly recognised for male unskilled workers in the district in which the beneficiary resides, if the beneficiary has no dependants, or 45 per cent. thereof if he has a dependent wife who would be qualified for widow's benefit or a housekeeper for his children ; for each of not more than two dependent children, an additional 10 per cent. of such wage, less the amount of any children's allowances for these children, should be payable.

(5) Basic widow's benefit should be not less than 30 per cent. of the current minimum wage commonly recognised for male unskilled workers in the district in which the beneficiary resides ; for each of not more than three dependent children, child's benefit at the rate of 10 per cent. of such wage, less the amount of any children's allowances for these children, should be payable.

(6) In the case of an orphan, basic child's benefit should be not less than 20 per cent. of the current minimum wage commonly recognised for male unskilled workers, less the amount of any child's allowance payable in respect of the orphan.

(7) A portion of every contribution additional to those paid as a qualification for basic invalidity, old-age and survivors' benefits may be credited to the insured person for the purpose of increasing the benefits provided for in sub-paragraphs (4), (5) and (6).

(8) In every case in which retirement is deferred beyond the minimum age at which old-age benefit could have been claimed, basic old-age benefit should be equitably increased.

(9) Compensation for employment injuries should not be less than two-thirds of the wages lost, or estimated to have been lost, as the result of the injury.

(10) Such compensation should take the form of periodical payments, except in cases in which the competent authority is satisfied that the payment of a lump sum will be more advantageous to the beneficiary.

(11) Periodical payments in respect of permanent incapacity and death should be adjusted currently to significant changes in the wage level in the insured person's previous occupation.

Contribution Conditions

25. The right to benefits other than compensation for employment injuries should be subject to contribution conditions designed to prove that the normal status of the claimant is that of an employed or self-employed person and to maintain reasonable regularity in the payment of contributions : Provided that a person shall not be disqualified for benefits by reason of the failure of his employer duly to collect the contributions payable in respect of him.

(1) The contribution conditions for sickness, maternity and unemployment benefits may include the requirement that contributions shall have been paid in respect of at least a quarter of a prescribed period, such as two years, completed before the contingency occurs.

(2) The contribution conditions for maternity benefit may include the requirement that the first contribution shall have been paid at least ten months before the expected date of confinement, but even though the contribution conditions are not fulfilled, maternity benefit at the minimum rate should be paid during the period of compulsory abstention from work after confinement, if the claimant's normal status appears, after consideration of the case, to be that of an employed person.

(3) The contribution conditions for basic invalidity, old-age and survivors' benefits may include the requirement that contributions shall have been paid in respect of at least two-fifths of a prescribed period, such as five years, completed before the contingency occurs ; payment of contributions in respect of not less than three-quarters of a prescribed period, such as ten years, or of any longer period which has elapsed since entry into insurance, should be recognised as an alternative qualification for benefit.

(4) The contribution conditions for old-age benefit may include the requirement that the first contribution shall have been paid at least five years before the claim for benefit is made.

(5) The right to benefit may be suspended where an insured person wilfully fails to pay any contribution due by him in respect of any period of self-employment or to pay any penalty imposed for late payment of contributions.

(6) The insurance status of an insured person at the date when he becomes entitled to invalidity or old-age benefit should be maintained during the currency of such benefit for the purposes of ensuring him, in the event of recovery from invalidity, as full protection under the scheme as he was entitled to on the occurrence of the invalidity, and of entitling his survivors to survivors' benefits.

D. DISTRIBUTION OF COST

26. The cost of benefits, including the cost of administration, should be distributed among insured persons, employers and taxpayers, in such a way as to be equitable to insured persons and to avoid hardship to insured persons of small means or any disturbance to production.

(1) The contribution of an insured person should not exceed such proportion of his earnings taken into account for reckoning benefits as, applied to the estimated average earnings of all persons insured against the same contingencies, would yield a contribution income the probable present value of which would equal the probable present value of the benefits to which they may become entitled (excluding compensation for employment injuries).

(2) In accordance with this principle the contributions of employed persons and self-employed persons for the same benefits may, as a rule, represent the same proportion of their respective earnings.

(3) A minimum absolute rate, based on the minimum rate of earnings which may be deemed to be indicative of substantial gainful work, may be prescribed for the insured person's contribution with respect to benefits the whole or part of which does not vary with the rate of previous earnings.

(4) Employers should be required to contribute, particularly by subsidising the insurance of low-wage earners, not less than half the total cost of benefits confined to employed persons, excluding compensation for employment injuries.

(5) The entire cost of compensation for employment injuries should be contributed by employers.

(6) Consideration should be given to the possibility of applying some method of merit rating in the calculation of contributions in respect of compensation for employment injuries.

(7) The rates of contribution of insured persons and employers should be kept as stable as possible, and for this purpose a stabilisation fund should be constituted.

(8) The cost of benefits which cannot properly be met by contributions should be covered by the community.

(9) Among the elements of cost which may be charged to the community may be mentioned—

- (a) the contribution deficit resulting from bringing persons into insurance when already elderly ;
- (b) the contingent liability involved in guaranteeing the payment of basic invalidity, old-age and survivors' benefits and the payment of adequate maternity benefit ;
- (c) the liability resulting from the continued payment of unemployment benefit when unemployment persists at an excessive level ; and
- (d) subsidies to the insurance of self-employed persons of small means.

E. ADMINISTRATION

27. The administration of social insurance should be unified or co-ordinated within a general system of social security services, and contributors should, through their organisations, be represented on the bodies which determine or advise upon administrative policy and propose legislation or frame regulations.

(1) Social insurance should be administered under the direction of a single authority, subject, in federal countries, to the distribution of legislative competence ; this authority should be associated with the authorities administering social assistance, medical care services and employment services in a co-ordinating body for matters of common interest, such as the certification of inability to work or to obtain work.

(2) The unified administration of social insurance should be compatible with the operation of separate insurance schemes, compulsory or voluntary in character, providing supplementary, but not alternative, benefits for certain occupational groups, such as miners and seamen, public officials, the staffs of individual undertakings and members of mutual benefit societies.

(3) The law and regulations relating to social insurance should be drafted in such a way that beneficiaries and contributors can easily understand their rights and duties.

(4) In devising procedures to be followed by beneficiaries and contributors, simplicity should be a primary consideration.

(5) Central and regional advisory councils, representing such bodies as trade unions, employers' associations, chambers of commerce, farmers' associations, women's associations and child protection societies, should be established for the purpose of making recommendations for the amendment of the law and administrative methods, and generally of maintaining contact between the administration of social insurance and groups of contributors and beneficiaries.

(6) Employers and workers should be closely associated with the administration of compensation for employment injuries, particularly in connection with the prevention of accidents and occupational diseases and with merit rating.

(7) Claimants should have a right of appeal in case of dispute with the administrative authority concerning such questions as the right to benefit and the rate thereof.

(8) Appeals should preferably be referred to special tribunals, which should include referees who are experts in social insurance law, assisted by assessors, representative of the group to which the claimant belongs, and, where employed persons are concerned, by representatives of employers also.

(9) In any dispute concerning liability to insurance or the rate of contribution, an employed or self-employed person, and, where an employer's contribution is in question, an employer should have a right of appeal.

(10) Provision for uniformity of interpretation should be assured by a superior appeal tribunal.

II. SOCIAL ASSISTANCE

A. MAINTENANCE OF CHILDREN

28. Society should normally co-operate with parents through general measures of assistance designed to secure the well-being of dependent children.

(1) Public subsidies in kind or in cash or in both should be established in order to assure the healthy nurture of children, help to maintain large families, and complete the provision made for children through social insurance.

(2) Where the purpose in view is to assure the healthy nurture of children, subsidies should take the form of such advantages as free or below-cost infants' food and school meals and below-cost dwellings for families with several children.

(3) Where the purpose in view is to help to maintain large families or to complete the provision made for children by subsidies in kind and through social insurance, subsidies should take the form of children's allowances.

(4) Such allowances should be payable, irrespective of the parents' income, according to a prescribed scale, which should represent a substantial contribution to the cost of maintaining a child, should allow for the higher cost of maintaining older children, and should, as a minimum, be granted to all children for whom no provision is made through social insurance.

(5) Society as a whole should accept responsibility for the maintenance of dependent children in so far as parental responsibility for maintaining them cannot be enforced.

B. MAINTENANCE OF NEEDY INVALIDS, AGED PERSONS AND WIDOWS

29. Invalids, aged persons and widows who are not receiving social insurance benefits because they or their husbands, as the case may be, were not compulsorily insured, and whose incomes do not exceed a prescribed level, should be entitled to special maintenance allowances at prescribed rates.

(1) The persons who should be entitled to maintenance allowances should include—

(a) persons belonging to occupational groups, or residing in districts to which social insurance does not yet apply, or has not yet applied for as long as the qualifying period for basic invalidity, old-age or survivors' benefits, as the case may be, and the widows and dependent children of such persons ; and

(b) persons who are already invalids at the time when they would normally enter insurance.

(2) Maintenance allowances should be sufficient for full, long-term maintenance ; they should vary with the current cost of living, and may vary as between urban and rural areas.

(3) Maintenance allowances should be paid at the full rate to persons whose other income does not exceed a prescribed level and at reduced rates in other cases.

(4) The provisions of the present Recommendation defining the contingencies in which invalidity, old-age and survivors' benefits should be paid should be applied, in so far as they are relevant, to maintenance allowances.

C. GENERAL ASSISTANCE

30. Appropriate allowances in cash or partly in cash and partly in kind should be provided for all persons who are in want and do not require internment for corrective care.

(1) The range of cases in which the amount of the allowance is entirely discretionary should be gradually narrowed as the result of the improved classification of cases of want and the establishment of budgets corresponding to the cost of maintenance in short-term and long-term indigency.

(2) The grant of allowance may be subject to compliance by the recipient with directions given by the authorities administering medical or employment services in order that the assistance may yield its greatest constructive effect.

Recommendation 68

Recommendation concerning Income Security and Medical Care for Persons Discharged from the Armed Forces and Assimilated Services and from War Employment

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to income security and medical care for persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services and from war employment, which is included in the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Social Security (Armed Forces) Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services have been obliged to interrupt their careers and will be faced with initial expenditure in re-establishing themselves in civil life ; and

Whereas persons discharged from the armed forces or assimilated services or from war employment may in certain cases remain unemployed for a time before obtaining suitable employment ; and

Whereas it is undesirable that persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services should find themselves at a disadvantage in respect of pension insurance as compared with persons who have remained in civil employment, and the Invalidity, Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance Recommendation, 1933, while providing for the maintenance of the rights under pension insurance schemes of persons engaged in military service who were insured before beginning such service, does not provide for the attribution of any rights under such schemes to persons not insured before entering military service ; and

Whereas it is desirable that persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services should be protected by insurance in respect of sickness occurring between their discharge and their re-establishment in civil life by entry into insurable employment or otherwise ; and

Whereas it is necessary to make equitable provision in regard to these matters, without prejudice to the satisfaction of other essential needs, such as those of military and civilian war victims, which must also be a charge on the national income ;

The Conference recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply the following principles and to communicate information to the International Labour Office, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to these principles :

I. MUSTERING-OUT GRANT

1. Persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services should, except in cases in which they have, in virtue of national laws or regulations, continued to receive a substantial part of their remuneration, receive on their discharge a special grant, which may be related to their length of service and should be paid in the form of a lump sum, in the form of periodical payments, or partly in the form of a lump sum and partly in the form of periodical payments.

II. UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND ASSISTANCE

2. Persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services should, so far as is administratively practicable, be treated under unemployment insurance schemes as insured contributors in respect of whom contributions have been paid for a period equal to their period of service. The resulting financial liability should be borne by the State.

3. Where persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services or from war employment, as defined by national laws or regulations, exhaust their right to benefit before suitable employment is offered to them, or are not covered by an unemployment insurance scheme, an allowance financed wholly from State funds should be paid until suitable employment is available ; the allowance should, if possible, be paid irrespective of need.

III. PENSION AND SICKNESS INSURANCE

4. (1) Where a compulsory insurance scheme providing pensions in case of invalidity, old age or death and covering a substantial part of the working population is in force, periods of service in the armed forces and assimilated services should be reckoned as contribution periods for the purpose of determining whether any requirement in regard to a minimum qualifying period has been fulfilled.

(2) Where the rate of pension varies with the number of contributions credited to the insured person, the period of service should be taken into account for the purpose of increasing the rate of pension.

(3) Where contributions are graduated according to remuneration, contributions should be credited in respect of periods of service on the basis of a uniform hypothetical remuneration of reasonable amount: Provided that contributions credited to persons insured immediately before beginning their service may be based on the remuneration which they were receiving at the time if such remuneration was higher than the hypothetical remuneration.

(4) Persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services should retain, during the period between their discharge and the time at which they can be considered to be re-established in civil life, their rights in respect of the contributions credited to their account; these rights should be maintained for a period of not less than twelve months.

5. (1) Where a compulsory insurance scheme providing sickness, maternity and medical benefits and covering a substantial part of the working population is in force, persons discharged from the armed forces and assimilated services should be entitled to such benefits in respect of sickness or childbirth occurring during the period between their discharge and the time at which they can be considered to be re-established in civil life; these rights should be maintained for a period of not less than twelve months.

(2) Where the compulsory insurance scheme provides maternity and medical benefits for the dependants of insured persons, discharged persons protected by the scheme should be entitled to such benefits for their dependants.

(3) Where the rate of sickness benefits is proportional to the remuneration of the insured person, the rate of benefit payable to discharged persons should be based on a uniform hypothetical remuneration of reasonable amount.

6. (1) The State should bear the liability created by crediting persons serving in the armed forces or assimilated services with pension insurance contributions and insuring them against sickness pending their re-establishment in civil life: Provided that, where the pay of any class of such persons may, having regard to the value of their subsistence and of dependants' allowances, be considered at least equivalent on the whole to the wages prevailing in industry, a portion of the pension insurance contribution may be deducted from their service pay.

(2) The provisions of sub-paragraph (1) shall not apply in cases where, in virtue of national laws or regulations, such persons continue to receive, during their service, a substantial part of their remuneration, and the normal contributions required by law continue to be payable in respect of them.

Recommendation 69

Recommendation concerning Medical Care

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the question of medical care services, which is included in the fourth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Medical Care Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas the Atlantic Charter contemplates "the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing for all improved labour standards, economic advancement and social security" ; and

Whereas the Conference of the International Labour Organisation, by a Resolution adopted on 5 November 1941, endorsed this principle of the Atlantic Charter and pledged the full co-operation of the International Labour Organisation in its implementation ; and

Whereas the availability of adequate medical care is an essential element in social security ; and

Whereas the International Labour Organisation has promoted the development of medical care services—by the inclusion of requirements relating to medical care in the Workmen's Compensation (Accidents) Convention, 1925, and the Sickness Insurance (Industry, etc.) and (Agriculture) Conventions, 1927, by the communication to the Members of the Organisation by the Governing Body of the conclusions of meetings of experts relating to public health and health insurance in periods of economic depression, the economical administration of medical and pharmaceutical benefits under sickness insurance schemes, and guiding principles for curative and preventive action by invalidity, old-age and widows' and orphans' insurance, by the adoption by the First and Second Labour Conferences of American States of the Resolutions constituting the Inter-American Social Insurance Code, by the participation of a delegation of the Governing Body in the First Inter-American Conference on Social Security which adopted the Declaration of Santiago de Chile, and by the approval by the Governing Body of the Statute of the Inter-American Conference on Social Security, established as a permanent agency of co-operation between social security administrations and institutions acting in concert with the International Labour Office, and by the participation of the International Labour Office in an advisory capacity in the framing of social insurance schemes in a number of countries and by other measures ; and

Whereas some Members have not taken such steps as are within their competence to improve the health of the people by the extension of medical facilities, the development of public health programmes, the spread of health education, and the improvement of nutrition and housing, although their need in that respect is greatest, and it is highly desirable that such Members take all steps as soon as possible to reach the international minimum standards and to develop these standards ; and

Whereas it is now desirable to take further steps for the improvement and unification of medical care services, the extension of such services to all workers and their families, including rural populations and the self-employed, and the elimination of inequitable anomalies, without prejudice to the right of any beneficiary of the medical care service who so desires to arrange privately at his own expense for medical care ; and

Whereas the formulation of certain general principles which should be followed by Members of the Organisation in developing their medical care services along these lines will contribute to this end ;

The Conference recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply the following principles, as rapidly as national conditions allow, in developing their medical care services with a view to the implementation of the fifth principle of the Atlantic Charter, and to report to the International Labour Office, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to these principles :

I. GENERAL

Essential Features of a Medical Care Service

1. A medical care service should meet the need of the individual for care by members of the medical and allied professions and for such other facilities as are provided at medical institutions—

- (a) with a view to restoring the individual's health, preventing the further development of disease and alleviating suffering, when he is afflicted by ill health (curative care) ; and
- (b) with a view to protecting and improving his health (preventive care).

2. The nature and extent of the care provided by the service should be defined by law.

3. The authorities or bodies responsible for the administration of the service should provide medical care for its beneficiaries by securing the services of members of the medical and allied professions and by arranging for hospital and other institutional services.

4. The cost of the service should be met collectively by regular periodical payments which may take the form of social insurance contributions or of taxes, or of both.

Forms of Medical Care Service

5. Medical care should be provided either through a social insurance medical care service with supplementary provision by way of social assistance to meet the requirements of needy persons not yet covered by social insurance, or through a public medical care service.

6. Where medical care is provided through a social insurance medical care service—

- (a) every insured contributor, the dependent wife or husband and dependent children of every such contributor, such other dependants as may be prescribed by national laws or regulations, and every other person insured by virtue of contributions paid on his behalf, should be entitled to all care provided by the service ;
- (b) care for persons not yet insured should be provided by way of social assistance if they are unable to obtain it at their own expense ; and
- (c) the service should be financed by contributions from insured persons, from their employers, and by subsidies from public funds.

7. Where medical care is provided through a public medical care service—

- (a) every member of the community should be entitled to all care provided by the service ;
- (b) the service should be financed out of funds raised either by a progressive tax specifically imposed for the purpose of financing the medical care service or of financing all health services, or from general revenue.

II. PERSONS COVERED

Complete Coverage

8. The medical care service should cover all members of the community, whether or not they are gainfully occupied.

9. Where the service is limited to a section of the population or to a specified area, or where the contributory mechanism already exists for other branches of social insurance and it is possible ultimately to bring under the insurance scheme the whole or the majority of the population, social insurance may be appropriate.

10. Where the whole of the population is to be covered by the service and it is desired to integrate medical care with general health services, a public service may be appropriate.

Coverage Through a Social Insurance Medical Care Service

11. Where medical care is provided through a social insurance medical care service, all members of the community should have the right to care as insured persons or, pending their inclusion in the scope of insurance, should have the right to receive care at the expense of the competent authority when unable to provide it for themselves.

12. All adult members of the community (that is to say, all persons other than children as defined in paragraph 15) should be required to pay insurance contributions if their income is not below the subsistence level. The dependent wife or husband of a contributor should be insured in virtue of the contribution of her or his breadwinner, without any addition on that account.

13. Other adults who prove that their income is below the subsistence level, including indigents, should be entitled to care as insured persons, the contribution being paid on their behalf by the competent authority. Rules defining the subsistence level in each country should be laid down by the competent authority.

14. If and so long as adults unable to pay a contribution are not insured as provided for in paragraph 13, they should receive care at the expense of the competent authority.

15. All children (that is to say, all persons who are under the age of sixteen years, or such higher age as may be prescribed, or who are dependent on others for regular support while continuing their general or vocational education) should be insured in virtue of the contributions paid by or on behalf of adult insured persons in general, and no additional contribution should be payable on their behalf by their parents or guardians.

16. If and so long as children are not insured as provided for in paragraph 15, because the service does not yet extend to the whole population, they should be insured in virtue of the contribution paid by or on behalf of their father or mother without any additional contribution being payable on their behalf. Children for whom medical care is not so provided should, in case of need, receive it at the expense of the competent authority.

17. Where any person is insured under a scheme of social insurance for cash benefits or is receiving benefit under such a scheme, he and his qualified dependants, as defined in paragraph 6, should also be insured under the medical care service.

Coverage Through a Public Medical Care Service

18. Where medical care is provided through a public medical care service, the provision of care should not depend on any qualifying conditions, such as payment of taxes or compliance with a means test, and all beneficiaries should have an equal right to the care provided.

III. THE PROVISION OF MEDICAL CARE AND ITS CO-ORDINATION WITH GENERAL HEALTH SERVICES

Range of Service

19. Complete preventive and curative care should be constantly available, rationally organised and, so far as possible, co-ordinated with general health services.

Constant Availability of Complete Care

20. Complete preventive and curative care should be available at any time and place to all members of the community covered by the service, on the same conditions, without any hindrance or barrier of an administrative, financial or political nature, or otherwise unrelated to their health.

21. The care afforded should comprise both general-practitioner and specialist out- and in-patient care, including domiciliary visiting ; dental care ; nursing care at home or in hospital or other medical institutions ; the care given by qualified midwives and other maternity services at home or in hospital ; maintenance in hospitals, convalescent homes, sanatoria or other medical institutions ; so far as possible, the requisite dental, pharmaceutical and other medical or surgical supplies, including artificial limbs ; and the care furnished by such other professions as may at any time be legally recognised as belonging to the allied professions.

22. All care and supplies should be available at any time and without time limit, when and as long as they are needed, subject only to the doctor's judgment and to such reasonable limitations as may be imposed by the technical organisation of the service.

23. Beneficiaries should be able to obtain care at the centres or offices provided, wherever they happen to be when the need arises, whether at their place of residence or elsewhere within the total area in which the service is available, irrespective of their membership in any particular insurance institution, arrears in contributions or of other factors unrelated to health.

24. The administration of the medical care service should be unified for appropriate health areas sufficiently large for a self-contained and well-balanced service, and should be centrally supervised.

25. Where the medical care service covers only a section of the population or is at present administered by different types of insurance institutions and authorities, the institutions and authorities concerned should provide care for their beneficiaries by securing collectively the services of members of the medical and allied professions, and by the joint establishment or maintenance of health centres and other medical institutions, pending the regional and national unification of the services.

26. Arrangements should be made by the administration of the service for securing adequate hospital and other residential accommodation and care, either by contracts with existing public and approved private institutions, or by the establishment and maintenance of appropriate institutions.

Rational Organisation of Medical Care Service

27. The optimum of medical care should be made readily available through an organisation that ensures the greatest possible economy and efficiency by the pooling of knowledge, staff, equipment and other resources and by close contact and collaboration among all participating members of the medical and allied professions and agencies.

28. The wholehearted participation of the greatest possible number of members of the medical and allied professions is essential for the success of any national medical care service. The numbers of general practitioners, specialists, dentists, nurses and members of other professions within the service should be adapted to the distribution and the needs of the beneficiaries.

29. Complete diagnostic and treatment facilities, including laboratory and X-ray services, should be available to the general practitioner, and all specialist advice and care, as well as nursing, maternity, pharmaceutical and other auxiliary services, and residential accommodation, should be at the disposal of the general practitioner for the use of his patients.

30. Complete and up-to-date technical equipment for all branches of specialist treatment, including dental care, should be available, and specialists should have at their disposal all necessary hospital and research facilities, and auxiliary outpatient services such as nursing, through the agency of the general practitioner.

31. To achieve these aims, care should preferably be furnished by group practice at centres of various kinds working in effective relation with hospitals.

32. Pending the establishment of, and experiments with, group practice at medical or health centres, it would be appropriate to obtain care for beneficiaries from members of the medical and allied professions practising at their own offices.

33. Where the medical care service covers the majority of the population, medical or health centres may appropriately be built, equipped and operated by the authority administering the service in the health area, in one of the forms indicated in paragraphs 34, 35 and 36.

34. Where no adequate facilities exist or where a system of hospitals with out-patient departments for general-practitioner and specialist treatment already obtains in the health area at the time when the medical care service is introduced, hospitals may appropriately be established as, or developed into, centres providing all kinds of in- and out-patient care and complemented by local outposts for general-practitioner care and for auxiliary services.

35. Where general practice is well developed outside the hospital system while specialists are mainly consultants and working at hospitals, it may be appropriate to establish medical or health centres for non-residential general-practitioner care and auxiliary services, and to centralise specialist in-patient and out-patient care at hospitals.

36. Where general and specialist practice are well developed outside the hospital system, it may be appropriate to establish medical or health centres for all non-residential treatment, general-practitioner and specialist, and all auxiliary services, while cases needing residential care are directed from the centres to the hospitals.

37. Where the medical care service does not cover the majority of the population but has a substantial number of beneficiaries, and existing hospital and other medical facilities are inadequate, the insurance institution, or insurance institutions jointly, should establish a system of medical or health centres which affords all care, including hospital accommodation at the main centres, and, so far as possible, transport arrangements; such centres may be required more particularly in sparsely settled areas with a scattered insured population.

38. Where the medical care service covers too small a section for complete health centres to be an economical means of serving its beneficiaries, and existing facilities for specialist treatment in the area are inadequate, it may be appropriate for the insurance institution, or the institutions jointly, to maintain posts at which specialists attend beneficiaries as required.

39. Where the medical care service covers a relatively small section of the population concentrated in an area with extensive private practice, it may be appropriate for the members of the medical and allied professions participating in the service to collaborate at centres rented, equipped and administered by the members, at which both beneficiaries of the service and private patients receive care.

40. Where the medical care service covers only a small number of beneficiaries who are scattered over a populated area with adequate existing facilities, and voluntary group practice as provided for in paragraph 39 is not feasible, beneficiaries may appropriately receive care from members of the medical and allied professions practising at their own offices, and at public and approved private hospitals and other medical institutions.

41. Travelling clinics in motor vans or aircraft, equipped for first-aid, dental treatment, general examination and possibly other health services such as maternal and infant health services, should be provided for serving areas with a scattered population and remote from towns or cities, and arrangements should be made for the free conveyance of patients to centres and hospitals.

Collaboration with General Health Services

42. There should be available to the beneficiaries of the medical care service all general health services, being services providing means for the whole community and/or groups of individuals to promote and protect their health while it is not yet threatened or known to be threatened, whether such services be given by members of the medical and allied professions or otherwise.

43. The medical care service should be provided in close co-ordination with general health services, either by means of close collaboration of the social insurance institutions providing medical care and the authorities administering the general health services, or by combining medical care and general health services in one public service.

44. Local co-ordination of medical care and general health services should be aimed at either by establishing medical care centres in proximity to the headquarters for general health services, or by establishing common centres as headquarters for all or most health services.

45. The members of the medical and allied professions participating in the medical care service and working at health centres may appropriately undertake such general health care as can with advantage be given by the same staff, including immunisation, examination of school children and other groups, advice to expectant mothers and mothers with infants, and other care of a like nature.

IV. THE QUALITY OF SERVICE

Optimum Standard

46. The medical care service should aim at providing the highest possible standard of care, due regard being paid to the importance of the doctor-patient relationship and the professional and personal responsibility of the doctor, while safeguarding both the interests of the beneficiaries and those of the professions participating.

Choice of Doctor and Continuity of Care

47. The beneficiary should have the right to make an initial choice, among the general practitioners at the disposal of the service within a reasonable distance from his home, of the doctor by whom he wishes to be attended in a permanent capacity (family doctor) ; he should have the same right of choice for his children. These principles should also apply to the choice of a dentist as family dentist.

48. Where care is provided at or from health centres, the beneficiary should have the right to choose his centre within a reasonable distance from his home and to select for himself or his children a doctor and a dentist among the general practitioners and dentists working at this centre.

49. Where there is no centre, the beneficiary should have the right to select his family doctor and dentist among the participating general practitioners and dentists whose office is within a reasonable distance from his home.

50. The beneficiary should have the right subsequently to change his family doctor or dentist, subject to giving notice within a prescribed time, for good reasons, such as lack of personal contact and confidence.

51. The general practitioner or the dentist participating in the service should have the right to accept or refuse a client, but may not accept a number in excess of a prescribed maximum nor refuse such clients as have not made their own choice and are assigned to him by the service through impartial methods.

52. The care given by specialists and members of allied professions, such as nurses, midwives, masseurs and others, should be available on the recommendation, and through the agency, of the beneficiary's family doctor who should take reasonable account of the patient's wishes if several members of the specialty or other profession are available at the centre or within a reasonable distance of the patient's home. Special provision should be made for the availability of the specialist when requested by the patient though not recommended by the family doctor.

53. Residential care should be made available on the recommendation of the beneficiary's family doctor, or on the advice of the specialist, if any, who has been consulted.

54. If residential care is provided at the centre to which the family doctor or specialist is attached, the patient should preferably be attended in the hospital by his own family doctor or the specialist to whom he was referred.

55. Arrangements for the general practitioners or dentists at a centre to be consulted by appointment should be made whenever practicable.

Working Conditions and Status of Doctors and Members of Allied Professions

56. The working conditions of doctors and members of allied professions participating in the service should be designed to relieve the doctor or member from financial anxiety by providing adequate income during work, leave and illness and in retirement, and pensions to his survivors, without restricting his professional discretion otherwise than by professional supervision, and should not be such as to distract his attention from the maintenance and improvement of the health of the beneficiaries.

57. General practitioners, specialists and dentists, working for a medical care service covering the whole or a large majority of the population, may appropriately be employed whole time for a salary, with adequate provision for leave, sickness, old age and death, if the medical profession is adequately represented on the body employing them.

58. Where general practitioners or dentists, engaged in private practice, undertake part-time work for a medical care service with a sufficient number of beneficiaries, it may be appropriate to pay them a fixed basic amount per year, including provision for leave, sickness, old age and death, and increased if desired by a capitation fee for each person or family in the doctor's or dentist's charge.

59. Specialists engaged in private practice who work part time for a medical care service with a considerable number of beneficiaries may appropriately be paid an amount proportionate to the time devoted to such service (part-time salary).

60. Doctors and dentists engaged in private practice who work part time for a medical care service with few beneficiaries only may appropriately be paid fees for services rendered.

61. Among the members of allied professions participating in the service, those rendering personal care may appropriately be employed whole time for salary, with adequate provision for leave, sickness, old age and death, while members furnishing supplies should be paid in accordance with adequate tariffs.

62. Working conditions for members of the medical and allied professions participating in the service should be uniform throughout the country or for all sections covered by the service, and agreed on with the representative bodies of the profession, subject only to such variations as may be necessitated by differences in the exigencies of the service.

63. Provision should be made for the submission of complaints by beneficiaries concerning the care received, and by members of the medical or allied professions concerning their relations with the administration of the service, to appropriate arbitration bodies under conditions affording adequate guarantees to all parties concerned.

64. The professional supervision of the members of the medical and allied professions working for the service should be entrusted to bodies predominantly composed of representatives of the professions participating, with adequate provision for disciplinary measures.

65. Where, in the proceedings referred to in paragraph 63, a member of the medical or allied professions working for the service is deemed to have neglected his professional duties, the arbitration body should refer the matter to the supervisory body referred to in paragraph 64.

Standard of Professional Skill and Knowledge

66. The highest possible standard of skill and knowledge should be achieved and maintained for the professions participating both by requiring high standards of education, training and licensing and by keeping up to date and developing the skill and knowledge of those engaged in the service.

67. Doctors participating in the service should be required to have an adequate training in social medicine.

68. Students of the medical and dental professions should, before being admitted as fully qualified doctors or dentists to the service, be required to work as assistants at health centres or offices, especially in rural areas, under the supervision and direction of more experienced practitioners.

69. A minimum period as hospital assistant should be prescribed among the qualifications for every doctor entering the service.

70. Doctors wishing to furnish specialist service should be required to have certificates of competence for their specialty.

71. Doctors and dentists participating should be required periodically to attend post-graduate courses organised or approved for this purpose.

72. Adequate periods of apprenticeship at hospitals or health centres should be prescribed for members of allied professions, and post-graduate courses should be organised and attendance periodically required for those participating in the service.

73. Adequate facilities for teaching and research should be made available at the hospitals administered by or working with the medical care service.

74. Professional education and research should be promoted with the financial and legal support of the State.

V. FINANCING OF MEDICAL CARE SERVICE

Raising of Funds under Social Insurance Service

75. The maximum contribution that may be charged to an insured person should not exceed such proportion of his income as, applied to the income of all insured persons, would yield an income equal to the probable total cost of the medical care service, including the cost of care given to qualified dependants as defined in paragraph 6.

76. The contribution paid by an insured person should be such part of the maximum contribution as can be borne without hardship.

77. Employers should be required to pay part of the maximum contribution on behalf of persons employed by them.

78. Persons whose income does not exceed the subsistence level should not be required to pay an insurance contribution. Equitable contributions should be paid by the public authority on their behalf : Provided that in the case of employed persons, such contributions may be paid wholly or partly by their employers.

79. The cost of the medical care service not covered by contributions should be borne by taxpayers.

80. Contributions in respect of employed persons may appropriately be collected by their employers.

81. Where membership of an occupational association or the possession of a licence is compulsory for any class of self-employed persons, the association or the licensing authority may be made responsible for collecting contributions from the persons concerned.

82. The national or local authority may be made responsible for collecting contributions from self-employed persons registered for the purpose of taxation.

83. Where a scheme of social insurance for cash benefits is in operation, contributions both under such scheme and under the medical care service may appropriately be collected together.

Raising of Funds under Public Medical Care Service

84. The cost of the medical care service should be met out of public funds.

85. Where the whole population is covered by the medical care service and all health services are under unified central and area administration, the medical care service may appropriately be financed out of general revenue.

86. Where the administration of the medical care service is separate from that of general health services, it may be appropriate to finance the medical care service by a special tax.

87. The special tax should be paid into a separate fund reserved for the purpose of financing the medical care service.

88. The special tax should be progressively graded and should be designed to yield a return sufficient for financing the medical care service.

89. Persons whose income does not exceed the subsistence level should not be required to pay the tax.

90. The special tax may appropriately be collected by the national income tax authorities or, where there is no national income tax, by authorities responsible for collecting local taxes.

Raising of Capital Funds

91. In addition to providing the normal resources for financing the medical care service, measures should be taken to utilise the assets of social insurance institutions, or funds raised by other means, for financing the extraordinary expenditure necessitated by the extension and improvement of the service, more particularly by the building or equipment of hospitals and medical centres.

VI. SUPERVISION AND ADMINISTRATION OF MEDICAL CARE SERVICE

Unity of Health Services and Democratic Control

92. All medical care and general health services should be centrally supervised and should be administered by health areas as defined in paragraph 24, and the beneficiaries of the medical care service, as well as the medical and allied professions concerned, should have a voice in the administration of the service.

Unification of Central Administration

93. A central authority, representative of the community, should be responsible for formulating the health policy or policies and for supervising all medical care and general health services, subject to consultation of, and collaboration with, the medical and allied professions on all professional matters, and to consultation of the beneficiaries on matters of policy and administration affecting the medical care service.

94. Where the medical care service covers the whole or the majority of the population and a central government agency supervises or administers all medical care and general health services, beneficiaries may appropriately be deemed to be represented by the head of the agency.

95. The central government agency should keep in touch with the beneficiaries through advisory bodies comprising representatives of organisations of the different sections of the population, such as trade unions, employers' associations, chambers of commerce, farmers' associations, women's associations and child protection societies.

96. Where the medical care service covers only a section of the population, and a central government agency supervises all medical care and general health services, representatives of the insured persons should participate in the supervision, preferably through advisory committees, as regards all matters of policy affecting the medical care service.

97. The central government agency should consult the representatives of the medical and allied professions, preferably through advisory committees, on all questions relating to the working conditions of the members of the professions participating, and on all other matters primarily of a professional nature, more particularly on the preparation of laws and regulations concerning the nature, extent and provision of the care furnished under the service.

98. Where the medical care service covers the whole or the majority of the population and a representative body supervises or administers all medical care and general health services, beneficiaries should be represented on such body, either directly or indirectly.

99. In this event, the medical and allied professions should be represented on the representative body, preferably in numbers equal to those of the beneficiaries or the government as the case may be ; the professional members should be elected by the profession concerned, or nominated by their representatives and appointed by the central government.

100. Where the medical care service covers the whole or the majority of the population and a corporate body of experts established by legislation or by charter supervises or administers all medical care and general health services, such body may appropriately consist of an equal number of members of the medical and allied professions and of qualified laymen.

101. The professional members of the expert body should be appointed by the central government from among candidates nominated by the representatives of the medical and allied professions.

102. The representative executive body or the expert body supervising or administering medical care and general health services should be responsible to the government for its general policy.

103. In the case of a federal State, the central authority referred to in the preceding paragraphs may be either a federal or a State authority.

Local Administration

104. Local administration of medical care and general health services should be unified or co-ordinated within areas formed for the purpose as provided for in paragraph 24, and the medical care service in the area should be administered by or with the advice of bodies representative of the beneficiaries and partly composed of, or assisted by, representatives of the medical and allied professions, so as to safeguard the interests of the beneficiaries and the professions, and secure the technical efficiency of the service and the professional freedom of the participating doctors.

105. Where the medical care service covers the whole or the majority of the population in the health area, all medical care and general health services may appropriately be administered by one area authority.

106. Where, in this event, the area government administers the health services on behalf of the beneficiaries, the medical and allied professions should participate in the administration of the medical care service, preferably through technical committees elected by the professions or appointed by the area or central government from among nominees of the professions concerned.

107. Where a medical care service covering the whole or the majority of the population in the health area is administered by a representative body, the area government, on behalf of the beneficiaries, and the medical and allied professions in the area, should be represented on such body, preferably in equal numbers.

108. Where the medical service is administered by area offices or officers of the central authority, the medical and allied professions in the area should participate in the administration, preferably through executive technical committees, elected or appointed in the manner provided for in paragraph 106.

109. Whatever the form of the area administration, the authority administering the medical care service should keep in constant touch with the beneficiaries in the area through advisory bodies, elected by representative organisations of the different sections of the population, in the manner provided for in paragraph 95.

110. Where the social insurance medical care service covers only a section of the population, administration of that service may appropriately be entrusted to a representative executive body responsible to the government, and comprising representatives of the beneficiaries, of the medical and allied professions participating in the service and of the employers.

Administration of Health Units

111. Health units owned and operated by the medical care service; such as medical or health centres or hospitals, should be administered under democratic control with adequate provisions for the participation of the medical profession, or wholly or predominantly by doctors elected by, or appointed after consultation of, the members of the medical and allied professions participating in the medical care service, in co-operation with all the doctors working at the unit.

Right of Appeal

112. Beneficiaries or members of the medical or allied professions who have submitted complaints to the arbitration body referred to in paragraph 63 should have a right of appeal from the decisions of such body to an independent tribunal.

113. Members of the medical and allied professions against whom disciplinary measures have been taken by the supervisory body referred to in paragraph 64 should have a right of appeal from the decisions of such body to an independent tribunal.

114. Where the supervisory body referred to in paragraph 64 takes no disciplinary action on a matter referred to it by the arbitration body, in accordance with paragraph 65, the interested parties should have a right of appeal to an independent tribunal.

Recommendation 70

Recommendation concerning Minimum Standards of Social Policy in Dependent Territories

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to minimum standards of social policy in dependent territories, which is the fifth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Social Policy in Dependent Territories Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas the economic advancement and social progress of the peoples of dependent territories have become increasingly a matter of close and urgent concern to the States responsible for their administration ; and

Whereas the International Labour Organisation has from its inception endeavoured to assist the efforts towards this end of governments, employers and workers ; and

Whereas the Atlantic Charter has expressed the desire of the signatories "to bring about the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing, for all, improved labour standards, economic advancement and social security" ; and

Whereas the Conference of the International Labour Organisation, by a Resolution adopted on 5 November 1941, endorsed the principles of the Atlantic Charter and pledged the full co-operation of the International Labour Organisation in their implementation ; and

Whereas the International Labour Organisation has from time to time adopted Conventions and Recommendations dealing with special aspects of the conditions of life and labour in dependent territories and has promoted the application to such territories, in accordance with Article 35 of the Constitution of the Organisation, of Conventions and Recommendations of general application ; and

Whereas the progress of the well-being and development of dependent peoples is influenced by the economic relations between the dependent territories and the rest of the world, as well as by measures taken within the dependent territories ; and

Whereas it is desirable to state the fundamental principles of social policy in dependent territories, and to provide for the extension of the application to such territories of accepted international minimum standards and for the improvement of these standards, in order to promote the attainment of the aforesaid objects ;

The Conference makes the following recommendations :

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation should take or continue to take such steps as are within its competence to promote the well-being and development of the peoples of dependent territories through the effective application of the general principles set forth in Part I of the Annex to this Recommendation.

2. Each Member of the Organisation which is responsible for any dependent territory should take all steps within its competence to secure the effective application in each such territory of the minimum standards set forth in Part II of the Annex to this Recommendation, and in particular should bring this Recommendation before the authority or authorities competent to make effective in each such territory the minimum standard set forth in Part II of the Annex.

3. Each Member of the Organisation should, if it approves this Recommendation, notify the Director of the International Labour Office of its acceptance of the general principles set forth in Part I of the Annex ; should communicate to the Director at the earliest possible date particulars of the action taken to make effective the minimum standards set forth in Part II of the Annex in respect of each dependent territory for which the Member in question is responsible ; and thereafter should report to the International Labour Office from time to time, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the action taken to give effect to the Recommendation.

4. The standards set forth in Part II of the Annex to this Recommendation should be regarded as minimum standards, which do not qualify or impair any obligation to apply higher standards incumbent upon any Member of the Organisation under the Constitution of the Organisation or under any international labour Convention which the Member may have ratified, and should in no case be so interpreted or applied as to lessen the protection afforded by existing legislation to the workers concerned.

These steps shall include the adoption of appropriate commercial and trading policies by countries on which dependent territories depend.

Recommendation 71

Recommendation concerning Employment Organisation in the Transition from War to Peace

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the organisation of employment in the transition from war to peace, which is the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Employment (Transition from War to Peace) Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas the promotion of full employment with a view to satisfying the vital needs of the population and raising the standard of living throughout the world is a primary objective of the International Labour Organisation ;

Whereas in order to achieve full employment economic measures providing employment opportunities must be supplemented by effective organisation to help employers to secure the most suitable workers, to help workers to find the most suitable employment, and generally to ensure that, at any given moment, the necessary skills are available and are distributed satisfactorily among the various branches of production and the various areas ; and

Whereas the character and magnitude of the employment adjustments required during the transition from war to peace will necessitate special action, more particularly for the purpose of facilitating the re-employment of demobilised members of the armed forces, discharged war workers, and all persons whose usual employment has been interrupted as a result of the war, enemy action, or resistance to the enemy or enemy-dominated authorities, by assisting the persons concerned to find without delay the most suitable employment ;

The Conference recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply the following general principles, and in so doing to take into account, according to national conditions, the suggested methods of application, and to communicate information to the International Labour Office, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to these principles :

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

I. Each Government should collect whatever information is necessary regarding workers seeking or likely to be seeking employment and regarding prospective employment opportunities, with a view to ensuring the most rapid reabsorption or redistribution in suitable employment of all persons who desire to work.

II. The demobilisation of the armed forces and of assimilated services and the repatriation of prisoners of war, persons who have been deported, and others, should be planned with the objective of maximum fairness to individuals and maximum opportunities for satisfactory re-establishment in civil life.

III. National programmes for industrial demobilisation and reconversion should be planned, in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, and other adequate measures taken, in such manner as to facilitate the most rapid attainment of full employment for the production of needed goods and services.

IV. In the organisation of full employment in the transition period and thereafter, the widest possible use of employment service facilities by employers seeking workers and by workers seeking employment should be encouraged by the competent authorities and by employers' and workers' organisations.

V. Each Government should, to the maximum extent possible, provide public vocational guidance facilities, available to persons seeking work, with a view to assisting them to find the most suitable employment.

VI. Training and retraining programmes should be developed to the fullest possible extent in order to meet the needs of the workers who will have to be re-established in employment or provided with new employment.

VII. With a view to avoiding the need for excessive movements of workers from one area to another and preventing localised unemployment in particular areas, each Government should, in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, formulate a positive policy in regard to the location of industry and the diversification of economic activity. Governments should also take steps to facilitate any necessary mobility of labour, both occupational and geographical.

VIII. Efforts should be made during the transition period to provide the widest possible opportunities for acquiring skill for juveniles and young workers who were unable, because of the war, to undertake or to complete their training, and efforts should also be made to improve the education and health supervision of young persons.

IX. The redistribution of women workers in each national economy should be carried out on the principle of complete equality of opportunity for men and women in respect of admission to employment on the basis of their individual merit, skill and experience, and steps should be taken to encourage the establishment of wage rates on the basis of job content, without regard to sex.

X. Disabled workers, whatever the origin of their disability, should be provided with full opportunities for rehabilitation, specialised vocational guidance, training and retraining, and employment on useful work.

XI. Measures should be taken to regularise employment within the industries and occupations in which work is irregular, in order to achieve full use of the capacities of the workers.

METHODS OF APPLICATION

I. ADVANCE COLLECTION OF INFORMATION

1. Each Government should arrange for the co-ordinated collection and utilisation of as complete and up-to-date information as possible on—

- (a) the number, educational and occupational backgrounds, past and present skills, and occupational wishes of members of the armed forces and of assimilated services, and as far as possible of all persons whose usual employment has been interrupted as the result of enemy action or resistance to the enemy or enemy-dominated authorities ;
- (b) the number, location, industrial distribution, sex distribution, skills and occupational wishes of workers who will have to change their employment during the transition from war to peace ; and

- (c) the number and distribution of older workers, women and juveniles who are likely to withdraw from gainful employment after the war emergency and the number of juveniles who are likely to be seeking employment on leaving school.

2. (1) Comprehensive material on prospective labour requirements, showing the probable extent and timing of the demand for workers from each major industry, both in total and by major skills, should be collected and analysed before the end of the war.

(2) Where such information is in the possession of any administrative authority, it should be made available to the authorities primarily responsible for the collection or utilisation of advance information on labour supply and requirements.

(3) The material on labour requirements should cover more particularly—

- (a) the probable contraction of labour requirements resulting from the closing of certain munitions undertakings ;
- (b) the probable rate of contraction of the armed forces and of assimilated services upon the termination of hostilities ;
- (c) probable fluctuations and changes by areas in the labour force of industries or undertakings which will, with or without a period of conversion, continue in operation to meet peacetime needs ;
- (d) probable labour requirements in industries which will be expanding to meet peacetime needs, in particular in industries the output of which is most urgently needed to improve the standard of living of the workers, and in public works, including works of a normal character and works held in reserve for the provision of supplementary employment in periods of declining economic activity ; and
- (e) the probable demand for workers in the main industries and occupations under conditions of full employment.

3. Prospective labour supply and demand in the various areas should be kept under constant review by the appropriate authorities, in order to show the effect of the war and the probable effect of the termination of hostilities on the employment situation in each of these areas.

4. Members should co-operate in collecting the information referred to in sub-paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of paragraph 1 in respect of persons transferred out of their own countries as a result of Axis aggression. Each Government should supply such information in respect of nationals of other Members living in its territory, in Axis territories, or in territory occupied by the Axis, who are awaiting repatriation, even where the information available is merely of a general character.

II. DEMOBILISATION OF THE ARMED FORCES

5. Close contact should be organised and maintained between the employment service and the authorities responsible for the demobilisation of the armed forces and assimilated services and for the repatriation of prisoners of war and persons who have been deported, in order to ensure the speediest re-employment of the men and women concerned.

6. (1) The rate and order of demobilisation should be controlled according to clearly expressed principles which should be given wide publicity in order that they may be clearly understood.

(2) In the process of demobilisation, which should in general be as rapid as military necessity and transportation facilities permit, consideration should be given to—

(a) the desirability of regulating the rate and distributing the flow of demobilisation so as to avoid local concentrations of ex-service men and women disproportionate to the capacity of their community to provide opportunity for employment or training ; and

(b) the desirability of arranging, where necessary, for an early release of workers whose qualifications make them indispensable for urgent reconstruction work.

7. (1) Schemes for reinstating in their former employment persons whose usual employment has been interrupted by military mobilisation, enemy action, or resistance to the enemy or enemy-dominated authorities, should be adopted and carried out so far as changed post-war circumstances allow.

(2) The fullest possible employment and advancement opportunities for these men and women, on the basis of their qualifications, should be assured through Government action and collective agreements.

(3) Immediate alternative employment should be secured for the workers displaced by the operation of these schemes.

8. In addition to schemes for re-employment, immediate consideration should be given to the provision, wherever justified by prospective opportunities to make a living, of adequate financial and other assistance to enable qualified demobilised persons to settle or resettle on the land, to enter or re-enter a profession, or to take up other independent work.

III. INDUSTRIAL DEMOBILISATION AND CONVERSION

9. (1) Each Government should, in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, formulate a national industrial demobilisation and reconversion programme to facilitate the rapid and orderly conversion of the economy from wartime to peacetime requirements during the period of reconstruction, account being taken of the urgent need of countries devastated by the war, with a view to attaining full employment with the least possible delay. All information in regard to the demobilisation and reconversion programme should be made available to the authorities responsible for collecting advance information on labour supply and requirements.

(2) The co-operation of employers' and workers' organisations should be invited with a view to working out comprehensive industry and area demobilisation and reconversion programmes to facilitate the change-over from war to peace production in a manner that will minimise transitional unemployment.

10. (1) Each Government should, so far as possible before the end of the war, determine its policy in regard to the peacetime use of Government-owned war production capacity and equipment and in regard to the disposition of surplus materials.

(2) Special consideration should be given to the early release of factories and equipment urgently needed for peacetime production or training.

(3) In general, factories, equipment or materials should not be destroyed or kept out of use where human needs are unsatisfied or where no excess production would exist at reasonable prices under conditions of demand associated with full employment.

11. Each Government should, in formulating its policy and procedure for the termination or adjustment of war contracts, give special consideration to the possibilities of continued employment or rapid re-employment of the workers affected or of favourable opportunities for employment in other areas. Governments should also arrange for the prompt settlement of claims under terminated contracts, so that employment will not be held back by needless financial difficulties of contractors. Contractors in countries at present occupied who have worked voluntarily in the interest of the enemy should not be granted the benefit of such arrangements.

12. (1) Arrangements should be made to ensure that administrative authorities give information at the earliest possible moment to the employment service and contractors regarding any circumstances likely to cause dismissals or lay-offs.

(2) Procurement agencies should give contractors both at home and abroad and the employment service as long advance notice as possible of cut-backs in war orders. In no case should the notice given be less than two weeks.

(3) Employers should give the employment service at least two weeks' advance notice of proposed dismissals affecting more than a specified number of workers, in order to enable the employment service to make plans for alternative employment for the workers concerned.

(4) Employers should give the employment service at least two weeks' advance notice of proposed temporary lay-offs affecting more than a specified number of workers, together with information to show the probable duration of such lay-offs, in order to enable the employment service to find temporary public or private employment or training for the laid-off workers. Employers should so far as possible inform the laid-off workers of the expected duration of such lay-offs.

IV. APPLICATIONS FOR WORK AND FOR WORKERS

13. (1) Vacancies on public works and in undertakings working on public orders to the extent of 75 per cent. or more of their operations should be filled through the employment service.

(2) Consideration should be given to the advisability of requiring employers in specified industries or areas to engage their workers through the employment service in order to facilitate the readjustment of employment.

(3) Employers should be encouraged to give advance notice of their labour requirements to the employment service.

14. Persons applying for employment on Government-sponsored projects, as well as persons applying for publicly supported training programmes or transfer assistance, or claiming unemployment benefit or allowance, should be required to register with the employment service.

15. Special efforts should be made to assist demobilised members of the forces and war workers to find the most suitable work of which they are capable, making use wherever possible of the skills acquired by them during the war.

16. Every effort should be made by the authorities, and in particular by the employment service, in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, to encourage as wide a use as possible of the employment service by employers and workers.

V. VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

17. Special and immediate attention should be given to the development of suitable methods and techniques of vocational guidance for adult workers.

18. In cases of prolonged unemployment, the use of vocational guidance facilities should be made a condition for the continued receipt of unemployment benefit or allowance.

19. The competent authorities should, in co-operation with the private bodies concerned, develop and maintain adequate training facilities for vocational guidance officers.

VI. TRAINING AND RETRAINING PROGRAMMES

20. On the basis of information concerning labour supply and demand in the post-war period, each Government should, in close co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, formulate a national training and retraining programme, geared to the post-war needs of the economy and taking into account changes in the different skill requirements of each industry.

21. Every possible step should be taken to facilitate the occupational mobility necessary to adjust the supply of workers to present and prospective labour requirements.

22. Training and retraining programmes should be extended and adapted to meet the needs of demobilised persons, discharged war workers, and all persons whose usual employment has been interrupted as the result of enemy action or resistance to the enemy or enemy-dominated authorities. Special emphasis should be placed on courses of training designed to fit the persons concerned for employment which offers a permanent career.

23. In addition to apprenticeship schemes, systematic methods of training, retraining and upgrading workers should be developed to meet post-war needs for the reconstitution and expansion of the skilled labour force.

24. Persons undertaking training should be paid, where necessary, remuneration or allowances which provide an inducement to undergo and continue training and are sufficient to maintain a reasonable standard of life.

25. Men and women whose higher training and education has been prevented or interrupted by war service, whether in a military or civilian capacity, or by enemy action, or by resistance to the enemy or enemy-dominated authorities, should be enabled to enter upon or resume and complete their training and education, subject to continued proof of merit and promise, and should be paid allowances during their training and education.

26. (1) Qualified vocational teachers and instructors who have been engaged in other work during the war should be encouraged to resume their previous occupation at the earliest possible moment.

(2) Refresher courses should be organised in case of need—

(a) for vocational instructors returning to their work after a lengthy absence ; and

(b) for teaching new methods and techniques.

(3) Additional vocational teachers and instructors should be trained in the numbers required to meet the needs of the training and retraining programme.

(4) Members should co-operate, where necessary, in reconstituting and expanding vocational training and retraining by such methods as—

- (a) the provision in one country of training as instructors for persons from another country to enable them to acquire broader skill or training not available in their own country ;
- (b) the loan of experienced vocational instructors and teachers from one country to help meet shortages of vocational training staff or new industrial needs in another country ;
- (c) facilitating the return to the territories of member countries of subjects thereof living in the territory of another member country who are qualified for teaching and instructing in their home country ; and
- (d) the provision of training handbooks and other equipment to assist instructors and persons in training.

27. Training and retraining services should be co-ordinated on a national, regional and local basis, and should be closely associated at all levels of operation with guidance work, with the placement work of the employment service, and with the training activities of employers' and workers' organisations.

VII. GEOGRAPHICAL MOBILITY

28. With a view to facilitating the necessary mobility of labour, the employment service should take action to overcome the obstacles to transfers from one area to another and to assist the movement of workers to areas needing labour, thereby helping to bring together available skills and available employment opportunities and thus preventing unemployment.

29. (1) Where a worker is transferred from one area to another on the initiative or with the consent of the employment service, arrangements should be made to grant travelling expenses and to assist the worker to meet initial expenses in the new place of work by granting or advancing him a specified amount, fixed according to the circumstances.

(2) Where a temporary transfer made through the employment service involves the separation of the head of the household from his family, arrangements should be made to grant an appropriate separation allowance to cover the added costs of maintaining double living quarters.

VIII. EMPLOYMENT OF YOUNG WORKERS

30. (1) The policy of revising upward the school-leaving age and the age for admission to employment should be considered by all countries as a primary factor in planning employment policy for the transition period.

(2) Maintenance allowances should be granted to parents by the competent authorities during the additional period of compulsory education referred to above.

31. Student-aid programmes should be developed to enable young persons above the school-leaving age to continue their education in secondary schools or high schools, and for those beyond the secondary school level, subject to continued proof of merit, in technical or higher education schools or courses on a full-time basis.

32. (1) Vocational guidance services adapted to their needs should be available for all young persons, both prior to and at the time of leaving school, through the school or the employment service.

(2) Free pre-employment medical examination should be provided for all young persons. The results of this examination should be incorporated in a certificate to serve as a basis for periodical re-examinations during a period to be prescribed by national laws or regulations.

(3) In countries in which war conditions and enemy occupation have undermined the health of young persons, particular attention should be given to the health supervision of such persons from the time of their admission to employment through the period of adjustment to working life, and, where necessary, measures of physical rehabilitation should be adopted.

(4) Members should co-operate, when requested, in providing for the training of medical and nursing staff, and the loan of experienced doctors, surgeons, nursing personnel and appropriate equipment, in order to facilitate the physical rehabilitation of the young persons referred to in sub-paragraph (3) above.

33. (1) Young persons whose contracts of apprenticeship have been interrupted owing to the war should be entitled to resume apprenticeship on the termination of their war service.

(2) State aid should be made available to enable a person whose apprenticeship has been resumed in accordance with sub-paragraph (1) above to be assured of an income which is reasonable, having regard to his age and to the remuneration he would have been receiving had his apprenticeship not been interrupted.

(3) In all cases in which military service, raw material shortages, enemy action, or other war circumstances have prevented young persons from entering or continuing apprenticeship, arrangements should be made to encourage them, as soon as circumstances permit, to resume their apprenticeship or to learn a skilled trade.

(4) With a view to encouraging the resumption of interrupted apprenticeships, arrangements should be made to review the provisions of apprenticeship contracts and to vary them where this seems equitable to take account of training, skill or experience acquired during war service.

(5) Existing apprenticeship programmes should be re-examined, in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, with a view to giving wider opportunities to learn a skilled trade to the younger workers who have not been able, owing to the war, to enter apprenticeship. More particularly, consideration should be given to making arrangements for varying existing restrictions on admission to apprenticeship and for taking into account any training, skill or experience acquired during the war.

34. Employers should be encouraged to introduce programmes of systematic in-plant training to enable all the young workers employed in the undertaking to acquire training or to improve their skill and broaden their knowledge of the operations of the undertaking as a whole. Such programmes should be developed in co-operation with workers' organisations and should be adequately supervised.

35. In countries which have been invaded during the war, and in which there are young persons who have been compelled to abstain from work, or, without regard to their aptitudes or desires, to work for the enemy, special attention should be devoted to the readjustment of such young persons to work habits and to supplementing their vocational training.

IX. EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN

36. The redistribution of women workers in the economy should be organised on the principle of complete equality of opportunity for men and women on the basis of their individual merit, skill and experience, without prejudice to the provisions of the international labour Conventions and Recommendations concerning the employment of women.

37. (1) In order to place women on a basis of equality with men in the employment market, and thus to prevent competition among the available workers prejudicial to the interests of both men and women workers, steps should be taken to encourage the establishment of wage rates based on job content, without regard to sex.

(2) Investigations should be conducted, in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, for the purpose of establishing precise and objective standards for determining job content, irrespective of the sex of the worker, as a basis for determining wage rates.

38. The employment of women in industries and occupations in which large numbers of women have traditionally been employed should be facilitated by action to raise the relative status of these industries and occupations and to improve conditions of work and methods of placement therein.

X. EMPLOYMENT OF DISABLED WORKERS

39. The criterion for the training and employment of disabled workers should be the employability of the worker, whatever the origin of the disability.

40. There should be the closest collaboration between medical services for the disabled and vocational rehabilitation and placement services.

41. Specialised vocational guidance for the disabled should be developed in order to make it possible to assess each disabled worker's capacity and to select the most appropriate form of employment for him.

42. (1) Wherever possible, disabled workers should receive training in company with able-bodied workers, under the same conditions and with the same pay.

(2) Training should be continued to the point where the disabled person is able to enter employment as an efficient worker in the trade or occupation for which he has been trained.

(3) Wherever practicable, efforts should be made to retrain disabled workers in their former occupations or in related occupations where their previous qualifications would be useful.

(4) Employers with suitable training facilities should be induced to train a reasonable proportion of disabled workers.

(5) Specialised training centres, with appropriate medical supervision, should be provided for those disabled persons who require such special training.

43. (1) Special measures should be taken to ensure equality of employment opportunity for disabled workers on the basis of their working capacity. Employers should be induced by wide publicity and other means, and where necessary compelled, to employ a reasonable quota of disabled workers.

(2) In certain occupations particularly suitable for the employment of seriously-disabled workers, such workers should be given preference over all other workers.

(3) Efforts should be made, in close co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations, to overcome employment discriminations against disabled workers which are not related to their ability and job performance, and to overcome the obstacles to their employment, including the possibility of increased liability in respect of workmen's compensation.

(4) Employment on useful work in special centres under non-competitive conditions should be made available for all disabled workers who cannot be made fit for normal employment.

44. Information should be assembled by the employment service in regard to the occupations particularly suited to different disabilities and the size, location and employability of the disabled population.

XI: REGULARISATION OF EMPLOYMENT IN PARTICULAR INDUSTRIES

45. In industries in which operations are irregular, such as construction and port transport, the schemes for the regularisation of employment adopted or extended during the war by Member States should be maintained and adapted to peacetime conditions in consultation with the employers' and workers' organisations concerned.

Recommendation 72

Recommendation concerning the Employment Service

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the employment service, which is included in the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Employment Service Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas the application of the Employment (Transition from War to Peace) Recommendation, 1944, requires the existence and development of an efficient employment service ; and

Whereas the Unemployment Convention, 1919, provides for the establishment of a "system of free public employment agencies under the control of a central authority" ; and

Whereas the fulfilment of the tasks enumerated in the Employment (Transition from War to Peace) Recommendation, 1944, involves a new and broader definition of the responsibilities, functions and methods of operation of the employment service ; and

Whereas this broader conception is of importance in the formulation and application of a long-term full employment policy ;

The Conference recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply the following general principles, and to report to the International Labour Office from time to time, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to these principles :

1. The essential duty of the employment service should be to ensure, in co-operation with other public and private bodies concerned, the best possible organisation of industrial, agricultural and other employment as an integral part of the national programme for the full use of productive resources.

2. (1) To fulfil this duty, steps should be taken to strengthen the employment service and related authorities.

(2) These services should be responsible for—

- (a) collecting and making available information concerning labour supply, employment opportunities, the skills required to do particular jobs, changes in skill requirements within the different industries, employment and unemployment trends, the regularisation of employment and the causes of unemployment, and other information of value in promoting full employment ;
- (b) assisting workers to find suitable employment and employers to find suitable workers ;
- (c) assisting in developing and in determining the content of training and retraining courses ;
- (d) developing methods of facilitating the transference, where necessary, of workers from one occupation or area to another ;
- (e) helping to achieve the best possible distribution of manpower within each industry and area ;
- (f) co-operating as may be required in the administration of unemployment insurance and assistance ;
- (g) assisting other public and private bodies in planning the location of industry, public works, housing projects, social amenities, and other social and economic measures.

3. The closest co-operation between the employment service and other authorities whose activities affect the employment situation, including authorities charged with responsibility for accelerating or slowing down public works in accordance with the current state of employment and unemployment, should be established at the national, regional and local levels.

4. (1) In addition to the joint advisory bodies provided for in Article 2 of the Unemployment Convention, 1919, the employment service should co-operate closely with employers' and workers' organisations. Appropriate machinery should be devised to enable these organisations to assist in the formulation and carrying out of employment policy.

(2) The employment service should co-operate with any joint industry committees which may be set up to facilitate the solution of the special problems of the industries concerned.

Recommendation 73

Recommendation concerning the National Planning of Public Works

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Philadelphia by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-sixth Session on 20 April 1944, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the national planning of public works, which is included in the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

adopts this twelfth day of May of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-four the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Public Works (National Planning) Recommendation, 1944 :

Whereas the Public Works (National Planning) Recommendation, 1937, recommends that all works undertaken or financed by public authorities should be timed in such a way as to reduce industrial fluctuations as far as possible, and that special consideration should be given to the financing by loan in periods of depression of works likely to stimulate economic recovery and to the application of a monetary policy which will make possible the expansion of credit required for the speeding up of such works and ensure the lowest possible rate of interest on the loans ; and

Whereas at the end of the war public authorities will be faced with the great need to repair the damage caused by the war, to restore and replace existing public works, and to provide new public works and services ; and

Whereas public works constitute a large element in the economic life of all nations, and public works programmes are an important method by which levels of productivity can be increased, and by which levels of living of all peoples can be raised ; and

Whereas it is important in the transition from war to peace that public and private enterprise should be co-ordinated to assure the prompt and orderly use of human and material resources, avoiding on the one hand rush demands for materials which would leave contractors temporarily in short supply and on the other hand inadequate development of demand ;

The Conference recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply the following general principles, and to communicate information to the International Labour Office, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to these principles :

1. Each Member should prepare a long-term development programme which can be accelerated or slowed down in accordance with the employment situation in different parts of the country.

2. Special attention should be paid to the importance of timing the execution of the works and the ordering of supplies, so as to limit the demand for labour at a time when there is already full employment and to increase it at a time when there is unemployment.

3. In applying this policy, consideration should be given not only to the employment situation in the country as a whole but also to the situation in each area and to the particular types of skill available in the area concerned.

4. Local authorities and others responsible for framing schemes for employment should be informed by their central authorities at the earliest possible moment what financial support will be forthcoming, so that the local authorities and technical services may proceed without further delay to prepare plans and to make such practical preparation as would enable large numbers of demobilised soldiers to be absorbed as soon as they are available.

TWENTY-SEVENTH SESSION

(Paris, 15 October-5 November 1945)

Recommendation 74

Recommendation concerning Minimum Standards of Social Policy in Dependent Territories (Supplementary Provisions)

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Paris by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-seventh Session on 15 October 1945, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to minimum standards of social policy in dependent territories (supplementary provisions), which is the fifth item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

adopts this fifth day of November of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-five the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Social Policy in Dependent Territories (Supplementary Provisions) Recommendation, 1945 :

Whereas Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations, being the Declaration regarding Non-Self-Governing Territories, affirms the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of all such territories are paramount, and establishes the obligation of metropolitan States, as a sacred trust, to ensure the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the peoples of these territories ; and

Whereas the International Labour Conference adopted on 12 May 1944, in the course of its Twenty-sixth Session, a Recommendation concerning minimum standards of social policy in dependent territories ; and

Whereas it is desirable to provide for the application to dependent territories of minimum standards supplementing those adopted in 1944 ;

The Conference makes the following recommendations :

1. Each Member of the International Labour Organisation which is responsible for any dependent territory should take all steps within its competence to secure the effective application in each such territory of the minimum standards set forth in the Annex to this Recommendation, and in particular should bring this Recommendation before the authority or authorities competent to make effective in each such territory the minimum standards set forth in the Annex.

2. Each Member of the Organisation should, if it approves this Recommendation, communicate to the Director-General of the International Labour Office at the earliest possible date particulars of the action taken to make effective the minimum standards set forth in the Annex in respect of each dependent territory for which the Member in question is responsible, and thereafter should report to the International Labour Office, from time to time, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the action taken to give effect to the Recommendation.

3. The standards set forth in the Annex to this Recommendation should be regarded as minimum standards, which do not qualify or impair any obligation to apply higher standards incumbent upon any Member of the Organisation under the Constitution of the Organisation or under any International Labour Convention which the Member may have ratified, and should in no case be so interpreted or applied as to lessen the protection afforded by existing legislation to the workers concerned.

ANNEX

SECTION 1. WAGES AND THRIFT

Article 1

1. It shall be an aim of policy to encourage the development of machinery of collective bargaining whereby minimum rates of wages may be fixed through negotiations between employers' and workers' organisations.

2. In all cases in which the competent authority has reason to believe that the workers' organisations have not arrived at the stage of development necessary to enable them to negotiate on a footing of equality with the employers' organisations, specially qualified persons shall be nominated to assist the workers in the course of the negotiations by giving them information and advice and, if need be, to act in their name. These measures shall be taken and such nominations made after consultation with the labour inspectorate where such exists. Persons so nominated shall assist in the early development of workers' organisations by advice and guidance.

Article 2

1. Where no adequate arrangements exist for the effective fixing of minimum wages by collective agreement, official machinery whereby minimum rates of wages can be fixed for the workers shall be created and maintained.

2. Any minimum rates so fixed by decision of the competent authority shall observe the principle of equal remuneration for men and women for work of equal value.

3. Representatives of the employers and workers concerned, including representatives of their respective organisations, where such exist, shall be associated in the operation of the minimum wage-fixing machinery, in such manner and to such extent, but in any case in equal numbers and on equal terms, as may be determined by the competent authority.

4. Minimum rates of wages which have been fixed by the competent authority shall be binding on the employers and workers concerned so as not to be subject to abatement by agreement between employers and workers without the express consent of the competent authority.

5. The necessary measures shall be taken to ensure that the employers and workers concerned are informed of the minimum rates of wages in force and that wages are not paid at less than these rates in cases where they are applicable.

6. A worker to whom the minimum rates are applicable and who has been paid wages at less than these rates shall be entitled to recover, by judicial or other legalised proceedings, the amount by which he has been underpaid, subject to such limitation of time as may be determined by the competent authority.

Article 3

1. The necessary measures shall be taken to ensure the proper payment of all wages earned and employers shall be required to keep registers of wage payments, to issue to workers statements of wage payments, and to take other appropriate steps to facilitate the necessary supervision.

2. Wages shall normally be paid in cash only and direct to the individual worker.

3. Unless there is an established local custom to the contrary, the continuance of which is desired by the workers, wages shall be paid regularly at such intervals as will lessen the likelihood of indebtedness among the wage earners.

4. Where food, housing, clothing and other essential supplies and services form part of remuneration, all practicable steps shall be taken by the competent authority to control strictly their adequacy and their cash value.

5. All practicable measures shall be taken—

- (a) to inform the workers of their wage rights ;
- (b) to prevent any unauthorised deductions from wages ; and
- (c) to restrict the amounts deductible from wages in respect of supplies and services forming part of remuneration to the cash value thereof.

Article 4

1. Voluntary forms of thrift among wage earners and independent producers shall be encouraged.

2. The maximum amounts and manner of repayment of advances on wages shall be regulated by the competent authority.

3. The competent authority shall limit the amount of advances which may be paid to a worker who has been engaged from outside the territory. The amount of any such advances shall be clearly explained to the worker. Any advance made in excess of the amount laid down by the competent authority shall be irrecoverable at law.

4. All practicable measures shall be taken for the protection of wage earners and independent producers against usury, in particular by action aiming at the reduction of rates of interest on loans, by the control of the operations of money lenders, and by the encouragement of facilities for borrowing money for appropriate purposes through co-operative credit organisations or through institutions which are under the control of the competent authority.

Article 5

1. Where deferred pay schemes are in existence or are being established—

- (a) their rules and operations shall be supervised by the competent authority, and in particular employers shall, where the competent authority is not satisfied that the funds are suitably invested, be required to furnish security for their obligations under such schemes ;
- (b) representatives of the wage earners, including representatives of their organisations where such exist, shall be associated in the operation of such schemes.

2. It shall be an aim of policy, as soon as the economic evolution of a territory permits, progressively to eliminate deferred pay schemes and to establish, without prejudice to provident or superannuation schemes, systems of retirement allowances, including provisions for contributions by the Government or employers or both as well as by the workers.

Article 6

1. It shall be an aim of policy effectively to establish the principle of equal wages for work of equal value in the same operation and undertaking and to prevent discrimination directed against workers by reason of their race, religion or sex in respect of opportunities for employment and promotion and in respect of wage rates.

2. All practicable measures shall be taken to lessen any existing differences in wage rates which are due to discrimination by reason of race, religion or sex by raising the rates applicable to the lower paid workers.

3. Workers engaged for employment from outside any dependent territory may be granted additional payments to meet any reasonable personal or family expenses resulting from employment away from their homes.

SECTION 2. LABOUR ASPECTS OF LAND POLICIES

Article 7

The following shall be among the measures to be considered by the competent authorities for the promotion of productive capacity and the improvement of standards of living of primary producers :

- (a) the elimination to the fullest practicable extent of the causes of chronic indebtedness ;
- (b) the control of the alienation of agricultural land to non-agriculturalists so as to ensure that such alienation takes place only when it is in the best interest of the territory ;
- (c) the supervision of tenancy arrangements and of working conditions with a view to securing for tenants and labourers the highest practicable standards of living and an equitable share in any advantages which may result from improvements in productivity or in price levels.

SECTION 3. SOCIAL SECURITY

Article 8

Provision shall be made by law at the earliest possible date for the payment of compensation to employed persons in case of incapacity for work caused by accidents arising out of and in the course of their employment, and to their dependent survivors in case of death caused by such accidents, and for the medical care of persons injured by such accidents :

- (a) in case of incapacity, compensation shall be paid not later than as from the fifth day after the accident, but, if the incapacity lasts for more than four weeks, compensation shall be payable as from the first day of incapacity ;
- (b) all measures practicable under local conditions shall be taken to restore as quickly as possible the earning capacity of injured workers ;
- (c) unless otherwise provided by a general social insurance scheme, the cost of compensation shall be borne by employers, and, as soon and so far as possible, shall be covered by a system of compulsory insurance not carried on for profit ;
- (d) the law and all procedures relating to compensation shall be as simple as possible ; in particular, a public officer shall be responsible for seeing that injured workers receive the compensation to which they are entitled, and claims shall be settled by summary and informal procedure.

Article 9

Where the injury results in permanent incapacity of other than a minor character or death, the compensation payable to the injured worker or his dependants shall be in the form of periodical payments : Provided that it may be wholly or partially paid in a lump sum if the competent authority is satisfied that it will be properly utilised or considers it impracticable properly to control periodical payments. It shall, however, be an aim of policy to eliminate the system of lump sum payments in favour of periodical payments.

Article 10

Article 11

1. There shall be equality of treatment for national and foreign workers in respect of workmen's compensation for accidents and occupational diseases.

2. If benefit payments are periodical, they shall continue to receive such benefits or be granted a lump sum in lieu thereof.

Article 12

1. It shall be an aim of policy, in areas where substantial numbers of the workers normally earn their living by wage earning, to introduce compulsory insurance for the protection of wage earners and their dependants in cases of sickness and maternity, old age, death of the breadwinner and unemployment. As soon as the necessary conditions for the operation of such insurance are present, arrangements to that end shall be inaugurated.

2. It shall be an aim of policy to provide, through compulsory sickness and maternity insurance, medical care for injured persons and their dependants, in so far as such care is not already provided as a free public service.

Article 15

1. Workers employed in industrial and commercial undertakings shall be granted in every period of seven days a period of rest comprising at least twenty-four consecutive hours, but wherever appropriate to the customs of the workers, a proportionate period of rest calculated over a longer period than one week is permissible.

2. Such provision for weekly rest shall be extended as soon as possible to agricultural undertakings subject to such adaptations as may be necessary to take account of the requirements of production.

3. The period of rest shall wherever possible be granted simultaneously to the whole of the staff of each undertaking and be fixed so as to coincide with the days already established by the customs of the workers.

2. It shall be an aim of policy to establish, wherever practicable, that workers employed in agricultural undertakings shall be entitled, after one year of substantially regular employment, to an annual holiday with pay of at least twelve working days. Where the employment of a worker is terminated after the completion of six months' service for a reason other than misconduct on his part he shall be entitled to a pro rata payment in lieu of an annual holiday.

3. Where workers are employed at considerable distances from their homes, a holiday calculated on the same basis over a longer period of employment may be substituted for the annual holiday with pay of twelve working days.

4. Where workers are employed at distances from their homes where they have been recruited or engaged, all practicable means shall be taken to facilitate their visiting their homes during holidays with pay.

Article 17

Where the competent authority is satisfied that hours of work, weekly rest or annual holidays with pay are adequately regulated by collective agreements or awards which cover a substantial number of the workers concerned, such agreements or awards may be regarded as satisfying the relevant provisions of this Section.

SECTION 6. POWERS OF LABOUR INSPECTORS

Article 18

1. Inspectors appointed by the competent authority and provided with credentials shall be authorised by law to exercise the following powers for the purpose of carrying out their duties :

3. Subject to the operation of such machinery, public officers shall be responsible for the investigation of disputes and shall endeavour to promote conciliation and to assist the parties in arriving at a fair settlement. Where practicable, these officers shall be officers especially assigned to such duties.

SECTION 8. HEALTH AND SAFETY IN EMPLOYMENT

Article 20

1. Minimum conditions shall be prescribed for the protection of the health, safety and welfare of workers in industrial undertakings and in other undertakings where the machinery used or the operations performed render such measures necessary.

If the competent authority in the territory of importation has not prescribed the necessary safety devices for any imported machinery, such machinery shall be equipped with the devices prescribed in the country of manufacture.

Article 21

1. Consideration shall be given to the application to dependent territories of the provisions of the Protection against Accidents (Dockers) Convention (Revised), 1932, in particular in the case of large ports and wherever new machinery is installed for the loading or unloading of ships, whether berthed in docks, at buoy or at anchorage.

2. Consideration shall be given to the desirability of ratifying the Protection against Accidents (Dockers) Convention (Revised), 1932, by such States responsible for dependent territories possessing ports as have not already done so.

2. In territories where it is considered preferable to have a special organisation for accident insurance and prevention completely independent of the inspectorate, the special officers of such an organisation shall be guided by the foregoing principles.

SECTION 9. INFORMATION

Article 24

The competent authority shall assume responsibility for making widely known the nature and significance of the measures adopted in conformity with the foregoing articles and the articles of the Social Policy in Dependent Territories Recommendation, 1944, for the information of the workers and their families, and of the employers. Recommendation concerning Agreements relating to the Social Security of Seafarers

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

The Conference recommends the Members of the Organisation to apply the following principles and to inform the International Labour Office, as requested by the Governing Body, concerning the measures taken to give effect to these principles :

1. Members should enter into agreements so as to ensure that seafarers belonging to one country and employed on board or in the service of a vessel of another country either remain subject to the schemes of compulsory social insurance or workmen's compensation of their own country or are subject to the corresponding schemes of the other country.

2. Such agreements might provide, for example, for Members to act as agents for one another in taking claims, obtaining necessary evidence and making payments or providing services as benefits to seafarers or dependants of seafarers entitled to benefit under the social insurance laws of one Member but present in the territory of another Member ; or for the transfer of contributions ; or for the application of the provisions of the Maintenance of Migrants' Pension Rights Convention, 1935 ; or for a combination of such methods.

3. Where seafarers residing in the territory of one Member and employed on board or in the service of vessels registered in the territory of another Member suffer employment injuries and are not protected either by a workmen's compensation scheme or by any alternative scheme, the second Member should take steps to secure that they are fully protected, either by entering into agreements with the first Member, or otherwise.

4. Where the shipowners of a Member enter into collective agreements providing for seafarers residing in its territory benefits supplementary to those prescribed by its laws or regulations and employ seafarers residing in the territory of another Member, the same supplementary benefits should be extended to such non-resident seafarers.

Recommendation 77

Recommendation concerning the Organisation of Training for Sea Service

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Seattle by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-eighth Session on 6 June 1946, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the organisation of training for sea service, which is included in the fifth item on the agenda of the Session, and adopts this twenty-ninth day of June of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Vocational Training (Seafarers) Recommendation, 1946 :

The Conference recommends that each maritime Member of the International Labour Organisation should take the following principles and rules into consideration in connection with the organisation of training for sea service and should report to the International Labour Office as requested by the Governing Body concerning the measures taken to give effect thereto :

1. The work of the various official and private institutions in each country which deal with vocational training for service at sea should, while ensuring free play to initiative and adaptability to the varying requirements of the shipping industry and to local conditions in the country, be co-ordinated and developed on the basis of a general programme which will provide adequate incentives to attract men to the maritime industry and to make seafaring their occupation in life.

2. This programme should take account of—

- (a) the occupational interests and cultural and moral requirements of the seafarer ;
- (b) the labour requirements of the shipping industry, with special regard to changes in technique and methods of organisation of work and to the trend of development in the labour market ;
- (c) the economic and social interests of the community.

3. The co-ordination and development of the work of training institutions should be undertaken on a national scale with the systematic collaboration of the national and local authorities concerned with the matters mentioned in the preceding paragraph and with the organisations of shipowners and seafarers concerned.

4. (1) Where the programme of training includes training for young persons in shore establishments and/or training vessels before they are first employed at sea, facilities for such training should be available for those who intend to serve as ratings as well as for those training to become officers.

(2) The age of entry and other conditions of admission and the curriculum in institutions for pre-sea training should be related to the age of leaving and the curriculum of the schools of the country.

(3) The curriculum of institutions for pre-sea training should so far as practicable include subjects of general educational value, and special attention should be paid to the health and physical training of the students.

5. (1) Provision should be made for the organisation of courses of training for persons who wish to improve and refresh their technical skill and knowledge, to acquire a special skill or to qualify for promotion to a higher grade or rank.

(2) These courses should include correspondence courses specially adapted to the needs of persons already serving at sea.

6. (1) Systematic efforts should be made to ensure that so far as practicable no person who wishes to enter sea service or to rise to the highest rank therein for which his natural abilities qualify him shall be debarred from so doing by reason of his own or his parents' financial circumstances.

(2) To assist in carrying out this principle, the award of scholarships and allowances, the adjustment of fees, the granting of paid study leave, the provision of facilities for the borrowing or purchase of books and instruments, and correspondence courses should be encouraged.

7. (1) Measures should be taken to supply parents, schools, vocational guidance institutions, employment exchanges and other bodies concerned and seafarers with information concerning the conditions upon which training for sea service can be obtained, the facilities that are available and the benefits to be derived from taking advantage of such facilities, including employment opportunities which may be available within successive periods.

(2) In particular, authorised lists of private institutions which are considered satisfactory in respect of the efficiency of their equipment, the quality of the tuition and training and general administration, and the fees charged should be published.

8. Encouragement should be given to the extension of facilities for the continuance of vocational and general education at sea by —

- (a) the provision of ships' libraries and cinema films of educational as well as recreational value ;
- (b) the organisation of correspondence courses ;
- (c) the broadcasting of special radio programmes.

II. PROVISIONS CONCERNING MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS

3. Without prejudice to the medical examination on entry into employment for the purpose of certifying the fitness of a child or young person for a specified occupation required by Article 2 of the said Conventions, it is desirable that all children should undergo, preferably before the end of their compulsory school attendance, a general medical examination, the results of which can be used by the vocational guidance services.

4. The thorough medical examination required on entry into employment should—

- (a) include all the clinical, radiological and laboratory tests useful for discovering fitness or unfitness for the employment in question ; and
- (b) be accompanied in each case by appropriate advice on health care.

5. Periodical examination should—

- (a) be carried out in the same way as the examination on entry into a given employment ; and
- (b) be accompanied by appropriate advice on health care and if necessary by supplementary vocational guidance with a view to a change of occupation.

6. (1) The findings of the examination should be entered in full on an index-card to be kept in the files of the medical services responsible for carrying out the examinations.

(2) The information entered on the medical certificate intended to come to the knowledge of the employer or the statement concerning the medical examination endorsed on the permit or workbook should be explicit enough to indicate the limitations of fitness for employment noted in the examination and the precautions which should, as a result, be taken regarding employment conditions, but should on no account include confidential information such as the diagnosis of congenital defects or diseases discovered by the examination.

7. (1) Since in most cases the adolescent stage is not ended at eighteen years of age and there is consequently still need of special protection, it is desirable to extend compulsory medical examination until at least twenty-one years for all young workers employed in industrial or non-industrial occupations.

(2) As a minimum, the degree of risk calling for the extension of medical examination until twenty-one years in accordance with Article 4 of the said Conventions should be estimated liberally ; this extension should apply, in particular, to all mining occupations, to all employment in hospitals, and to such employments in public entertainment as dancing and acrobatics.

8. The provisions of the preceding paragraph should not be interpreted as impairing the obligation to apply the provisions of international Conventions or of national laws or regulations which prohibit the employment of young persons in certain occupations on account of the high health risks involved or which require, irrespective of the age of the worker, the health supervision of all those employed in such occupations.

III. MEASURES FOR PERSONS FOUND BY MEDICAL EXAMINATION TO BE UNFIT OR ONLY PARTIALLY FIT FOR EMPLOYMENT

9. The measures to be taken by the national authority for enforcing the provisions of Article 6 of the said Conventions should include, in particular, measures for ensuring that children and young persons found by medical examination to have physical handicaps or limitations or to be generally unfit for employment—

- (a) receive proper medical treatment for removing or alleviating their handicap or limitation ;
- (b) are encouraged to return to school or are guided towards suitable occupations likely to be agreeable to them and within their capacity and are provided with opportunities of training for such occupations ;
- (c) have the advantage of financial aid, if necessary, during the period of medical treatment, schooling or vocational training.

10. In order to facilitate the guidance towards suitable occupations of children and young persons found to be lacking in physical resistance or to have definite handicaps, it is desirable that lists of trades and occupations suitable to each category of young deficient or handicapped workers should be drawn up by qualified specialists under the joint responsibility of the medical services and the services competent to deal with employment problems ; these lists should be used as guides for examining doctors but should not be binding.

IV. RESPONSIBLE AUTHORITIES

11. (1) In order to ensure the full efficacy of the medical examination of young workers, measures should be taken to train a body of examining doctors who are qualified in industrial hygiene and have a wide experience of the medical problems relating to the health of children and young persons.

(2) The competent authority should ensure that courses and practical studies are organised for this purpose.

(3) Examining doctors should be selected on the basis of the qualifications indicated in sub-paragraph (1).

12. The system of medical examination for fitness for employment should be administered in such a way as to ensure close co-operation between the medical services responsible for carrying out the examinations and the services responsible for authorising the employment of children and young persons and for supervising their conditions of employment.

V. METHODS OF ENFORCEMENT

13. (1) In order to ensure a regular medical examination for fitness for employment to children and young persons employed in an industrial or non-industrial undertaking either on the premises of the undertaking or in connection with its operation, employers should be required to send to a specified authority a notification of the employment of all young workers under the age-limit laid down by the regulations for the examination.

(2) This authority should be—

- (a) the official medical service responsible for carrying out the examinations and for keeping complete records of the findings of these examinations ; or
- (b) the service competent to authorise the employment of a child or young person on the basis of the findings of the examination.

14. In order to ensure a regular medical examination for fitness for employment of children and young persons engaged, either on their own account or on account of their parents, in itinerant trading or any other occupation carried on in the streets or in places to which the public have access—

- (a) young itinerant workers under the age-limit up to which medical examination for fitness is compulsory should be required to obtain an individual licence, issued preferably by a service under the labour department on the basis of the certificate for fitness for employment and renewed annually on the basis of the findings of the annual re-examination ; the licence should bear a serial number and the photograph or the signature or any other means of identification of the holder and should also include information concerning—
 - (i) the name, age and address of the holder ;
 - (ii) the name and address of his parents and the statement that they have authorised the child or young person to engage in the occupation for which the licence is issued ;
 - (iii) the findings of the medical examination on entry into employment and of subsequent re-examinations ;
- (b) the holder of the above-mentioned licence should be re-

- quired to wear a visible badge bearing the serial number corresponding to that of the licence ;
- (c) full co-operation should be established between the labour inspection services responsible for the enforcement of legislation and local authorities, particularly the services of the preventive police, for the purpose of checking regularly the documents of young itinerant workers and for ensuring their compliance with the regulations concerning medical examination for fitness for employment.

Recommendation 80

Recommendation concerning the Restriction of Night Work of Children and Young Persons in Non-Industrial Occupations

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation, .

Having been convened at Montreal by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Twenty-ninth Session on 19 September 1946, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the restriction of night work of children and young persons in non-industrial occupations, which is included in the third item on the agenda of the Session, and

Having adopted a Convention on this subject and having decided to supplement this Convention by a Recommendation, adopts this ninth day of October of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-six the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Night Work of Young Persons (Non-Industrial Occupations) Recommendation, 1946 :

Whereas the Night Work of Young Persons (Non-Industrial Occupations) Convention, 1946, lays down the basis for legislative protection against the dangers of night work in non-industrial occupations in which large numbers of young workers are engaged ;

Whereas although, on account of the great diversity of employments to which its provisions apply and on account of the different traditions and circumstances peculiar to each country, the Convention leaves it to national laws and regulations to adapt for each given country the implementation of the standards laid down therein, it is nevertheless desirable to ensure as uniform application as possible of the Convention ; and

Whereas it is desirable that account should be taken of certain methods which have been found to give satisfactory results and which may accordingly be a guide to the Members of the Organisation ;

The Conference recommends that each Member should apply the following provisions as rapidly as national conditions allow and report to the International Labour Office as requested by the Governing Body concerning the measures taken to give effect thereto :

I. SCOPE OF THE REGULATIONS

1. The provisions of the Night Work of Young Persons (Non-Industrial Occupations) Convention, 1946, should be applied to all occupations which are carried on in or in connection with the following undertakings or services, whether public or private :

- (a) commercial establishments, including delivery services ;
- (b) postal and telecommunication services, including delivery services ;
- (c) establishments and administrative services in which the persons employed are mainly engaged in clerical work ;
- (d) newspaper undertakings (editing, distribution, delivery services and the sale of newspapers in the streets or in places to which the public have access) ;
- (e) hotels, boarding-houses, restaurants, clubs, cafés and other refreshment houses ;
- (f) establishments for the treatment and care of the sick, infirm or destitute and of orphans ;
- (g) theatres and places of public entertainment ;
- (h) itinerant trading, the hawking of objects of all kinds, and any other occupation or service carried on in the streets or in places to which the public have access ;

(i) all other jobs, occupations or services which are neither industrial nor agricultural nor maritime.

2. Without prejudice to the discretion which the Night Work of Young Persons (Non-Industrial Occupations) Convention, 1946, leaves to Members to exempt from its application domestic service carried on for wages or earnings in a private household and employment on work which is not deemed to be harmful, prejudicial or dangerous to children or young persons in family undertakings in which only parents and their children or wards are engaged, the attention of Members is drawn to the desirability of :

- (a) adopting appropriate legislative and administrative measures for restricting the night work of children and young persons under eighteen years of age who are engaged in domestic service ;
- (b) extending to all undertakings carried on for profit, without consideration of the family relationship existing between the persons engaged in them, the application of the regulations concerning the restriction of night work in non-industrial occupations.

II. EMPLOYMENT IN PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT

3. Where local authorities are empowered, in virtue of the provisions of Article 5 of the Night Work of Young Persons (Non-Industrial Occupations) Convention, 1946, to grant individual licences to children and young persons allowing them to appear at night as performers in public entertainments or to participate at night as performers in the making of cinematographic films, supervisory control over the issuing of such licences should be vested in a higher authority to which the persons concerned may appeal either against the refusal of the licence or against any of the conditions imposed therein.

4. Licences should be issued for limited periods and should be subject to all the conditions necessary in the circumstances of each case for the protection of the child or young person.

5. Licences should be granted for children under fourteen years of age only in exceptional cases in which they are justified by the need of vocational training or the talent of the child and should be subject to the following conditions :

- (a) such licences should be restricted as a rule to children who are attending institutions for dramatic or musical instruction ;
- (b) employment at night should be limited as far as possible to three evenings a week or to an average of three evenings a week calculated over a longer period ;
- (c) employment should cease by ten o'clock in the evening or a rest period of sixteen consecutive hours should be granted.

III. METHODS OF SUPERVISION

6. While respecting the principle laid down in paragraph 12 of the Labour Inspection Recommendation, 1923, according to which the inspectorate should include men and women having the same powers and duties and exercising the same authority, it is desirable to take into account the experience of certain countries which have found it particularly satisfactory to entrust to women inspectors the enforcement of laws and regulations for the protection of young workers.

7. In addition to regular inspection to ensure compliance with the laws and regulations for the protection of young workers, special attention should be given, in order to achieve effective application of the provisions of the Night Work of Young Persons (Non-Industrial Occupations) Convention, 1946, as regards non-industrial activities carried on in a great number of small and scattered undertakings, to the investigation of alleged violations of the law reported by the public, and more particularly immediate action should be taken upon complaints lodged by the parents of the child or young person.

8. When deciding on the form of document which the employer shall be required by law to keep for the purpose of furnishing the inspection services with the means of supervising the enforcement of the regulations restricting night work, it is desirable to take into consideration the advantages of the work permit or the workbook which, as they must be issued or officially stamped on each change of employment, make it easy to identify the young worker, provide proof of age and fix his conditions of work, including working hours.

9. (1) In order to facilitate the identification by official supervisory services of young itinerant workers protected by the laws or regulations concerning night work—

- (a) young itinerant workers working for wages should carry on their person a document and a badge which will permit their identification outside the undertaking, in addition to the documents kept by the employer ;
- (b) young itinerant workers working on their own account or on account of their parents should carry on their person a document authorising their employment and a badge which will permit their identification.

(2) Young itinerant workers under eighteen years of age should be provided with a work permit or an individual licence containing—

- (a) the name, age and address of the child or young person ;
- (b) the photograph or signature of the child or young person or other means of identification and his permit or licence number ;

- (c) if the child or young person is employed for wages, the name and address of the employer and his hours of work ; and
- (d) if the child or young person is working on his own account or on account of his parents, the name and address of his parents and their authorisation.

(3) It is desirable that the work permit or individual licence should be issued by a service under the labour department.

(4) A young itinerant worker should be obliged to wear the badge which bears his permit or licence number so that it will be readily visible.

(5) The full co-operation of local authorities, and particularly that of the preventive police, if such exists, of educational authorities and of child welfare authorities, with inspection services, should be obtained in order to ensure supervision of the working hours of young itinerant workers and the enforcement of the laws and regulations relating to night work.

(6) The employer should be held legally responsible for violations of the laws or regulations, and in particular for any disproportion between the volume of work to be required and the time available for its performance during permitted working hours ; the employer should be given the opportunity to vindicate his good faith if he exercised all due diligence to prevent the violation.

(7) Parents should, after previous warning, be held legally responsible for violations of the laws or regulations when the occupation is carried on on their account or with their authorisation.

Recommendation 86

Recommendation concerning Migration for Employment (Revised 1949)

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Thirty-second Session on 8 June 1949, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals with regard to the revision of the Migration for Employment Recommendation, 1939, and the Migration for Employment (Co-operation between States) Recommendation, 1939, adopted by the Conference at its Twenty-fifth Session, which are included in the eleventh item on the agenda of the session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation,

The Conference,

Having adopted the Migration for Employment Convention (Revised), 1949, and Desiring to supplement its provisions by a Recommendation; Recommends as follows :

1. For the purpose of this Recommendation—

- (a) the term “migrant for employment” means a person who migrates from one country to another with a view to being employed otherwise than on his own account and includes any person regularly admitted as a migrant for employment ;
- (b) the term “recruitment” means—
 - (i) the engagement of a person in one territory on behalf of an employer in another territory, or
 - (ii) the giving of an undertaking to a person in one territory to provide him with employment in another territory,together with the making of any arrangements in connection with the operations mentioned in (i) and (ii) including the seeking for and selection of emigrants and the preparation for departure of the emigrants ;

- (c) the term "introduction" means any operations for ensuring or facilitating the arrival in or admission to a territory of persons who have been recruited within the meaning of subparagraph (b) ;
- (d) the term "placing" means any operations for the purpose of ensuring or facilitating the employment of persons who have been introduced within the meaning of subparagraph (c).

2. For the purpose of this Recommendation, references to the Government or competent authority of a territory of emigration should be interpreted as referring, in the case of migrants who are refugees or displaced persons, to any body established in accordance with the terms of an international instrument which may be responsible for the protection of refugees and displaced persons who do not benefit from the protection of any Government.

3. This Recommendation does not apply to—

- (a) frontier workers ;
- (b) short-term entry of members of the liberal professions and artistes ; and
- (c) seamen.

II

4. (1) It should be the general policy of Members to develop and utilise all possibilities of employment and for this purpose to facilitate the international distribution of manpower and in particular the movement of manpower from countries which have a surplus of manpower to those countries that have a deficiency.

(2) The measures taken by each Member should have due regard to the manpower situation in the country and the Government should consult the appropriate organisations of employers and workers on all general questions concerning migration for employment.

III

5. (1) The free service provided in each country to assist migrants and their families and in particular to provide them with accurate information should be conducted—

- (a) by public authorities ; or
- (b) by one or more voluntary organisations not conducted with a view to profit, approved for the purpose by the public authorities, and subject to the supervision of the said authorities ; or

(c) partly by the public authorities and partly by one or more voluntary organisations fulfilling the conditions stated in subparagraph (b) of this Paragraph.

(2) The service should advise migrants and their families, in their languages or dialects or at least in a language which they can understand, on matters relating to emigration, immigration, employment and living conditions, including health conditions in the place of destination, return to the country of origin or of emigration, and generally speaking any other question which may be of interest to them in their capacity as migrants.

(3) The service should provide facilities for migrants and their families with regard to the fulfilment of administrative formalities and other steps to be taken in connection with the return of the migrants to the country of origin or of emigration, should the case arise.

(4) With a view to facilitating the adaptation of migrants, preparatory courses should, where necessary, be organised to inform the migrants of the general conditions and the methods of work prevailing in the country of immigration, and to instruct them in the language of that country. The countries of emigration and immigration should mutually agree to organise such courses.

6. On request information should be made available by Members to the International Labour Office and to other Members concerning their emigration laws and regulations, including administrative provisions relating to restrictions on emigration and facilities granted to emigrants, and appropriate details concerning the categories of persons wishing to emigrate.

7. On request information should be made available by Members to the International Labour Office and to other Members concerning their immigration laws and regulations, including administrative provisions, entry permits where needed, number and occupational qualifications of immigrants desired, laws and regulations affecting admission of migrants to employment, and any special facilities granted to migrants and measures to facilitate their adaptation to the economic and social organisation of the country of immigration.

8. There should, as far as possible, be a reasonable interval between the publication and the coming into force of any measure altering the conditions on which emigration or immigration or the employment of migrants is permitted in order that these conditions may be notified in good time to persons who are preparing to emigrate.

9. Provision should be made for adequate publicity to be given at appropriate stages to the principal measures referred to in the preceding Paragraph, such publicity to be in the languages most commonly known to the migrants.

10. Migration should be facilitated by such measures as may be appropriate—

- (e) to provide access to schools for migrants and members of their families.

11. Migrants and the members of their families should be assisted in obtaining access to recreation and welfare facilities, and steps should be taken where necessary to ensure that special facilities are made available during the initial period of settlement in the country of immigration.

12. In the case of migrants under Government-sponsored arrangements for group transfer, medical assistance should be extended to such migrants in the same manner as provided for nationals.

IV

13. (1) Where necessary in the interest of the migrant, Members should require that any intermediary who undertakes the recruitment, introduction or placing of migrants for employment on behalf of an employer must obtain a written warrant from the employer, or some other document proving that he is acting on the employer's behalf.

(2) This document should be drawn up in, or translated into, the official language of the country of emigration and should set forth all necessary particulars concerning the employer, concerning the nature and scope of the recruitment, introduction or placing which the intermediary is to undertake, and concerning the employment offered, including the remuneration.

14. (1) The technical selection of migrants for employment should be carried out in such a way as to restrict migration as little as possible while ensuring that the migrants are qualified to perform the required work.

(2) Responsibility for such selection should be entrusted—

(a) to official bodies ; or

(b) where appropriate, to private bodies of the territory of immigration duly authorised and, where necessary in the interest of the migrant, supervised by the competent authority of the territory of emigration.

(3) The right to engage in selection should be subject to the prior authorisation of the competent authority of the territory where the said operation takes place, in such cases and under such conditions as may be prescribed by the laws and regulations of that territory, or by agreement between the Government of the territory of emigration and the Government of the territory of immigration.

(4) As far as possible, intending migrants for employment should, before their departure from the territory of emigration, be examined for purposes of occupational and medical selection by a representative of the competent authority of the territory of immigration.

(5) If recruitment takes place on a sufficiently large scale there should be arrangements for close liaison and consultation between the competent authorities of the territories of emigration and immigration concerned.

(3) For the purposes of this Paragraph, the members of the family of a migrant for employment should include his wife and minor children ; favourable consideration should be given to requests for the inclusion of other members of the family dependent upon the migrant.

16. (1) Migrants for employment authorised to reside in a territory and the members of their families authorised to accompany or join them should as far as possible be admitted to employment in the same conditions as nationals.

- (a) cease to be applied to migrants who have regularly resided in the country for a period, the length of which should not, as a rule, exceed five years ; and
- (b) cease to be applied to the wife and children of an age to work who have been authorised to accompany or join the migrant, at the same time as they cease to be applied to the migrant.

17. In countries where the number of migrants for employment is sufficiently large, the conditions of employment of such workers should be specially supervised, such supervision being undertaken according to circumstances either by a special inspection service or by labour inspectors or other officials specialising in this work.

VI

18. (1) When a migrant for employment has been regularly admitted to the territory of a Member, the said Member should, as far as possible, refrain from removing such person or the members of his family from its territory on account of his lack of means or the state of the employment market, unless an agreement to this effect has been concluded between the competent authorities of the emigration and immigration territories concerned.

(2) Any such agreement should provide—

- (a) that the length of time the said migrant has been in the territory of immigration shall be taken into account and that in principle no migrant shall be removed who has been there for more than five years ;
- (b) that the migrant must have exhausted his rights to unemployment insurance benefit ;

- (f) that the costs of the return of the migrant and the members of his family and of the transport of their household belongings to their final destination shall not fall on him.

19. Appropriate steps should be taken by the authorities of the territories concerned to consult the employers' and workers' organisations concerning the operations of recruitment, introduction and placing of migrants for employment.

VII

20. When migrants for employment or members of their families who have retained the nationality of their State of origin return there, that country should admit such persons to the benefit of any measures in force for the granting of poor relief and unemployment relief, and for promoting the re-employment of the unemployed, by exempting them from the obligation to comply with any condition as to previous residence or employment in the country or place.

VIII

21. (1) Members should in appropriate cases supplement the Migration for Employment Convention (Revised), 1949, and the preceding paragraphs of the present Recommendation by bilateral agreements, which should specify the methods of applying the principles set forth in the Convention and in the Recommendation.

(2) In concluding such agreements, Members should take into account the provisions of the Model Agreement annexed to the present Recommendation in framing appropriate clauses for the organisation of migration for employment and the regulation of the conditions of transfer and employment of migrants, including refugees and displaced persons.

Recommendation 87

Recommendation concerning Vocational Guidance

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Thirty-second Session on 8 June 1949, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals concerning vocational guidance which is the ninth item on the agenda of the session, and

Having determined that the proposals shall take the form of a Recommendation, adopts this first day of July of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine the following Recommendation, which may be cited as the Vocational Guidance Recommendation, 1949 :

I. GENERAL

1. For the purpose of this Recommendation the term "vocational guidance" means assistance given to an individual in solving problems related to occupational choice and progress with due regard for the individual's characteristics and their relation to occupational opportunity.

2. Vocational guidance is based on the free and voluntary choice of the individual ; its primary object is to give him full opportunity for personal development and satisfaction from work, with due regard for the most effective use of national manpower resources.

3. Vocational guidance is a continuous process, the fundamental principles of which are the same irrespective of the age of the individuals being counselled. These principles have an immediate importance for the welfare of individuals everywhere and for the prosperity of all countries.

4. Facilities for vocational guidance should be adapted to the peculiar needs of each country and be adopted progressively. Their development within each country should proceed from a widespread understanding of the purpose of vocational guidance, the establishment of an adequate administrative structure, and the provision of technically qualified personnel.

II. SCOPE

5. To the maximum possible extent consistent with national and local policy and resources, public vocational guidance facilities should be provided for all persons requiring such assistance.

6. Special provision should be made for :

- (a) programmes suitable for young persons, including those in school, who require counselling on problems related to entering occupations or planning careers, and
- (b) programmes suitable for all other persons who require counselling on employment and related vocational problems ; such persons are referred to hereafter in this Recommendation as adults.

III. PRINCIPLES AND METHODS OF VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE FOR YOUNG PERSONS INCLUDING THOSE IN SCHOOL

7. (1) Vocational guidance policies and programmes should be determined through the co-operative efforts of the schools and other organisations and services concerned with young persons in the transition from school to work, and the representative organisations of employers and workers, to the end that each young person receiving vocational guidance may have the benefit of unified and co-ordinated assistance.

(2) These co-operative efforts should also include consultation and co-operation with the parents and guardians concerned and with associations of parents where such exist.

(3) In applying these general principles, due account should be taken of the principles of administrative organisation set forth in Part V of this Recommendation.

8. (1) During the period of general education, preliminary vocational guidance should be included within the educational programme. Such guidance should be primarily designed to make the young person aware of his aptitudes, qualifications and interests and of the various occupations and careers so as to facilitate future vocational adjustment.

(2) The preliminary vocational guidance should receive increasing emphasis at those stages of schooling at which the young person may choose to enter special vocational courses or seeks other training or employment on leaving school.

(3) The preliminary vocational guidance should include—

- (a) the provision, in suitable form, of comprehensive occupational and industrial information ;
- (b) wherever possible in the national and local circumstances, visits, adequately supervised, to industrial and commercial establishments and other workplaces, and
- (c) counselling by means of personal interview supplemented by group discussions or talks.

9. The methods of vocational guidance for young persons set forth in Paragraphs 10 to 15 should be given particular attention and their use encouraged to the widest practicable extent.

10. (1) Each young person seeking vocational guidance should be provided with adequate opportunity for a counselling interview with a vocational guidance officer, more particularly at the time he may be able to choose specific vocational courses, or to leave school for other occupational training (including apprenticeship) or for work.

(2) Methods of interview should be continuously adapted with a view to ensuring the most complete analysis possible of individual ability in relation to occupational opportunities and requirements.

11. Records of school progress, including, as desired and as appropriate in individual cases, an evaluation of capacity, educational attainments, aptitudes and personality, should be used as may be considered appropriate for vocational guidance with due respect to the confidential character of the information contained therein.

12. (1) The facilities for the medical examination of young persons should be utilised as appropriate and developed as necessary for purposes of vocational guidance.

(2) Advice for remedial action and such other help as may be possible and useful for the purposes of vocational adjustment should be provided as needed in each individual case.

13. (1) Wherever practicable, appropriate tests of capacity and aptitude and, where so desired, other psychological tests should be made available for use in vocational guidance as appropriate to the needs of individual cases.

(2) Advice for remedial action and such other help as may be possible and useful for the purposes of vocational adjustment should be made available in individual cases.

14. (1) Suitable and reliable information regarding careers in the different occupations and industries and regarding employment and training opportunities should be made available to young persons through counselling interviews and otherwise, with due regard for the aptitudes, physical capacities, qualifications, preferences and personality of the young person concerned and the prospective needs of the economy.

(2) In this connection the competent authorities should maintain continuous co-operation with such other public and private bodies, including more particularly the representative organisations of employers and workers, as are able—

(a) to provide information concerning probable future openings in each industry, trade or occupation, and

(b) to assist with the preparation and conclusion of contracts of apprenticeship and to supervise their application.

15. Consideration should also be given to the desirability of ascertaining the aptitudes of young persons by providing opportunity for appropriate work experience and by other similar means.

16. Special attention should be given to the development, within the framework of the general vocational guidance services, of adequate and appropriate arrangements for the vocational guidance of young persons in rural areas.

17. Special attention should be given to the development, within the framework of the general vocational guidance services, and in co-operation with the appropriate rehabilitation services, of adequate and appropriate arrangements for the vocational guidance of young persons—

(a) who have physical or mental handicaps or limitations, or
(b) who manifest personality disorders of such a nature as to prevent or make specially difficult their vocational adjustment.

18. The competent national and local authorities should encourage full voluntary use of vocational guidance facilities, more particularly in the case of—

- (a) young persons who may choose among several vocational courses within the school ;
- (b) young persons who are near school-leaving age ;
- (c) young persons who are entering the employment market for the first time ;
- (d) young persons who are seeking admission to apprenticeship or other vocational training ;
- (e) young persons who are unemployed, who are employed in declining industries or who are likely to become unemployed ;
- (f) young persons who have physical or mental handicaps or limitations ; or
- (g) young persons who manifest personality disorders of such a nature as to prevent or make specially difficult their vocational adjustment.

19. The competent authorities should take the necessary measures to facilitate the execution of the young persons' vocational plans wherever these are feasible ; where appropriate in individual cases suggestions should be made for carrying out these plans and assistance should be provided in making the necessary contacts with other services or persons also concerned with placing the young person in training or employment in the occupation chosen by him.

20. (1) The competent authorities should take measures to organise follow-up aimed primarily at assisting in so far as possible the young person to overcome any difficulties he may be experiencing in following his vocational plans and ascertaining whether the occupation selected is proving suitable.

(2) Wherever possible, methods of follow-up should include general enquiries on a sampling basis to measure the results of vocational guidance in individual cases and to evaluate vocational guidance policy and methods. Such enquiries should permit of securing medical information in co-operation, where possible, with the medical facilities existing at workplaces.

IV. PRINCIPLES AND METHODS OF VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE FOR ADULTS (EMPLOYMENT COUNSELLING)

21. (1) Appropriate arrangements for adults should be made within the framework of the public vocational guidance services to assist any person requiring aid in choosing an occupation or in changing his occupation.

(2) The process involved in rendering this assistance is referred to in this Recommendation as employment counselling.

22. The process of employment counselling should include, as far as practicable in the national circumstances and as appropriate in individual cases—

- (a) interview with an employment counsellor ;
- (b) examination of record of work experience ;
- (c) examination of scholastic or other records relating to education or training received ;
- (d) medical examination ;
- (e) appropriate tests of capacity and aptitude, and, where so desired, other psychological tests ;
- (f) ascertainment of aptitudes by appropriate work experience and by other similar means ;
- (g) technical trade tests, either verbal or otherwise, in all cases where such seem necessary ;
- (h) analysis of physical capacity in relation to occupational requirements ;
- (i) provision of information concerning employment and training opportunities relating to the qualifications, physical capacities, aptitudes, preferences and experience of the person concerned and to the needs of the employment market ;
- (j) follow-up, on a sampling basis, aimed at discovering whether satisfactory placement in employment, training or retraining has been achieved and at evaluating employment counselling policy and methods.

23. (1) The competent national and local bodies should take all necessary measures to encourage the extended use, on a voluntary basis, of employment counselling services in the case of—

- (a) persons entering employment for the first time ;
- (b) persons unemployed for a long period ;
- (c) persons unemployed or likely to be unemployed, as a result of declining industries or changes in the technique, structure or location of industry ;
- (d) persons living in rural areas who comprise surplus manpower in the light of current or prospective employment opportunity ;
- (e) persons desirous of benefiting from public facilities for vocational training and readjustment.

(2) All necessary and practicable measures should be taken to develop, within the framework of the general vocational guidance facilities and with the co-operation of any appropriate rehabilitation services when the person requires such assistance, specialised employment counselling for physically disabled persons and those having personality disorders that hinder their vocational adjustment.

(3) All necessary and practicable measures should be taken to develop, within the framework of the general vocational guidance facilities, specialised employment counselling for technicians, professional workers, salaried employees and executive staff.

24. Special attention should be given, in connection with employment counselling, to the development of appropriate methods for the technical selection of workers for particular occupations and industries.

V. PRINCIPLES OF ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANISATION

25. Vocational guidance and employment counselling should be organised and co-ordinated on the basis of a comprehensive general programme, established and developed in the light of regional and local conditions and adaptable to changes in such conditions.

26. In order to encourage the development of vocational guidance and employment counselling facilities, provision should be made by the central authorities (including, where appropriate, the central authorities of the federated units of federal States) for—

- (a) adequate financing of such facilities ;
- (b) appropriate technical assistance ; and
- (c) development of methods and materials suitable for use on a nationwide basis.

27. All necessary and desirable measures should be taken by the competent authorities to secure effective co-operation, nationally and locally, between the public and private bodies engaged in vocational guidance or employment counselling activities.

A. Administrative Arrangements for Vocational Guidance for Young Persons, including those in School

28. (1) The competent authorities should make appropriate arrangements for the co-ordination, nationally and locally, of policy and action in the field of vocational guidance, due regard being paid to the responsibility of the parents and to the appropriate functions of private vocational guidance bodies.

(2) These arrangements should be directed more particularly towards—

- (a) maintaining effective public service to young persons, in co-operation with other interested agencies as appropriate without duplication of effort ; and
- (b) facilitating, as may be desirable and with due respect for confidential data, the exchange of information concerning—
 - (i) the extent and character of the need for vocational guidance services and of the facilities already available ;
 - (ii) the young persons applying for vocational guidance ;
 - (iii) industries, trades and occupations ;

- (iv) employment and training opportunities ; and
- (v) the preparation and use of vocational guidance materials including appropriate tests.

29. (1) National and local administrative responsibility for vocational guidance should be clearly defined.

(2) With due regard to this division of authority, primary responsibility should be entrusted either—

- (a) jointly to the education and employment service authorities ; or
- (b) to one of these authorities working in close co-operation with the other.

30. (1) Appropriate arrangements should be made through advisory committees for the co-operation of representatives of employers and workers in the development of vocational guidance policy.

(2) Such committees should be maintained nationally and as far as possible locally and should normally include representatives of the public and private bodies concerned with education, training (including apprenticeship), vocational guidance and other questions directly affecting the vocational adjustment of young persons.

B. Administrative Arrangements for Vocational Guidance for Adults (Employment Counselling)

31. (1) Administrative responsibility for employment counselling should be entrusted primarily to the public employment service, with due regard to the administrative responsibility assigned by public authority to educational or other agencies.

(2) The offices of the public employment service should include, at each administrative stage so far as practicable, specialised employment counselling units or officers.

(3) Administrative arrangements should be made to ensure, as may be necessary or desirable, co-operation by the public employment service with specialised employment counselling services maintained for special groups or persons.

32. Appropriate arrangements should be made, nationally and locally, to ensure that employment counselling is organised in close relation with—

- (a) all other activities of the employment service ;
- (b) other vocational guidance services ;
- (c) educational and training institutions ;
- (d) the administration of unemployment insurance and assistance schemes ;
- (e) the administration of training and retraining schemes and of other plans to promote occupational or geographical mobility of labour ;

- (f) the representative organisations of employers and workers ; and
- (g) public and private organisations providing rehabilitation services to disabled persons.

VI. TRAINING OF OFFICERS

33. (1) In order to secure the efficiency of the vocational guidance services, the competent authority should ensure the employment of an adequate number of officers with suitable training, experience and other qualifications, and should organise, to the fullest possible extent and in co-operation where appropriate with other bodies concerned, specialised scientific and technical training for vocational guidance staff.

(2) The measures to be taken should include, for example :

- (a) the establishment by the competent authority of minimum qualifications for vocational guidance officers ;
- (b) the establishment by the competent authority of regulations for the selection of officers on the basis of such qualifications ;
- (c) the organisation of specialised training courses for persons seeking to undertake the work of vocational guidance ;
- (d) the provision of supplementary training and refresher courses for all officers ; and
- (e) the maintenance by the competent authority of conditions of appointment and employment sufficiently attractive to provide an inducement to qualified persons to undertake and continue in such work.

(3) Consideration should be given to—

- (a) the interchange of vocational guidance officers among the different branches of the services with which they are respectively concerned ;
- (b) the publication of technical material suitable for developing the professional skill of officers.

(4) Where useful, the Members should co-operate for the purposes of training staff, availing themselves of the help of the International Labour Office if they so desire.

VII. RESEARCH AND PUBLICITY

34. (1) Special measures should be taken on a co-ordinated basis, to promote public and private research and experiment in methods of vocational guidance.

(2) The public employment service should co-operate in such research.

(3) Wherever appropriate in the circumstances such research should include examination of such questions as—

- (a) methods of interviewing ;
- (b) the analysis of the requirements of the different occupations ;
- (c) the provision of industrial and occupational information appropriate for vocational guidance ;
- (d) aptitude and other psychological testing ;
- (e) the development of model vocational guidance forms ; and
- (f) the measurement of the result of vocational guidance.

35. Systematic efforts should be made by the authorities responsible for vocational guidance in co-operation with employers' and workers' organisations and where appropriate with other bodies concerned, to promote wide public understanding of the purposes, principles and methods of vocational guidance.

Convention 98

Convention concerning the Application of the Principles of the Right to Organise and to Bargain Collectively

The General Conference of the International Labour Organisation,

Having been convened at Geneva by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office, and having met in its Thirty-second Session on 8 June 1949, and

Having decided upon the adoption of certain proposals concerning the application of the principles of the right to organise and to bargain collectively, which is the fourth item on the agenda of the session, and

Having determined that these proposals shall take the form of an international Convention, adopts this first day of July of the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine the following Convention, which may be cited as the Right to Organise and Collective Bargaining Convention, 1949 :

Article 1

1. Workers shall enjoy adequate protection against acts of anti-union discrimination in respect of their employment.

2. Such protection shall apply more particularly in respect of acts calculated to—

- (a) make the employment of a worker subject to the condition that he shall not join a union or shall relinquish trade union membership ;

- (b) cause the dismissal of or otherwise prejudice a worker by reason of union membership or because of participation in union activities outside working hours or, with the consent of the employer, within working hours.

Article 2

1. Workers' and employers' organisations shall enjoy adequate protection against any acts of interference by each other or each other's agents or members in their establishment, functioning or administration.

2. In particular, acts which are designed to promote the establishment of workers' organisations under the domination of employers or employers' organisations, or to support workers' organisations by financial or other means, with the object of placing such organisations under the control of employers or employers' organisations, shall be deemed to constitute acts of interference within the meaning of this Article.

Article 3

Machinery appropriate to national conditions shall be established, where necessary, for the purpose of ensuring respect for the right to organise as defined in the preceding articles.

Article 4

Measures appropriate to national conditions shall be taken, where necessary, to encourage and promote the full development and utilisation of machinery for voluntary negotiation between employers or employers' organisations and workers' organisations, with a view to the regulation of terms and conditions of employment by means of collective agreements.

Article 5

1. The extent to which the guarantees provided for in this Convention shall apply to the armed forces and the police shall be determined by national laws or regulations.

2. In accordance with the principle set forth in paragraph 8 of Article 19 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation the ratification of this Convention by any Member shall not be deemed to affect any existing law, award, custom or agreement in virtue of which members of the armed forces or the police enjoy any right guaranteed by this Convention.

Article 6

This Convention does not deal with the position of public servants engaged in the administration of the State, nor shall it be construed as prejudicing their rights or status in any way.

Article 7

The formal ratifications of this Convention shall be communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration.

Article 8

1. This Convention shall be binding only upon those Members of the International Labour Organisation whose ratifications have been registered with the Director-General.

2. It shall come into force twelve months after the date on which the ratifications of two Members have been registered with the Director-General.

3. Thereafter, this Convention shall come into force for any Member twelve months after the date on which its ratification has been registered.

Article 9

1. Declarations communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office in accordance with paragraph 2 of Article 35 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall indicate—

- (a) the territories in respect of which the Member concerned undertakes that the provisions of the Convention shall be applied without modification ;
- (b) the territories in respect of which it undertakes that the provisions of the Convention shall be applied subject to modifications, together with details of the said modifications ;
- (c) the territories in respect of which the Convention is inapplicable and in such cases the grounds on which it is inapplicable ;
- (d) the territories in respect of which it reserves its decision pending further consideration of the position.

2. The undertakings referred to in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of paragraph 1 of this Article shall be deemed to be an integral part of the ratification and shall have the force of ratification.

3. Any Member may at any time by a subsequent declaration cancel in whole or in part any reservation made in its original declaration in virtue of subparagraph (b), (c) or (d) of paragraph 1 of this Article.

4. Any Member may, at any time at which the Convention is subject to denunciation in accordance with the provisions of Article 11, communicate to the Director-General a declaration modifying in any other respect the terms of any former declaration and stating the present position in respect of such territories as it may specify.

Article 10

1. Declarations communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office in accordance with paragraphs 4 or 5 of Article 35 of the Constitution of the International Labour Organisation shall indicate whether the provisions of the Convention will be applied in the territory concerned without modification or subject to modifications ; when the declaration indicates that the provisions of the Convention will be applied subject to modifications, it shall give details of the said modifications.

2. The Member, Members or international authority concerned may at any time by a subsequent declaration renounce in whole or in part the right to have recourse to any modification indicated in any former declaration.

3. The Member, Members or international authority concerned may, at any time at which this Convention is subject to denunciation in accordance with the provisions of Article 11, communicate to the Director-General a declaration modifying in any other respect the terms of any former declaration and stating the present position in respect of the application of the Convention.

Article 11

1. A Member which has ratified this Convention may denounce it after the expiration of ten years from the date on which the Convention first comes into force, by an act communicated to the Director-General of the International Labour Office for registration. Such denunciation shall not take effect until one year after the date on which it is registered.

2. Each Member which has ratified this Convention and which does not, within the year following the expiration of the period of ten years mentioned in the preceding paragraph, exercise the right of denunciation provided for in this Article, will be bound for another period of ten years and, thereafter, may denounce this Convention at the expiration of each period of ten years under the terms provided for in this Article.

Article 12

1. The Director-General of the International Labour Office shall notify all Members of the International Labour Organisation of the registration of all ratifications, declarations and denunciations communicated to him by the Members of the Organisation.

2. When notifying the Members of the Organisation of the registration of the second ratification communicated to him, the Director-General shall draw the attention of the Members of the Organisation to the date upon which the Convention will come into force.

Article 13

The Director-General of the International Labour Office shall communicate to the Secretary-General of the United Nations for registration in accordance with Article 102 of the Charter of the United Nations full particulars of all ratifications, declarations and acts of denunciation registered by him in accordance with the provisions of the preceding articles.

Article 14

At the expiration of each period of ten years after the coming into force of this Convention, the Governing Body of the International Labour Office shall present to the General Conference a report on the working of this Convention and shall consider the desirability of placing on the agenda of the Conference the question of its revision in whole or in part.

Article 15

1. Should the Conference adopt a new Convention revising this Convention in whole or in part, then, unless the new Convention otherwise provides—

- (a) the ratification by a Member of the new revising Convention shall ipso jure involve the immediate denunciation of this Convention, notwithstanding the provisions of Article 11 above, if and when the new revising Convention shall have come into force ;
- (b) as from the date when the new revising Convention comes into force this Convention shall cease to be open to ratification by the Members.

2. This Convention shall in any case remain in force in its actual form and content for those Members which have ratified it but have not ratified the revising Convention.

Article 16

The English and French versions of the text of this Convention are equally authoritative.
